

FOR EASTER DAYS

If you desire to keep the "Hoodoo Man" from trailing in your footsteps you will have to get a new spring hat.

That old shabby, winter-worn chapeau has been ordered in some time ago. There is nothing that helps to brighten up the spring so much as a new stiff or soft felt hat.

We are dealers in exclusive hats. We are sole agents for the greatest line of English and American makes — We are Canadian representatives for Henry Heath of London, England, maker to His Majesty the King, and for Dunlap of New York, who supplies hats for the Four Hundred of New York. All the designs for this spring are in.

SHOULD BOYCOTT BISLEY TO DEFEND ROSS RIFLE

That's What Col. Sam Says, and intimates That Col. Worthington Has Inspired Antagonism.

OTTAWA, March 2.—(Special).—The proceedings at the opening of the house-to-day were unusually interesting. Col. Sam Hughes took a fling at a recent rule passed by the National Rifle Association (Great Britain) which seems to be aimed at the Ross rifle, and suggested that until the rule was removed Canada should refuse to send a team to Bisley. But the colonel thinks conspirators in Canada are at the bottom of the trouble, and he had a little duel with Col. Worthington.

Up till now, said Col. Hughes, the rifle which Canadian marksmen used at Bisley had been unquarrelled, because the service arm of Canada was also the service arm of the mother country, but last year an attempt was made to prevent the use of the Ross rifle at Bisley. The N.R.A. this year had passed a new rule barring rifles other than the service rifle of Great Britain, unless one of the pattern had been deposited with the N.R.A. three months before the opening of the Bisley meet, and had been approved for use. This left it uncertain whether the Ross rifle would be used, the effect being that riflemen were afraid to purchase the Ross arm.

The adoption of this rule, Col. Hughes said, practically charged the Canadian Government with fraud. He would not charge that the rule had been framed to shut out the Ross rifle, but it had that effect. Col. Hughes pointed out that British marksmen at Bisley use a long rifle of the Lee-Metford or Lee-Enfield type, whereas the short rifle was the service weapon of the British army. The British rifle used at Bisley cost $50, while the Ross rifle is retailed at $85. The Ross rifle as a target arm had won the McKinnon Cup last year with a record score.

Government Should Protest.
No self-respecting association or government, he declared, would tolerate such treatment of its official rifle. The objections to it had been engineered by conspirators in Canada in the pay of the small arms companies of England. In order to discredit the Canadian rifle, so far as he was concerned not a Canadian rifleman should go to Bisley.

Dr. Reid: "How would you make them change the rule?"
"Let the Canadian boys stay at home," replied Col. Hughes, "until these gentlemen are brought to time." The British Government should be notified that the Ross rifle was the official arm, and that the production of a certificate by a Canadian rifleman that the rifle he proposed to use was the official arm of the Dominion should be sufficient.

Dr. Reid: "Hear, hear."
Major Currie (North Simcoe) said this was a question chiefly of sights. The matter was in a transitory state, and he considered that there should be practically free trade in rifles. Canada should insist that her riflemen be allowed to use their own rifle. The whole trouble was that the N.R.A.

insisted that everybody who wanted to go to England to shoot must go down into his pockets for an expensive Lee-Enfield or Lee-Metford.

Col. Worthington Explains.
Col. Worthington described the question introduced by Col. Hughes as a temper in a teapot. The real question at issue was whether or not the Ross rifle mark II, double star, was the standard arm of the Canadian militia. He declared it was not. Only five hundred of these rifles had been ordered, and they were issued only for competitive purposes.

Col. Hughes declared that letters had been written to the N.R.A. by Col. Worthington, not for the purpose of helping rifle shooting, but to prevent the use of the Ross rifle at Bisley.

Col. Worthington said any remarks upon, or stand against, the Ross rifle which he had made, had been for the purpose of placing at the service of the militia the best weapon possible.

Col. Hughes challenged him to get up and say that he had not inspired the N.R.A. Col. Worthington remained silent.

