Some of the London cab-drivers are not above the playing of practical jokes. A few days since, some wealthy but parsimonious ladies in one of the suburbs attended a lecture.

When they came out the pavements were wet, and several persons stood about the door holding open umbrellas.

The ladies hailed cabs, and, after making a sharp bargain with the drivers, rode home, discovering afterward that there was not a drop of rain.

The cabbies had turned several pails of water upon the pavement in front of the lecture-hall, and had held umbrellas over their heads to give the ladies an idea that it was raining.

SOME men are born great, some achieve greatness, and some become city clerks.

THE difference between repartee and impudence is the size of the man who says it.

"You cannot possibly follow your profession more than five or six years longer," said the physician. "I have known it for a long time." "Then you ought to have told me long ago," exclaimed the star actor rising in great wrath. "You have cheated me out of several farewell seasons."
