

Business of the House

Mr. Deputy Speaker: When shall the said bill be read a third time?

Some hon. Members: Next sitting.

Mr. Pickersgill: Perhaps we should hold it for the next sitting in case any hon. member who was not here this evening might wish to say something on third reading.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

Mr. Churchill: May we now hear about the business for tomorrow?

Mr. Pickersgill: Mr. Speaker, acting on the advice of the hon. member for Winnipeg South Centre, I am not going to ask the house to go on tomorrow with the resolution we were considering this evening. Instead I hope, unless there is any strong objection, that we could start with third reading of this bill to which we have given such careful consideration. Having done that, we would take the second reading and, I hope, all the other stages of the aeronautics bill, and then the bill on the Currency, Mint and Exchange Fund Act. If we make very good progress, there are two or three other bills which could be dealt with. There is No. 5 on today's order paper, regarding an agreement with the province of Ontario respecting public harbours; No. 7 the National Harbours Board Act; and No. 8, the Carriage by Air Act. These items standing in the name of the Minister of Transport might be disposed of. I think that will probably be enough; but if not, there are one or two other items on the order paper. Anyway, I hope the house will be prepared to go on with those items with which the government intends to proceed.

Mr. Churchill: No. 4?

Mr. Pickersgill: Yes, we could dispose of No. 4.

It being three minutes after ten o'clock the house adjourned, without question put.
