

To take a tablespoonful every third hour. Beef tea and milk to be given ad libitum.

May 6th.—Passed a very restless night. To continue the mixture and take pulv opii gr. ij. at bedtime.

May 7th.—Patient slept for several hours after taking the opiate—ordered pulv opii gr. j. at bedtime. To discontinue the mixture.

May 8th.—Slept for three hours last night, but towards morning became very restless and violent. The mixture to be repeated. From this time till the 16th he continued to take the bromide mixture alone, and was discharged cured on that day.

S. F., 23, labourer, admitted into hospital June 22nd, under the care of Dr. Black. His friends state that he has always enjoyed good health, and has never been addicted to drinking till lately. Had been ailing for nine or ten days, but delirium did not set in until two or three days before he was admitted. At the time of his admission he was very restless and violent—face flushed and pulse very frequent. Ordered—

Potass. Bromidi $\bar{\text{z}}$ ij.

Aqua $\bar{\text{z}}$ iv. M. ft. mist.

To take a tablespoonful every third hour.

June 23rd.—Passed a very restless night, and to-day became so violent as to require confinement in a straight jacket. To continue the mixture.

June 24th.—Slept for a few hours last night, and to-day feels much better. The restlessness, to a great extent, has passed off, and he is much calmer. To continue the mixture.

June 27th.—Has been rapidly improving, and now feels quite well.

June 28th.—Discharged, cured.

The following case of gunshot wound of the arm and shoulder, is one of great interest, as a remarkably good example of the beneficial effects of conservative surgery, as well as a good illustration of the antiseptic plan of treatment by means of carbolic acid, so ably advocated by Lister of Glasgow and Adams, of London. The extent of the injury was so great that any attempt at saving the limb would have been looked upon by most surgeons as perfectly useless. Dr. Jennings, however, considered the attempt worth trying, and the result has certainly been most gratifying.

J. G., 26, seaman, admitted April 14th, 1868, under the care of