President Roosevelt, after eulogizing the late President as a public man of iofiy integrity, a gallant soidier and a man of broad kindliness of nature, took up the question of Anarchy. tion of Anarchy.

Suppress Anarchists.

"The Anarchist is everywhere, not merely the enemy of systems of progress, but the deadly foe of liberty. It ever Anarchy is triumphant, its triumph will last but for ome red morn and, to be succeeded for ages by the gloomy night of despotism. No man or body of men preaching Anarchistic doctrines should be allowed at large any more than if preaching the murder of some specified private individual. Anarchistic speeches, writings and meetings are essentially seditious and treasonable. I carnestly recommend to the Congress that, in the exercise of its wise discretion, it should take into consideration the coming into this country of Anarchists or persons professing principles hostile to all government, and justifying the marder of those placed in authority. Such individuals as those who not long ago gathered in as those who not long ago gathered in open meeting to glorify the murder of King Humbert of Italy perpetrate a crime, and the law should ensure their rigorous punishment. They and those like them should be kept out of this country; and if found here, they should be promptly deported to the country whence they came, and far-reaching provision should be made for the punishment of those who stay. No matter calls more urgently for the wisest thought of the Congress. Anarchy is a crime against the whole human race, and all mankind should band against the Anarchist. His crime should be made an offence against the law of nations, like piracy and that form of man-steeling known as the slave-trade, for it is of far blacker infamy than either. It should be so declared by either. It should be so declared by treaties among all civilized powers. Such treaties would give to the Federal government the power of dealing with the crime."

Industrial Conditions. The message referred to the abounding mesperity of the country, and says of in-ustrial conditions:

"The tremendous and highly complex industrial development which went on with ever-accelerated rapidity, during the latter half of the nineteenth century, brings us face to face, at the beginning of the twentieth, with very serious social problems. The old laws and the old customs, which had almost the binding force of law, were once onlies afficient to regulate the accumulquite sufficient to regulate the accumulation and distribution of wealth. Since the industrial changes which have so enormously increased the productive power of mankind they are no longer sufficient. It is not true that, as the rich have grown richer, the poor have grown poorer. On the contrary, never before has the average man, the wage-worker, the farmer, the small trader been so well-off as in this country, and been so well-off as in this country, and at the present time. There is a wide-spread conviction in the minds of the American people that the great corporations, known as trusts, are, in certain of their features and tendencies, hurtful to the general welfare. This springs from no spirit of envy or uncharitableness, nor lack of pride in the great industrial achievements that have placed this country at the head of the nations struggling for commercial supremacy. It does not rest upon a lack of intelligent appreciation of the necessity of meeting changing and changed conditions of trade with new meeffort to accomplish great things is necessary when the world's progress demands that great things be done. It demands that great things be done. It is based upon sincere conviction that combination and concentration should be, not prohibited, but supervised and within reasonable limits controlled, and in my judgment this conviction is right. Corporations engaged in interstate commerce should be regulated if they are found to exercise a license working to the public injury.

working to the public injury.

"The first essential in determining how to deal with the great industrial combinations is knowledge of the facts—publicity. In the interest of the public the government should have the right to inspect and examine the workings of the great corporations engaged in inter-state business. Publicity is the only sure remedy which we can now invoke. What further remedies are needed in the way of governmental regulation, or taxition, can only be determined after publicity has been obtained by process of law and in the course of administration. The first requisite is knowledge, which may be made public to the world."

Other means of regulating trusts were

ON MORE SIDES THAN ONE.

Among other things, Mr. Charlton said: "The day swiftly approaches when positive action in the expansive direction on the part of the United States will be necessary to avert positive action in the repressive direction on the part of Canada. The Canadian desires broad, liberal and friendly trade relations, but these conditions in the near future must exist on more than one side.

"The fraternity of feeling and interests that existed under the old reciprocity treaty have passed from recollection, except on the part of a small per cent. of the old men who were then living. The tendency velop bitterness of spirit, springing from supposed injuries, the result of grasping action, embodied in a tariff that sought to set aside the first principle of commercial intercourse, by refusing to make exchanges and seeking, thru a policy of exclusion, to sell much and buy little.

"Canada is prepared for any reasonable arrangements about trade policies that will be mutually advantageous, and that will tend to develop commerce and ensure enduring peace. To this end, and for the that "reciprocity must be treated as the handmaiden of protection."

Roosevelt's First Message.

The President's message began:

has existed since the Union was formed. Diversities of soil, of climate, There is naturally some dissa of interests or of conditions, as great between different groups of States as between the United States and Canada, have existed and still exist. Diversified conditions have not been permitted to lead to any restriction whatever upon interstate commerce. Unmixed blessings have followed the application of this free trade system, and, as the extent of taining to the system became more apparent.

"The trade principle that applies to all the States of the American Union coulá be extended to the British American provinces and territories with precisely the same results, and, while the two countries are likely to retain their separate autonomy, it is in the interest of each to apply, to the greatest possible extent, the system that governs the relations of the American states to each other, and to secure, to the greatest attainable extent, the material advantages that would result platitudes.

"We certainly have no fault to find," says The Times, "with his language towards the British government, or, indeed, with his foreign policy generally. It is not easy to see how the exclusion policy can be enforced. The United States would to-day be poorer in many of the finest elements of its national character if an entrance fee had been demanded of every settler in the early days of coionization."

MARRIED FIVE TIMES.

Orangeville has a fine sample of a gallant bridegroom. William Clegg, aged 88, was the oldest man in Windsor, died this mornmarried on Wednesday last in the Dufferin County capital to Mrs. Fleming, who is his fifth wife. The happy bridegroom was born at Pilley, near Sheffield, England, and has been in Canada nearly 60 years, living most of the time in Oncida Township. His first wife died in England, and the other four were Canadians. The two last wives were widows. Mr. Clegg is a living witness of the truth that all marriages are not failures. He probably holds the record for alliances of a matrimonial nature, and that alliances of a matrimonial nature, and that

At the same time, the papers recognize its conservative and business-like moderation and that no attempt has been made, as The Morning Post remarks, "to strike an attitude or to carry his listerers away."

London, Dec. 3.—Dr. Alexander Graham was arrested this afternoon by Detective Rider on a charge of murder. The jury last inguit brought in a verdict that the infant child of Annie Kilbourne came to its death by premature birth, caused by Dr. Alexander Graham, with the consent of the mother, and there was nothing left for the crown authorities to do but order the doctor's arrest.

The doctor took the matter coolly, and weighty matters discussed, regard it as says: "On the morning of Aug. 22 six of diminish than to increase Europe's exaggerated dread of the American danger.
