

REMARKS.

This Institution has been in operation more than six years, and has enjoyed a fair share of prosperity, affording advantages for the prosecution of study, which are seldom surpassed.

The Building is believed to be equal in point of convenience to any in the Province. It is pleasantly situated on the Main Street, in Milltown, St. Stephen, far enough from the business of the place to be entirely free from its noise. The rooms are large, and well furnished.

It has been the aim of the Trustees to secure the services of good Teachers, and they trust that they have not been altogether unsuccessful. Particular attention is given to those branches of knowledge, which are of the most general and practical importance; but facilities are also furnished for a course of English and Classical study, extending to the first and second years in College.

Since the foundation of this Institution, it has sent out more than sixty teachers, well fitted to take charge of the primary schools in the vicinity. It has thus been of great importance to the cause of popular education; its ever-spreading influence can hardly be estimated.

It is very desirable that Parents should realize the importance of their co-operation with the Teachers in the education of their children. By a little care on their part, punctual and constant attendance upon the exercises of the school may be secured. They should never suffer a child to be tardy or absent, except for the most urgent reasons. The occasional absence of a scholar from recitation materially retards his progress, by placing him behind his class, discouraging him in his efforts, and destroying his interest in his studies. He should be made to feel at home, as well as at school, that study is his great object, and that all other things must, as far as possible, yield to that. Parents can do much to encourage both Teachers and Scholars, by frequent visits to the school room. They thus show that they take some interest in the progress of the school, and add another inducement for the preparation of perfect lessons.
