BEHOLD THE SYNDICATE.

We publish in another column a synopsis of an important railway suit, in which several members of the Canadian syndicate were co-defendants. A perusal of the article will show that Messrs. Donald A. Smith, R. B. Angus, Geo. Stephens, J. J. Hill and others, bent on wrecking the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba railway, entered into a scheme with the receiver of that line whereby the bonds were devalued and bought up by the above mentioned gentlemen, who thus became the owners of the railway. At the time the bonds were purchased Mr. D. A. Smith was vice-president and Mr. Angus general manager of the bank of Montreal, and it was on account of their connection with the bank that they were enabled to get money wherewith to purchase the bonds.

It will be remembered that at the time in question great dissatisfaction was expressed by the shareholders of the bank when they learned on what a security Messrs. Smith and Angus had appropriated the bank's money. The venture has happily for them been successful, but of course it might not have been; and had it proved unsuccessful there would be more talk about the transaction than there is to-day.

There are wise men to-day who say the danger to the bank of Montreal is its connection with the syndicate.

These controlling members of the Canadian syndicate have been declared by the court to have conspired with their appointed officers to cheat the bondholders out of their property.

They have bribed the courts of the United States!

What may we expect to see of them in Canada where their power is not many points removed from the unlimited, where they stand in with and almost override the government itself.

THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

We give Mr. Crooks credit for good intentions; we admit that the headship of our educational system is no easy task; we do not deny that Mr. Crooks succeeded in many troublesome legacies which he had to settle; but admitting all this, we must give it as our opinion, that the province is today in the midst of an educational muddle. The teachers are dissatisfied; the public are beginning to grumble; and there is a growing feeling that politicians are being thrust into everything educational. The machinations of one firm, are simply disgraceful. One would think that these firms and their satellites owned our public schools. They have the officers and servants of the education department in their pay one way or another; the whole educational machinery of the country is split into factions representing these different firms; their emissaries haunt the teachers' committees; dinner parties are provided for men who have judgments to make; and generally these book publishers are demoralizing the whole system. They should be unceremoniously hustled out of the department; the servants and officers should be permitted to have no dealings with them, directly or indirectly.

We are not prepared yet to say that the educational affairs of the province should not be under control of a minister of the crown but certainly Mr. Crooks has not proved that they should. The teachers and with them Mr. Goldwin Smith have declared that a return should be made to the old council of public instruction, and the entire separation of the educational affairs of the province from politics. As yet we cling to the opinion that the present system has not had a fair trial under Mr. Crooks.

THE COAL DUTY AND THE COAL DEALERS.

Some of the Toronto coal dealers were greatly "trifled" yesterday because The World professed to have knowledge of an invoice of coal from Buffalo, in which the Canadian duty was deducted from the regular American price. The dealers say it is no such a thing, and are apparently very anxious that the public should not believe it. Now we do not mean to assert that American invoices of coal sent to Canada are generally made out with the duty deducted on the face of them. This would be highly inconvenient to the Canadian dealer, who does not want the secrets of his trade exposed; and, besides, there is a far more ready way of getting the duty, by rebates or allowances on American railway freight charges. But what appears on the face of the documents to be a simple allowance on freight, is in reality a deduction to offset the Canadian duty, in order to keep the Canadian market for American coal. As for the amount allowed, that varies with the longitude. At points east, where Nova Scotia coal is delivered in considerable quantity and largely used, the freight allowance is at its maximum. As we come west, however, and as the chances of competition from Nova Scotia coal diminish, the allowance diminishes too. This is the regular way—the way the thing is generally done. But in some instances, and not so very few of them either, it is done openly and directly on the face of the invoice, as we have stated. We know of credible witnesses who have seen invoices with the Canadian duty deducted on their face, and we have every reason for believing that they speak the truth. Perhaps some of the coal dealers will come forward, and over their own signatures say, plump and plain, without any evasion or quibble of words, that they positively get no freight allowance on account of the duty, and that there are positively no such things in existence as invoices of coal with the duty deducted on the face of them from the regular American price. Our columns are free open to them, to give to the public their version of the coal duty story, if they choose to do so.

