endowment of nine new Episcopal Sees, and that notwithstanding the exercise of severe economy in fixing the revenues of the new Sees, the fund may now be considered as exhausted, while at the same time the increase of emi-gration demands not only the formation of new dioceses, but the subdivision of those already formed, without the Possibility of dividing the endowments at the same time. An anecdote is in circulation in an adjoining county relative to the Bishop of Hereford, which we give on common report. It had been announced that Bishop Hampdan den would preach at Abergavenny, at which place he recently officiated for the late Bishop of Llandaff, who unable, owing to illness, to go through the duties of rdination The announcement drew numbers of Dissenters to church "to hear," as they said, "their Bishop;" when, to their astonishment and infinite annoyance, his lordship preached on the sin of schism. Since this occur-rence the Dissenting party call Dr. Hampden a "Tracta-tian."—Gloucestershire Chronicle.

should the counsels of the State, and its powers, be in the heads and hands of men whose whole art of government consists in disguising the emptiness of the one by filling the other? "Going, going, going!" is the auctioneer's emphatic announcement, as he "knocks down" each lot; and "going mine and "knocks down" each lot; and "going mine and "knocks down" each lot; and "going mine and "knocks down" is the shout of going, going, going "— ahead," to wit,—is the shout of the Whigs, while "knocking down," as fast as they can,

What have the Whigs done, what are they doing, to ad-Nance the interest of the Queen, and of her kingdom? Where are we to look for the equivalent due to the Sovereign Where are we to look for the equivalent due to the Sovereign and to the nation, for the salaries they draw, and the pickings of office which they bestow upon their myrmidons? Where for compensation for the boundless mischief they occasion in every department of the State, and in evey province of the empire? That Lord John Russell and his colleagues should, in the pitiful strait to which they have brought themselves by their misconduct, be reckless enough not to care whether there be a State left, to govern, after they shall have left office, is—considering what a "pack of traitor loons" they are—perfectly intelligible. But is it advisable for Her Majesty to let them play on their despenate game, till they have lost Her all? Is it right for the holemen and gentlemen of England to stand by with folded arms, and see their Queen robbed of her prerogatives, and stripped of her dominions, one after another? Look abroad upon the vast extent of our Colonial possessions. Whither shall we turn and our faces not gather blackness? What is it that mars in the bud the prosperity of our Australian settlements, to which but a few short years ago all eyes were hopefully directed? What, but the want of an intelligent and consistent Government, acting upon principles understood and tested by experience? Why instead of fostering their industry by giving them a fair chance in our markets, do we turn them adrift upon the world, teaching them to love and honour, not the country them which they derive their existence, but any country from which they derive their existence, but any country with which they may trade to better advantage? Why, instead of setting up among them our tried, time-honoured institutions, do we leave to the chapter of accidents the form which their social condition may assume? Why, instead of infusing into them the sterling character, and the honest industry of our home population, do we swamp them with endless importations of convicts of Irish vagrants? Why, instead of planting in them the National Church, divinely of planting in them the National Church, divinely ed to the office of instructing the people and educating ing generation, do we leave them to languish in all although innorance, and cast the superior of th at heathemsh ignorance, and cast themapon the mischie-ous teaching of the false and superstitious Church of Rome? How stands the case with regard to our Indian empire? What has become of that inexhaustible source of wealth, as appeared to our fathers, and to ourselves at no distant lod of time? What is the reason that subdued provinces

What, again, is the condition of our West the possession all. The restrict of the possession all. The restrict of the possession all the possession all the possession and refuse to abate a single shilling from the price created, and refuse to abate a single shilling from the price at which they have undertaken, through their cousins and at which they have undertaken, through their cousins and at which they have undertaken and in the world. The result is the proposed condition the world. retainers, to mismanage the finest colonies in the world. The result is a state of perpetual conflict between the governors and the governed; an interruption of all the ordinary business of government and legislation; a cessation of all public confidence, and an utter prostration of all public energies. Confidence, and an utter prostration of all public energies and a desperate resolve, ever and anon rising in the minds and a desperate resolve, ever and anon rising in the minds and a chamefully maltreated and cruelly oppressed population, of a chamefully maltreated and cruelly oppressed population, to dissolve a connexion which robs them of the last chances of recovering the prosperity of which it has proved the bane.

