FACTS FOR BUSINESS MEN.

As long as a merchant can keep his dusiness on the increase by the use of advertising, just so long he should be constantly willing to increase his advertising. When the business is at a standstill or in danger of going backward, it is time to stop to consider the whole scheme of business with a view to getting more and better returns, not alone from his advertising, but from his entire investment. There are times when a careful consideration of the deterioration of the business and a careful seeking for the cause will do much to put the bad features in the background and put the other features to the fore. The business man should consider carefully the advantages he could claim for his store, those advantages so persistently and mingle with the enthusiastic. "In diseases that come to women only, as a rule, the doctor is called in, sometimes several doctors, but still matters go from bad to worse; but I have never known of a case of female weakness which was not helped when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used faithfully. For young women who are subject to headaches, backache, irregular or painful periods, and nervous attacks due to the severe strain on the system by some organic trouble, and for women of advanced years in the most trying time of life, it serves to correct every trouble and restore a healthy action of all organs of the body.

LONDON'S TRADE INCREASING AS SHOWN BY 1902 BLUE BOOK

Record of Which Citizens May purpose Well Be Proud.

Incontrovertibly Proved.

HE voluminous blue book in which is embodied the tables of the trade and navigation of the Dominion of Canada for fiscal year ended June 30, 1902, has just been issued. Patient delving into the mass of figures which curate. it contains, brings to light some statistics which will prove of interest to the citizens of this busy and enterprising little city, showing as they do the volume of business transacted here and the steady increase which is taking place each year in the totals of London's exports and imports. The first table in the volume shows the value of total exports, imports and goods entered for consumption in the Dominion with the duty collected therefor, for Canada's fiscal years from June 30, 1868, to June 30, 1902. In the first year given the figures were: Exports, $57,567,888; imports, $73,459,644; entered for consumption, $71,985,306; in Devonshire, England, and educated in this city. Some seven years ago he entered the employ of Toft, decreases for the ensuing years until a decrease the ensuing years and th they had about doubled in 1892. The figures for the past three years are: Exports, 1900, $181,894,723; 1901, $196,-487,632; 1902, $211,640,286. Imports, 1900, $189,622,512; 1901, $190,415,525; 1902, $_12,-70,158. Among the entries of free goods appear the following items: Anthracite coal, $212,409; lumber, $104,061; hides and skins, $33,492; tobacco leaf for excise purposes, $235,441; drugs and chemicals, $135,826; copper, $59,799; iron and steel, $82,305; tin, $92,921; green coffee $20,528; settlers' effects, $30,084;

A comparison of London's statistics with those of Hamilton, which exceeds the Forest City by about 15,000 population, is interesting as showing some differences which are curious in the light of the disproportion of population. For instance Hamilton only imports $44,000 worth of glass manufactures, as against London's $99,000. A temperance man might start out to explain this in his own way, but he would have his troubles, for while Hamilton's importation of ale and beer is only $537, or half that of London's, and the amount of spirits brought in is also less, the Ambitious City evens up by buying over onethird more of non-sparkling wines, or $3,917 worth, and fifteen times as much of the fizzy kind, or $2,294 worth. In wearing apparel and clothing material there is also a surprising discrepancy. Thus London buys $119,- tion. "The Show Giri" will bear out the 056 worth of silks, while Hamilton gets statement that it is just "a jolly bit only $61,920 worth. London spends $213,426 for cotton goods; Hamilton with the most enjoya only $207,984. London's headgear bill from start to finish. is $113,225; Hamilton's reaches only $44,177. In the matter of ribbons there is a still greater difference, London Central Railroads intend to increase getting $24,230 worth, while Hamilton's their wage scales at the beginning of cost only $5,119. My lady's furs in the year 1903. London cost $44,168; Hamilton girls

Shiver through the bleak winter with only $14,239 worth around their necks. chief clerk at the Hotel Vendome, Sar-These figures may explain the poor showing made by the girls from under the mountain, when compared with London's nattily-dressed daughters. The 20th Century Success in The mountain maids evidently eschew the merely decorative in dress and go in for substantial worth, for Hamilton buys $370,801 worth of wool goods to London's $258,397.