THE BIG BONANZA.

The prospects of the Canada Northwest land company (limited), has just arrived from London, where the head office is at present.

The capital stock is $3,000,000, in 300,000 shares of $10 each; 100,000 shares reserved for application in Canada; the balance have been subscribed in London.

The Duke of Manchester is chairman of the executive, Messrs. Oler and South of Toronto accept seats on the board and also act as the companies joint managers in Canada. Donald A. Smith of Winnipeg and A. G. Ramsay of Hamilton are the only other Canadians on the board.

This is the company it will be remembered, that made a large purchase of land from the Pacific railway company last spring, and the transaction was reported at the time to be the largest "land deal" known in America, viz., 5,000,000 acres of selected land.

Considerable dissatisfaction, however, prevails at the manner of distribution, as only one-third of the capital has been offered to Canadians. They would have subscribed for it all, had it been offered them. The result is that a pro rata allotment will be made to the Canadian subscribers on the return of Mr. South next month. Those who subscribed for $20,000 will probably not get more than $10,000.

A DEAD DUCK.

Senator John O'Donohoe, it is said, is lying in wait for the Ontario government. As soon as the local elections are announced he is going to take the stump against Hon. C. F. Fraser and his control of the Catholic vote. If the senator essays such a task he will have his hands full; he is a dead duck; he has been pitched into a political charnel house; and if he ventures into the ring his political and contract record will be unsearched to his disadvantage. He has no politics but self, and if he poses before the public as the champion of any class or creed it will serve him right if the pins are knocked from under him. Are we never to hear the last of the Catholic vote—Ohio in provincial politics.

MR. BAXTER, J. P.

In answer to the correspondent of Wednesday last, we would say that Mr. Baxter has not a freepass on the Chicago and consequently was quite competent, morally and legally, to try the case of the distributors on that book. Our correspondent should have been aware of his facts before he implied, as he did, that Mr. Baxter carried a freepass.

BOY NOTICE.

The Educational Monthly of July-August contains a number of good articles, quite a quantity of useful school work and more especially some valuable editorials. "A Boy's books," by Rev. Dr. Scadding, and "A Year in England," are worthy of careful reading. The editorials criticize Mr. Crooks' late emendations of our school system and lament over the fact that Ontario did not send up a single candidate this year for the Clarendon scholarship—while Nova Scotia sent up four. This number of the Educational Monthly is unusually good, although there are two articles which would have been more fittingly relegated to the waste paper basket. The scribbles about Longfellow were glad to know are not by a Canadian writer, they were perpetrated by A. Manwaring of "the university of Missouri," and are such a sample of canine Latin as would have supplied a double motive for Sappho's suicide. Equally bad is a paper on Cicero, cribbed almost wholesale from Mr. Wallace of Milton Oxford, by one C. H. Mockridge, I. D.

According to the Belleville Intelligencer John White, M. P. for East Hastings, whose election was protested, has made an offer to his opponents to admit bribery by an agent, and run again.

CONFESSING PASTORAL.

The progress which has been made in Palestine during the last twenty-five years is especially evident in the erection of many new buildings. In Jerusalem, inside the town, ruined houses have been restored or rebuilt. Outside the old town are entirely new suburbs, the extension being made especially towards the west. The Jews have formed among themselves building societies which have erected low, barrack-like buildings adapted for several families. The number of dwellings during the last twenty-five years has been estimated by the British consuls as being made up by the government of national defence in December, 1870, chairman of the committee of inspection of ministerial accounts, and he was chosen deputy for the President of the republic in 1871; became president of the assembly in March, 1875, and was chosen a life senator on December 10, 1875.

FROM THE INDIA PAST.

