LITTLE CHANGE IN ELECTION FOR COUNCIL

Watford ratepayers were apparently well satisfied with their Reeve and Councilors who have transacted their municipal business for the past three years without an election, as at the poll held on Monday Reeve W. G. Connolly was returned for a fourth term, and with him three of his old Councilors: Nelson Hawn, Basil Saunders and Harry Hollingsworth.

The big surprise at the summing up of the votes was the defeat of John W. Doar, a Councilor for the past three years and one who has spent his time lavishly improving the roads and drains throughout his division. He now makes way for John McIntosh, a new candidate. John Sharp, the second new man on the ballot, failed by 9 votes of grasping the fourth chair in the municipal assembly.

The total votes are as follows:—

For Reeve
W. G. Connolly ..... 294
R. H. Stapleford ..... 116

For Councilors
Nelson Hawn ..... 268
John G. McIntosh ..... 244
Basil Saunders ..... 200
Harry Hollingsworth ..... 191
John Sharp ..... 182
John W. Doar ..... 166

(First four elected.)

Squibographs

Many juveniles scout the popular belief that the days before Christmas are the best of the year.

The "Mint" group" promise to add spice to the proceedings of session opened at Ottawa.

"Mint" is not what it is declared in an article in a cooking column. It never was a Western civilization is headed by China. American was robbed by Chinese bandits.

A mouse with a double ear was shot in New Brunswick on a day. The freak artists would unique hat rack.

The alfalfa effect is maintained. The recent change of premiers in Alberta from Greenfield to Brown is a matter of shade.

Premier Briand, of France, has been in and out of so many cabinets that he is liable to pass himself entering and departing.

Putting the "bunch" in civic politics can be overdone. A Stratford alderman has been sentenced to a month in jail for assault.

Prisoners in Ontario jails are to be given a more varied diet. In future porridge will only be served at the morning and evening meals.

Hair net imports have dropped seventy-five per cent. since bobbed hair came in vogue. An occasional hairpin is used when a buttonhook is not available.

Permanent summer time has been established in Great Britain. It would be a great achievement if the authorities could make summer weather permanent.

The number of hairdressing shops in the United States has increased in five years from 5000 to 22,000. No decrease is noted in the number of bald heads.

The King of Siam who died recently will not leave as many widows as his father. That amorous old sovereign is reputed to have had in the neighborhood of two thousand wives.

When all the lots in Florida are sold residents of the border state of Georgia fear an invasion. Marching through Georgia was never a popular tune with the natives of the state.

Five thousand Christmas pudding are included in the cargo of an Atlantic liner shipped from England to New York. There is considerable curiosity to know if they are saturated with brandy sauce.

German scientists are reported to have discovered a process for liquefying coal. It would be a great convenience if the furnace could be stoked with a few squirts of liquid coal instead of dumping a scuttle.

Lumbermen employed in Northern Ontario woods complain that their lives are in danger. The woods are full of hunters equipped with high-powered rifles and the whizzing of bullets past their heads disturbs the meditations of the lumberjacks.

Police dogs are not endowed with a keener scent than the suspicious customs officials who discovered that a shipment of Canadian turkeys to the American Thanksgiving market contained contraband liquor. Instead of being stuffed with the customary sage and onions, the interior decoration of the birds was composed of Scotch and rye.

Canadian Christmas trees crossing the line this season must pay a duty of ten per cent. Last year the United States Treasury let them in free under the official description of "Sticks in the rough." This seemed too coarse a term to apply to a festooned and tinselled forest product and the tariff experts slapped on a tax.

The Eskimos are said to have the finest and most regular sets of teeth in the world and are exempt from ordinary tooth troubles. According to an authority, they use their teeth not only for chewing food, but for softening leather, shaping soft copper and other useful tasks. They masticate their moccasins as well as their meat.

While chugging gas boats are replacing the romantic gondolas that made Venice famous a Florida company has ordered twenty-five of the canal craft for service on the Everglades of the flowery state. While gay gondoliers are paddling through the murky waters of a Florida swamp the passengers can amuse themselves by feeding grapefruit to the alligators.
