

While here we are pleased with a good crop. The man may have a fall who is willing to toil. And vain were his search for a happier state. While blessings as numerous encircle his door.

Frangie indeed would it be, if a land like our own. Where our roses, though late, are sweetest when blown.

Though our winters are long, and sometimes severe. But lend us to summers delightfully clear. Should be less attractive, because of its cold. Then lands full of vices—though teeming with gold.

But prosperous as Canada always hath been, This year is the best that she ever hath seen, And now she is wreathing a laurel to wear. That nations may one day be anxious to share.

Her prosperous condition will appear very plain. Where her farmers get a dollar and a quarter for grain. While all their productions so readily sell. At prices which now pay them equally well.

To many, it doubtless may seem very queer. Why Dry Goods are cheap and Provisions so dear, It is true, notwithstanding, which our patrons may see, By calling on Young Street "One Hundred and Three."

While many must know, an advance very great, Has been made in the value of woollens of late, Yet our flannels and blankets will quickly appear, Quite as low as the prices we offered last year.

Our Bonnets and Cloaks have been tastefully made, With a prospect of greatly increasing our trade, And our Shawls and our Furs will at once please the eye. And induce even the most fastidious to buy.

Our manner of business is extensively known, The lowest price asked, with the article shown, And such, we determine, shall continue to be, The unceasing practice at ONE HUNDRED AND THREE.