Dear Sir: In reply to your inquiry, I will say that the character of Uncle Tom was not the biography of any one man. The first suggestion of it came to me while in Walnut Hills, Ohio. I wrote letters for my colored cook to her husband, a slave in Kentucky. She told me that he was so faithful to her that he would not come alone and untrusting to Cincinnati to market his farm produce. Now this, according to the laws of Ohio, gave the man his freedom, since if any master brought or sent his slave into Ohio he became free de facto. But she said her husband had given his word as a Christian to his master that he would not take advantage of the law—his master promising him his freedom. Whether he ever got it or not I know not.

It was some four or five years after, when the fugitive slave law made me desirous of showing what slavery was, that I conceived the plan of writing the history of a faithful Christian slave. After I had begun the story I got, at the anti-slavery rooms in Boston, the autobiography of Josiah Henston, and introduced some of its most striking incidents into my story. The good people of England gave my simple, good friend Josiah enthusiastic welcome as the Uncle Tom of the story, though he was alive and well, and likely long to live, and the Uncle Tom of the story was buried in a martyr's grave. So much in reply to your inquiry: I trust this plain statement may prevent my answering any more letters on this subject. Truly yours, H. B. STOWE.

CONFESSING PASTORAL.

Mr. Victoria Morrison (colored) has been committed for trial at Collingwood on an information charging "that she did at divers times tell fortunes and pretend to tell fortunes and obtain money by the fraudulent pretence of telling fortunes or future events contrary to the statute in such case made and provided (Geo. II. ch. 9), and that she is a rogue and vagabond within the intent and meaning of the statute of 5 Geo. IV. entitled an act for the punishment of idle and disorderly persons and rogues and vagabonds."

WOMAN.

Showing Her the Best of Writers Appreciated Her Good Qualities.

Confucius—Woman is the masterpiece. Herber—Woman is the crown of creation. Voltaire—Women teach us repose, civility and dignity. John Quincy Adams—All that I am my mother made me. Lamartine—Nature meant to make woman his masterpiece. Lamartine—There is a woman at the beginning of all great things. Whittier—If woman lost us Eden, such as she alone restores it. E. S. Barrett—Woman is last at the cross and earliest at the grave. Richter—No man can either live piously or die righteously without a wife. N. P. Willis—The sweetest thing in life is the unclouded welcome of a wife. Voltaire—All the reasonings of men are not worth one sentiment of woman. Beecher—Women are a new race, re-created since the world received Christianity. Leopold Schefer—But one thing on earth is better than the wife—that is the mother. Shakespeare—For where is any author in the world teaches such beauty as a woman's eyes! Michellet—Woman is the Sunday of man; he can repose only, but his joy, the salt of his life. Margaret Fuller Osoli—Woman is born for love, and it is impossible to turn her from seeking it. Louis Desnoes—A woman may be ugly, ill-favored, wicked, ignorantly and stupid, but hardly ever ridiculous. Lord Langdale—If the whole world were put into one scale, and my mother into the fourth part of the beam. Malherbe—There are only two beautiful things in the world, women and roses; and only two sweet things, women and melons. Bulwer-Lytton—O woman, in ordinary cases, you are a mortal, how in the great and rare events of life dost thou swell into the angel! Saville—Women have more strength in their looks than we have in our laws, and more power by their tears than we have by our arguments. Emerson—A beautiful woman is a practical poet; taming her savage mate, planting her feet on the high and eloquence in all whom she approaches. Anna Corbett—Misfortune sprinkles ashes on the head of the man, but falls like dew on the hair of the woman, and brings forth a growth of strength of which she herself had no conscious possession. Thackeray—Almost all men who are in sympathy with the cause of the colored man, are young again in that conversation, and renew their own early time. Men are not quite so generous. General Smiles—Women of the poorer classes make sacrifices, and run risks, and bear privations, and exercise patience and kindness to a degree that the world never credits them with. They would believe even if it did knock.

ROOM ENOUGH FOR ALL.

