Terrible Fate of Daughter of Mr. Geo Speck, East Nissouri.

The little daughter of Mr. George Speck, ninth concession of East Nissouri, met with a terrible death on Tuesday evening. The child, a little tot of about 4 years, was playing around a fire which had been started in the yard to heat water in which to scald hogs that had been slaughtered, when her clothes became ignited and in a moment she was enveloped in flames. With rare presence of mind, the unfortunate little girl ran to the house, but the door was shut. She beat frantically on the door, however, until the mother answered the summons, but the child was so badly burned that she fell dead before asistance could be rendered her. Mr. and Mrs. Speck are prostrated with grief. The funeral will take place Saturday

GLENMORE GAY ON HOLIDAY

Huntsmen Follow Hounds in a Very

The Hunt Club home is a popular resort of itself, with its magnificent grounds and house. In their autumn beauty the trees were a delight to look upon, the undulating ground to the south and west being also a place of grandeur. It is little wonder that these days the golf links are well patronized. More than anything else, perhaps. the sociability of the club is a feature, and as on Saturday afternoon last. Thanksgiving Day saw a great number of ladies and gentlemen in attendance. Of these, 50 or more sat down to the hunt breakfast at half-past one in the afternoon, and a most delectable luncheon it was. At its conclusion.Col. Denison proposed the health of the master. Mayor Beck. In doing so, he referred to the self-sacrifice of the master for the hunt, in the effort to bring it to the front, and said that not only from the riders, but from all the members, he deserved all the praise. In response to the toast, which wa heartily drunk, Mayor Beek thanked the company, and said that anything he had done was done for the love of it, and because he liked to see good sport. The London Hunt Club had brought the name of London, before the horsemen of the United States, as the best place to get riding horses, and he illustrated by saying that the prize-winners at the New York, Philadelphia and Boston shows of hunt teams had been bred in London Shortly after 3 o'clock the hounds were let loose, and following them were a number of the members of the club and others. The gay red habits could be seen until the horsemen vanished into the woods. The horses were all in good shape, and the turnout was a splendid one. Those who followed were the master. Mayor Beck, and the whips, Messrs. William Wilson and S. Owen, and among others the following: Col. Denison and Dr. Peters, Toronto Major Bumbrey, of England; Messrs. J. I. A. Hunt, W. T. Strong, Palmer Smith, James McNee, Bert Greene, Bert Mills, Dr. Hogg, Dr. Piper, Cel. A. M. Smith and Lieut, John Garvey.