And if we cross over from the islands to the main land what three meets our eye? A most ancient and most oval province in a state bordering on rebellion. And wherefire? Because loyal subjects, those who staked there lives, and spilt their blood, for the maintenance of British and spilt their blood, for the maintenance of British and spilt their blood. there lives, and spilt their blood, for the maintenance of British rule, are trampled under foot and insulted while the rebels whom they aided in reducing to obedience, are set on high in the Government and the Legislature, and spilt the Transformation, the touching mys-

will ever again be set right. And while the nation's property is undeermined, while gains are diminished and losses increased, the grinding pressure of a substitute of the set ses increased, the grinding pressure of manifold conditions. Unatteriated by the retrenchment of a single shilling which the Whigs can contrive to convey to their own capacious

But worse, and far more dangerous to the nation's wealth and to the security of the Crown, than all the injuries inflicted on the commerce and the industry of the land, is the corruption infused, with cunning worthy of the arch-fiend himself, into the vitals of the nation's life. The rising generative presented by the deadly drug of godless knowledge. eration poisoned by the deadly drug of godless knowledge, and the Church crippled in her action, and defiauded of her principles, by the intrusion into her offices of men who disbelieve her creed and despise her constitution. The foundation of the throne the Christian character of our institudation of the throne, the Christian character of our institutions, and the religious recognition of the Queen's supremacy, cut away to please the Jesuit, and to curry favour with the Jew. The land defiled by the abomination of idolatrous rites, and desecrated by the open breach of the first command which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His world after its creamand which the Almighty gave to His with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with us, for that His Temples and His Priests, though all with

And all this for what? That the Whigs may continue to enjoy the sweets of power and the emoluments of office; that they may continue to indulge their inveterate malice against the principles they hate, and against the institutions by which there are by which those principals are maintained. At the end of all this there is a fearful question — a question the solution of which belongs in an especial manner to the Royal mind. When the British empire shall have been stripped of its colonies, and England's people reduced to pauperism, to please the Free-traders — when Ireland shall have been torn please the Free-traders — when Ireland shall have been torn from the sister isle, and the Church of England made an inclean hold of heresy and Erastianism, to please the Papists — when the last trace of this kingdom being a "religious" kingdom, shall have been effaced, to please the Free-thinkers and the Jews — when the principles which placed Her Majesty's family on the throne, shall have been abolished, and the pledges of Her Coronation oath frittered away — what, for all this demolition and desecration, will the Whigs offer to indemnify England's Queen 3—John Bull. Whigs offer to indemnify England's Queen 1-John Bull.

Not, however, bound together by the irrevocable and presumptuous vows of popery, but united in the easy bonds of Christ, by brotherly love, holy zeal, self-denying charity, and for a limited season, perhaps, from time to time, by christian vows. I could imagine also the holy and beautiful Temple, almost hidden amongst the trees, and looking in the primitive simplicity of its Architecture and ver the majestic richness of its material and M. Why should the counsels of the State, and its powers, be in the heads and heads of men whose whole art of government. own souls?" Truly so, but surely not to their own good only? No, I could not but think that the lounging raftsmen as they floated down that sweet stream, and the busy farmer as he drove along its pleasant banks, would be made more thoughtful men by their continually hearing the praises and prayers of those, whom, they could not but sometimes recoilect were after all, mere men,—men of like passions, hopes, fears, and destinies with themselves, and with whom they also, busy as they now were in the world and perhaps altogether forgetful of God and eternity, must one day attend at the same Bar to be indeed.—And blessed. No longer would such villages as those I have lately passed through, be without the regular services of the Church of Christ, administered by those who have His commission, and in the right improvement of which therefore His promises would be pledged to bless. No bed of sickness would be unvisited, no widow uncomforted, no orphan unprotected, for the Church of the Comforter—the Church of him who is the Husband of the widow and the Fatherless would be in its efficiency! And surely none but the infidel will deny that the united. faithful offering of the morning and evening sacrifice of praise and prayer, with all the other devotions and labours of love, by which such a Christian Brotherhood, would be distinguished, whilewould presenting the Bride of the Lamb in her purity and earnestness of love to the eyes of the unthinking multitude, also draw down a peculiar blessing not only upon their works of temporal mercy, but more especially upon their unwearied efforts to extend the spiritual kingdom of the Redeemer, till the "spirit should be poured upon them from on high, and judgment dwell in the wilderness, and righteousness remain in the fruitful field." Yes, it requires no prophets' eye to see, that far as the influence of such holy and primitive establishments could reach, even long before in this new country parochial clergymen could be settled, such disgraceful meeting houses, as those of which I have spoken, would shortly give place to the beautiful temples of our Zion; to which how blessed to think. His promise would be pledged that in them "His eye and His heart should dwell!" Alas, why should these things be only as a pleasant dream? why should these things be only as a pleasant dream?

