BELLBOY STOLE WATCH.

At the juvenile police court today Chas. Miller, the Grigg House bellboy, brought back from Hamilton on the charge of stealing a silver watch from Richard Eager, a fellow-employe. pleaded guilty and was remanded un-til Friday for sentence. Miller was arrested by the Hamilton police after he had given them information of the attempt of three tramps to steal the watch from him. The tramps got six months each in the Central Prison.

HIGH-CLASS, BUT LOW-PRICED. Manager Cairns announces that the prices for the Shea vaudeville show at the Grand Opera House tonight have been placed at an absurdly low rate, considering the quality of the bill which is being offered in the Orpheum Company. The prices are 50 cents for the entire lower floor and first five rows in the balcony, 35 cents for the balance of the balcony and 25 cents for the gallery. These prices should guarantee a crowded house for the second week of Shea's own shows. WORKINGMEN'S SERMONS.

A very large congregation assembled in King Street Presbyterian Church last night to hear the first of a series of "Talks to Workingmen." The pastor, Rev. Thos. Wilson, took the subject, which was, "Christ's Claim on the Workingman." He dealt with the claims under four heads. First, Christ carpenter," the son of Joseph. Not only was he a working man, but he came through the line of working men. shepherd, hence, being a working man he had a claim on working men. Second, when he chose his apostles he sefrom the working men. The sons of the wealthy are not, as a rule, called into most promising and best-liked boys in the ministry, but those from the farm the London Collegiate Institute, and he was not given to low spirits. In that he has laid down his life for all, hence for the working man. The next subject will be "The Church's Need of the Workingman."

SHORE-EDELSTEIN

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at Christ's Church, Glanworth, on Friday morning, when Miss Grace Edelstein, eldest daughter of the rector, Rev. L. G. Edelstein, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. H. Shore, eldest son of Mr. T. Hardy Shore, by her father, assisted by Rev. Arthur Shore. of Port Rowan, uncle of the groom. The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. C. P. Heal, of London, She were a gown of white crepon and silk and carried a bouquet of white carnations. She was assisted by her sister. Miss Edith Edelstein, who wore cream serge and black velvet picture hat, and carrying crimson carnations The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Frank Shore. The wedding march was ably rendered by Miss Edith Kains, of St. Thomas. Some valuable presents were received. Mr. and Mrs. Shore left by way of Port Rowan (where they will visit some relatives) for the Pan-American Exposition, accompanied by the wishes of their friends.

For some time past the ladies of the Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers have been working with earnest endeavor to provide a quiet and pleasant resting place for railroad men who have the misfortune to be sick or injured through accident. Their efforts are now rewarded, a room having been secured in Victoria Hospital, tastefully decorated, and comfortably furnished, and is considered by those who have had the privilege of visiting it as being the most complete and pretty there. It is known as the railroad room. Mrs. D. Mains, for the C. P. R. division, and Mrs. J. W. Cox, for the G. T. R. division, formed the committee who have had the task in with great power. WILL SING A SONG OF ROYAL WELCOME.

London School Children's Part in Reception to Their Royal Highnesses.

So far the details have not been perfected for the part to be taken in the reception to royalty by the school children of the city. It has been decided, however, that they will be stationed on the lawns and sidewalks and boulevards surrounding the Collegiate Institute. As the royal party advance near, the first section of children will take up the song of welcome, and it will be continued along the line as the party passes. Col. Gartshere has promised a detail of soldiers to keep lear the positions to be occupied by

THE GREATEST GUN THAT WAS EVER MADE!

Has Been Five Years in Building-Just Completed-Each Charge Costs $1,500.

[From the Washington Times.] The biggest gun in the world is now practically completed, and awaiting its carriage in the shops of the army gun factory at Watervliet, N. Y. It was planned ten years ago, and has been over five years in process of construction. It is the most powerful engine of destruction known. compared to it the largest gun built in civil war time looks like a toy cannon. This new weapon is known as a 16inch breech-loading rifle, and it is intended for harbor defense. Forty of these monsters were recommended by the Endicott board for the harbors of New York, Boston, San Francisco and Hampton Roads, New York was to have 18, Boston 8, San Francisco 10 and Hampton Roads 4. According to present intentions this number will be somewhat reduced. Some idea of the size and power of this gun may be had from the fact that it throws a projective weighing 2,370 pounds. It requires 1,176 pounds of ordinary powder to do this, or 576 pounds of the new smokeless powder. The cost of a single firing of the gun is over $1,500, of which the projectiles alone costs $1,000. The gun has a range of 21 miles. It has a pene-trating power that will, it is estimated, bore 42.3 inches into hardened steel. The missile which it hurls is nearly as long as a man, five feet and four inches. It will throw this projectile, If aimed at an angle of 45 degrees, to a height in the projectory of over five miles. If Mount Blanc were set on top of Pike's Peak, this gun would shoot over them, clearing the top, it is computed, by 590 feet. The time between the shell's leaving the gun and its striking earth will be a minute and a quarter.