Don't crowd and push on the march of life. Or tread on each other's toes. For the world at best, in its great vastness, For hard enough as it goes. Oh, why should the strong oppress the weak? 'Till the latter go to the wall? On each side, with its thorns and flowers, There is room enough for all.

If a laggy brother falls behind, If fear and doubt put him to rest, Then lend him a helping hand, Cheer up his heart with hope, For soon the speck will fall; In the race of life, on every day, 'Till the runner reaches the goal, There's room enough for all.

If a man with the tread of a pioneer Steps out on your track ahead, Don't grudge his start with an envious heart, For the mightiest ones were led, But give him a helping hand, 'Till he reaches the goal, 'Till he reaches the goal, 'Till he reaches the goal, 'Till he reaches the goal.

And if by doing your duty well, You should get to lead the van, Brand not your name with a word of shame, But come out as honest man, Keep a bright look on your side, 'Till the Master call, 'Till the Master call, 'Till the Master call, 'Till the Master call.

Your soul should go from the world below, Where there's room enough for all.

REBUILDING PALESTINE.

The progress which has been made in Palestine during the last twenty-five years is especially evident in the erection of many new buildings. In Jerusalem, inside the town, ruined houses have been restored or rebuilt. Outside the old town are entirely new suburbs, the extension being made especially towards the west. The Jews have formed among themselves building societies which have erected low, barrack-like buildings adapted for several families. The number of dwellings during the last twenty-five years has been estimated by the British consuls as being made up by the government of national defence in December, 1870, chairman of the committee of inspection of ministerial accounts, and he was chosen deputy for the President of the republic in 1871; became president of the assembly in March, 1875, and was chosen a life senator on December 10, 1875.

FROM THE INDIA PAST.

Dear Sir: In reply to your inquiry, I will say that the character of Uncle Tom was not the biography of any one man. The first suggestion of it came to me while in Walnut Hills, Ohio. I wrote letters for my colored cook to her husband, a slave in Kentucky. She told me that he was so faithful to her that he would not come alone and untrusting to Cincinnati to market his farm produce. Now this, according to the laws of Ohio, gave the man his freedom, since if any master brought or sent his slave into Ohio he became free de facto. But she said her husband had given his word as a Christian to his master that he would not take advantage of the law—his master promising him his freedom. Whether he ever got it or not I know not.

It was some four or five years after, when the fugitive slave law made me desirous of showing what slavery was, that I conceived the plan of writing the history of a faithful Christian slave. After I had begun the story I got, at the anti-slavery rooms in Boston, the autobiography of Josiah Henston, and introduced some of its most striking incidents into my story. The good people of England gave my simple, good friend Josiah enthusiastic welcome as the Uncle Tom of the story, though he was alive and well, and likely long to live, and the Uncle Tom of the story was buried in a martyr's grave. So much in reply to your inquiry: I trust this plain statement may prevent my answering any more letters on this subject. Truly yours, H. B. STOWE.

ROOM ENOUGH FOR ALL.

Don't crowd and push on the march of life. Or tread on each other's toes. For the world at best, in its great vastness, For hard enough as it goes. Oh, why should the strong oppress the weak? 'Till the latter go to the wall? On each side, with its thorns and flowers, There is room enough for all.

If a laggy brother falls behind, If fear and doubt put him to rest, Then lend him a helping hand, Cheer up his heart with hope, For soon the speck will fall; In the race of life, on every day, 'Till the runner reaches the goal, There's room enough for all.

If a man with the tread of a pioneer Steps out on your track ahead, Don't grudge his start with an envious heart, For the mightiest ones were led, But give him a helping hand, 'Till he reaches the goal, 'Till he reaches the goal, 'Till he reaches the goal, 'Till he reaches the goal.

And if by doing your duty well, You should get to lead the van, Brand not your name with a word of shame, But come out as honest man, Keep a bright look on your side, 'Till the Master call, 'Till the Master call, 'Till the Master call, 'Till the Master call.

Your soul should go from the world below, Where there's room enough for all.