In the matter of intellectuality, honors seem about even, for if Londoners buy more reading matter, the Hamiltonians do more writing. London's book bill foots up to $38,284, while Hamilton's is only $26,089. On the other hand, Hamilton spends $69,863 for paper, $5,765 for leadpencils, $5,386 fer ink and $2,740 for pens, penholders and rulers. London's outlay for these four items is but $49,798, $2,656, $5,528 and $828 respectively. Hamilton seems to score in the matter of musical culture, purchasing musical instruments worth $3 479, while London's were worth only

The expenditure of $2,333 by Hamilton merchants for cash registers, while only $582 was devoted to the same

London, shadow of doubt on the hon esty of the Hamilton bartenders, cashiers and other handlers of coin, while at the same time it reflects a luster upon the incorruptible citi-Hamilton's Inferiority to Forest City zens of the Forest City, who need only one-quarter as many cash registers to keep tab on them. London's bells cost $6,900 during the year, and Hamilton's only $1,398. Of course this does not begin to represent the vast sum actually expended on London's belles, but whatever the total, the disbursers doubtless considered that they were worth it all. The proportion of expenditure to the number and worth of the belies of the two cities seems to he fairly ac-

One result of the comparisons is the proving on every page of London's advantages over Hamilton as a place of residence. The weary housewife must turn with yearning eyes towards a city kept clean with $2,849 worth of brooms and brushes, while Hamilton required $10,299 worth. The purchase of $83 worth of carpet sweepers in London and not one in Hamilton would indicate that the husbands of the latter city deny their wives the benefits of labor-saving devices. The lonely bachelor's heart must go out to a locality whose atmospheric conditions are such that his trouser buttons stay on almost twice as long as they do down in the damp air off Burlington Bay, as evidenced by the fact that Hamilton laid out $5,412 for buttons, while London's bill for the same only came to $3 005. The fact that Londoners spent $1,021 for feather beds, while Hamiltonians' only outlay for the same class of merchandise was $90 for mattresses, makes it appear that most of the people of the Ambitious City take their nocturnal repose on the bare slats or the floor. The spending of $5,086 for fireworks and $22,491 for gunpowder in Hamilton, as against $753 and $6,214 for the same commodities in London, shows a prodigal and reprehensible tendency to burn good money. The purchase of $456 worth of "whips, thongs and lashes" seems to guarantee a warm time for the unruly small boy or the unwilling steed in Hamilton. The more merciful Londoners bought none of these instruments of castigation. It took $1,287 volume of business, the following figures are found: Imports, 1900, $3,-1915,180; 1901. $3,821,395; 1902, $4,192,735. $662 was found ample in Hamilton. The explanation probably is that Hamiltonians feel so blue when they think of London's advantages that 1902, $719,705 31. In 1900 London ex-ported goods valued at $1,855,153, but and the necessary tinge, the figures for the two following years of indigo in the wash. Hamilton peoand therefore do not need the addition Turning to the table showing the doners (in a literal sense, of course) value of goods entered for consumption at the various ports, it is seen that included in London's total of $4,on this metal were $20,697 and $10,919.
The spending of $2,167 for salt for the Hamiltonians, while Londoners only needed $292 worth, carries the obvious moral that the former are too fresh, while the purchase of $18,638 worth of spirits of turpentine in Hamilton when London's share was only $4,151 worth, suggests no moral at all to the compiler of this record.

When all these abstruse calculations and deductions have been laid aside. the fact remains that Londoners have no reason to be ashamed of the creditable showing made by the Forest City in its commerce with Canada, the empire and foreign nations.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

MELODRAMA ON FRIDAY. In George Samuel's latest melodrama, "The Scout's Revenge," which will be presented for the first time in this city at the Grand next Friday evening, nothing is omitted to make it attractive to all lovers of melodrama. The story contains many thrilling situations and is interpreted by an unusually strong company.

RICE'S "SHOW GIRL." Edward E. Rice, the veteran manager, is said to have scored a tremendous success with his latest offering, "The Show Girl," which will be seen at the Grand on Saturday afternoon and evening. It is said to be a show of fun, music and spectacle, and pre-sented by an organization of one hundred people, including such clever artists as Miss Kathryn Hutchinson, Frank Lalor, Robert Dailey, Neil Mc. Neil, Marie Hilton, Yolande Wallace, David Lythgoe, Bessie DeVoie, David Abraham, Frank Young and Anna Mc-Nabb. A chorus contingent of sixty charming young show girls adds to the beauty and vocal effect of the produc-tion. A WOMAN'S BAD TUMBLE. Copenhagen, Nov. 18. - Mrs. Robert Lindsay, wife of the well-known auctioneer, at this place, met with an accident on Saturday evening last that nearly ended her life. She went to the house south of her own dwelling, which was recently vacated by her son Bruce, who has moved to Aylmer, and got a house plant left there for her. She remembers no more, but she evidently went to the barn and up into the hay mow, and gathered the hens' eggs and fell to the floor, a distance of eleven or twelve feet. How she managed to reach home, some 70 rods away, in an unconscious condi-tion, is a marvel. A doctor of Ayl-mer was summoned, and found the injuries were to the head and back. She recovered consciousness Sunday noon and the doctor hopes for final recovery, but says it was a close call.