The best performance of any gun up to this time is credited to a 9.45 caliber Krupp gun. In 1892 an exhibition was given before the German Emperor the Meppen range. The greatest beight reached by the Krupp shell in its flight was 21,456 feet, and the measured range was found to be 22,120

50 feet in length, 5 in diameter at the sive of carriage, 130 tons. It is interesting to compare these figures with the largest gun built in 1864, namely. the Rodman smooth-bore 20-inch. This where it was placed nearly 40 years ago. It was never in practical use, the largest gun seeing actual service in the war being a 10-inch Parrott. Several of these were used at the siege of Charleston, where they were known as "swamp ange's." The "20-inch" Rodman gun is 20

cast at Pittsburg in 1864. During the war the 10-inch Parrott guns were re-garded as "monsters." They are small, even as compared with the Red

Major Charles S. Smith, of the army bureau of ordnance, says the new gun will be ready for the official tests as soon as the carriage mounts are

WHERE THEY USE A SOBERING MACHINE

Pennsylvania Tewn Provides a Springless Cart for the Speedy Relief of Tipsy

[Philadelphia Ledger.]

The "Tattler" recently met a quaint and amusing old gentleman who told of a curious institution for which wide use could be found. He said: "A portion of my life was spent in a sleepy Pennsylvania tewn which has grown little in the course of a half century, and still preserves many of the quaint customs of its earliest days. You will find in this idyllic retreat counterparts of all the celebrities who figure so delightfully in Miss Mitford's 'Our Vil-lage.' In my beyhood it had an insti-tution which distinguished it from all sister villages, an institution quite unknown to modern communities. It was called the sobering machine. This consisted of a rude, springless, two-wheeled vehicle, with a board body, drawn by a motley assembly of bummers and roysterers, old and young, who can always be summoned in a country place on the slightest signal when anything exciting is in the wind. When one of the rather numerous town drunkards was discovered in a favorable position, the sobering ma-chine was slyly backed up to the curb, stigation of the coroner, and is held a prisoner at the central station pending an investigation into very serious the victim was quickly pushed into the cart, and then pulled through the streets, over every possible obstacle, streets, over every possible obstacle, by the jeering crowd that manned the The victim, it was assumed, ropes. was jolted, jerked and thumped into semi-sobriety by this rough riding. At any rate, few of the town loafers who had tested the tonic virtues of the sobering machine yearned for a second dose, Many of the noisy, ragged crowd who helped to drag the sobering machine over its devious route had themselves taken similar trips. The rude apparatus, I suspect, did more for the cause of temperance in its day than the more gentle and respectable methods of promoting the reform. The appliance was carefully housed, and all the bloods in town knew where it was to be found. Sometimes it figured in parades, and, when bedecked and bedizened with flowers, flags and ribbons, it attra ted almost

THE SIMPLON TUNNEL

Work Boing On So Fast That the Cutting Should Be Open in 1904.

Very great progress has been made with the tunnel under the Simplon, which should be open for traffic in 1904. The total cost when both tunnels are completed will be about $300 a lineal yard of single-line tunnel. A correspondent of the London Times says that it will be 12½ miles long. The Mont Cenis tunnel has a length of nearly 8 miles, and all trains have to attain an altitude of 4,248 feet above the sea level. The Arlberg is 61-3 miles in length, with a height of 4,300 feet. The St. Gothard is 91-3 miles, with a maximum altitude of 3,788 feet. The Simplon will have the great advantage over the others that its traffic has not to be taken to a greater altitude than 3,314 feet above the sea level, or 1,474 feet less than in the case of the St. Gothard, so that no costly approaches nor helical should be open for traffic in 1904. The less than in the case of the St. Gothard, so that no costly approaches nor helical tunnels are required to gain access to the tunnels are required to gain access to the age of trains be so heavy as in the case of the other tunnels.

The work will at first consist of one single line tunnel, lined with masonry throughout, and one parallel passage 10 feet wide by 8 feet high, preparatory to a second tunnel placed 56 feet apart, axis from axis. When the traffic necessitates a second tunnel it can be completed for about one-third of the cost of the first tunnel. The experience gained during the tunnel. The experience gained during the construction of the previous tunnels is being turned to very good account, and is resulting in a great saving of life, in much greater comfort for the men, and in greatly abbreviating the period of construction struction.

They take off their mining clothes, which are at once hung up in heated rooms to dry, ready for their next day's work. Adjacent is a restaurant, at which they can get meals of an excellent quality at a very low price. Everything is kept in an excellent state of order and cleanliness, and the organization throughout is quite without precedent.
