TEXTS AND THOUGHTS FOR EVERY

FEBRUART 4 .- SEPTUAGESIMA SUNDAY. 1. God said. Let us make man in our image.

after our likeness. Gen. i. 26. God would not dwell alone: he would surround himself with other beings; and of away. 1 Cor. iz. 27. these on the earth the chief is man. He is made in the image of God, inasmuch as and choosing between good and evil; and in the three-fold nature of his being, spirit, soul and body; "in our image, after our likeness." Grant me, Lord, to be renewed after thy image in all divine knowledge, in righteousness and true holiness.

2 The Lord God formed man out of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the reath of life; and man became a living soul.

How wonderful that the dust of the ground should compose this body, so cornous, intricate, delicate, and skillfully arranged! How wonderful that it should be capable of life and motion and of working with and under a soul! How wonderful the mutual action of soul and body on each other; and the means by which the soul acquires, through the body, the knowledge of outward things, and directs both it and them! Let me glorify God in my body and in my spirit, which are his-

1. Let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowls of the air, and over the cattle and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. Gen. 1, 26.

Not one of them but acknowledges the hand of man. Not one which he cannot subdue when it opposes him. Few that I in this respect no distinction from those he cannot make to execute his will. But this dominion is not innate in man; it is us consider that all reward is of the free given or entrusted to him. And yet how unmerited mercy of God; and that, if has man abused it! Scarcely a creature treated according to our descrts, we should he has employed which he less not made subject to the bondage of corruption by making it the instrument or the subject of his evil passions. Let me ever use the creatures to the glory of Him who has given me dominion over them.

2 Male and female created be them. Gen. i. 27. Endowing them with various and opposite gifts, boddy, intellectual and moral, that they might train each other up in love, and unite to train their offspring in the learand love of God, and in usefulness and affection to each other. How wonderful shall approve themselves to him who this balance and working together of dolorent powers to holy and eternal ends! Lord, grant me, whether man or woman, to see and understand the place which thou hast given me, and faithfully to Inbour in it to thy glory, to love and to good works.

1. And God rested on the seventh day from all his work which thed created and made. Gen.

Not that God required refreshment, but that on that day be finished and completed all the causes which were to work out all by itself, the account of the "ceremony" i events to the end of time, through all hisvarious dispensations. How wonderful the reach of that mind, which thousands of years before could dispose all the causes which were to produce millions of beings and make them work harmoniously to accomplish his predestined ends! Let me adore the infinite perfection of his nature, and cheerfully labour under him in my

2 And God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it. Gen. ii. 3.

He set it apart from common uses and for himself; and he made it a day of blessing libertified as a crazy nun, who after making her to those who should so set it apart for his service. And has it not been blessed to all who have homoured it as he has appropriately. Have they not become many many the property of her relations to have her placed under restraint, went about the country exhibit-ing herself from time to time in a fautastic attached to his service and more holy in | God." The facts are so clearly ascertained that themselves ! Revive, O Lord, in thy they have been laid before the Pope by a mem Christian people a reverence for thy holy days. when that was obtained he would know of the body: but that was not the worst death: he would cut the bond of union between himself and God, and his soul; would die. His heart would sink within him, and without the grace of forgiveness he could rise no more. Turn me back, O Lord, from seeking forbidden knowledge; but let me know more of good, and of that alone.

The Christian's prize is everlasting life, the following definition of these two ex--the completion of that divine life which tremes, and the middle path between them; man has recovered in Christ Jesus. But which we cheerfully accept with all his case differs from that of those who run thankfulness:"for the earthly prize; for of them only one can obtain it; but to every one of us the Church, and Rome is the Church without prize is open, and nothing but our own a religion, and Protestant Episcopacy is carelessness can deprive us of it. We have already a title to it; only let us not it, we are supposed to come up to the yield it up. May I be enabled steadily to keep in view this heavenly prize, Wherefore all, even the hohest, must keep a tight re-n over the body; for if we allow it to become our master, our fall and destruction is certain. Thence it is necessary, not only to he temperate, but even abstinent, in order o preserve the mastery of the soul. May I have grace to follow the example of St. Paul.

2. Call the labourers and give them their hire Matt. 11. 8.

We are but necessitous persons, dependng on the bounty of our heavenly Benefactor; yet he chooses to treat us like roluntary servants, labouring for lare; and the service which he has a right to require, ind which in itself is a blessing to us to ender, He bountifully rewards. Let me hen he a labourer in this vineyard. Let ne do whatever good I can in the church: or whatever I may do, so it be done to and for Him, will receive an eternal recompense.

1. Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own! Matt. xx. 15.

This is a warning well worth our heed ing. We are called to the heavenly glory ny bôing admitted into Christ's church of earth; and the call is continually renewed in the preaching of the word of God and the departure of our brethren in Christ. But those alone will be chosen at the last day, who shall be found in faith and turning of the heart unto God; who, when judged, knoweth all bearts. May I have hithichness and strength to make my calling and election sure.