HALSEYS FOREST WINE AND PILLS. THIRTY LIVES SAVED!

No example on record furnishes a greater proof of the efficacy of any medicine in Cholera than the following from Capt. John Wilson, commander of the Steamboat Swifsture, while on her passage up the Mississippi river. Capt Wilson is well known by many in the Western Country as a highly respectfully and humana man. is well known by man, respectable and humane man.

Lewisville, July 1st, 1849

Dear Sir, - The ravages of the Cholera in every part of our country impels me as a duty I owe to humanity, to make known what your Forest Pills and Wine have done in this dreadful disorder on board of my vessel. On the 10th of June while on my way from new Orleans to Lewisville, as master while on my way from new Orleans to Lewisville, as master of the Steamer Swifture, the Cholers broke out on board with great severity. On the first appearance of it three per sons were attacked; being no physician present I gave them such medicines from my medicine chest as I thought best. Two out of the three, however, died. On the following day even more was taken, and great alarm prevailed among the passengers. I was then informed that a quantity of your medicines were on board the Steamer, belonging to one of the passengers, Mr. J. M. Prime of New Orleans. With a deterpassengers, Air. J. Al. Frime of New O.F. ans. With a determination to do all in my power to save the lives of my fellow beings, I lost no time in procuring of Mr. Prime two dozen boxes of the Pills, and as many bottles of the Forest Wine. To each of those who had the disorder, I gave five of the Pills, and as soon as they began to operate well, two table spoonshut of the Wine, repeating the dose of Wine fave or six times during twenty-four hours. This, to the surprise and joy of all on board, proved effectual, and they all recovered. More new cases continued to occur daily, until the whole number reached to thirty-three. I followed up the same course, giving the Pills and Wine also were the feet of the same course, giving the Pills and Wine always in the first stages, of the disease, and in every case they proved completely successful. Out of the thirty three cases which occurred during the passage, but two were last, and those two died before your medicinese were known to be on board the boat. Thirty cases were treated with your Pills and Forest Wine, and was the only medicine given them all of whom recovered and was the only medicine given them, all of whom recovered, and enjoyed good health during the remainder of the passage'

From my own experience, I am satisfied that not one person out of a thousand would die with the Cholera, if they would but take your Pills and Forest Wine in its first stages.

Yours, &c. JOHN WILSON, Commander of the Steamer Swiftswe. TO THE LADIES. Nothing in the world is more absurd than the custom of using paints, chalks &c., to improve the countenance A such things instead of beautifying the complexion, display in such things instead of beautifying the complexion, display of affected gaudiness quite unbecoming and disgusting; beside, the frequent use of cosmeticks destroy the fine texture of the skin, giving it a coarse, palid, unnatural east. True headty and loveliness accompany the highest perfection of headth which again invariably follows the PUREST STATE OF THE BLOOD. What artificial appendages equal that vivid expression of countenance which eminates from blooming health? What paints compare with the crimson colored blood casting its brilliant roseate bue through the transparent texture of the skin? What clarms are more captivating than those of nature, in her highest perfection? Let Dr. Hasley's Forest Wine supply the place of all cometicks. The use of this Wine supply the place of all cosmeticks. The use of this excellent wine for a short time creates pure, rich blood which coursing through the veins, penetrates the minutest fibres that virge toward the surface of the Skin, causing all unhealthy pimples and blotches to disappear, importing a vivid rosy colour to the skin, and brilliant expression of the eyes. THIS IS NATURAL BEAUTY.

NEW YORK, JULY 7TH, 1849.

DR. G. W. HALSEY.—

My sister, from her youth, had been in very delicate health, complaining frequently of weakness of the chest, attended with a cough. About the age of eighteen she house to ac-Forest Wine and Pills, which she commenced using according to the directions. She gradually improved as she followed up the use of them. Her first ayunptoms of recovery was an uncommonly good appetite, her face finally became smooth, and her checks rosy. Her cough left her sliogether. She is now strong and vigorous, and presents the finest example of health I ever witnessed.