OFF TO ROME

Rev. Father O'Leary Leaves to Take Up Studies.

To fit himself to become a member of the teaching staff of the seminary to be established in Toronto, Rev. Father Athur O'Leary, parish priest of Collingwood and formerly assistant to Right Rev. Mons. McCann at St. Mary's Church, has left for Rome. The seminary is for the education of Catholic young men to the priesthood, to which Eugene O'Keefe contributed $10,000.

Before he left Collingwood Father O'Leary was presented by the people with a purse of gold. Rev. Father John M. Cruise, former secretary to Archbishop Dennis Coady, is also in Rome preparing for the seminary work.

Vocal Music in the Vernacular.
"I had rather speak five words with my understanding, than by my voice I might teach others also, than ten thousand words in an unknown tongue."
Many a sermon can be found in the words of a poet; and in our churches of how little value would our sermons be if spoken in a foreign tongue. Can there be a more serious reason for having all vocal music in our country sung in the vernacular? So long as the contrary system exists it is a direct detriment to our national musical art and we continue to prevent its progress. When English is demanded in all branches of vocal art our own composers, poets and dramatists will obtain that logical place in art which exists in all art-making and art-loving countries, and musical art in English-speaking lands will rise to the level of other lands. We must have our poets sung, for it is thought to which they have given expression which is an inspiration to music.—Eleanor Everest Freer.

Way Ahead of His Country.

"That's a Nicaraguan," whispered his assistant.
"Indeed! Does he contemplate using our car down in the tropical jungles?"

BLOOR STREET VIADUCT IS BIG LIVE ISSUE

Great Gathering in Danforth Hall Discuss Ways and Means—County News.

Citizens who may have thought that the adverse vote of January last on the Bloor-street viaduct had effectually dampened the ardor of east-enders toward that great project must have had their minds disabused if present at last night's big meeting in Danforth Hall, at the intersection of Danforth-avenue and Broadview.

In the numbers present, packing the building to the doors, in the enthusiasm manifested, and in the tremendous interest shown last night's meeting has never surpassed east of the Don. All the speeches, and there were a number of them, were to the point and punctuated with applause.

"We were aided in our struggle by the World alone," said President Frankland, of the Ratepayers' Association, "and the press of the city, but for this exception either stood in favor of the project at the last municipal election. A resolution to that effect submitted to the meeting was carried with a rush."
"We were aided in our struggle by the World alone," said President Frankland, of the Ratepayers' Association, "and the press of the city, but for this exception either stood in favor of the project at the last municipal election. A resolution to that effect submitted to the meeting was carried with a rush."

The chairman then threw some red-hot shovels into the sacred precincts of the Guild of Civic Art.

"Here is a body which meets once in about two years, generally after a luncheon or wherever they feel like it, and they do a very convenient to meet just before the last general municipal election to assist in knocking the Bloor-street viaduct, Spoil the scenery of the Don Valley forsooth. A lot they know about art," said President Frankland. "And a few fellows up in Rosedale who want to remain in retirement at the expense of the general public presume to dictate to us whether or no we shall have a great public utility," said the chairman amid volleys of cheers. "Isn't the workingman as good as the man in Rosedale," said the chairman, while the big crowd thundered their approval.

The statement thrown out by Controller Foster, that some of them members of the board of control looked upon the project as one for local improvement, was frowned down.

"All the big works in the west end were paid for out of the general rate," said Controller Foster, "why not the Bloor-street viaduct, which is eminently a city project?" The increase in values alone would pay for the cost of the bridge. The question was now as to the most opportune time for the submission of the bylaw.

Later, at the suggestion of Controller Foster, the resolution requiring the aldermen to vote for the submission of the measure at the next municipal election was held in abeyance. But this was in no sense intended to convey the impression that the bylaw would not be again submitted at that time.

Ex-Controller Hubbard made a rattling good speech, taking up the question along broad lines, and evoking great enthusiasm. "We don't want the Walsley-street route," said the ex-controller, "we want the Bloor-street viaduct out and out. We want a great thru street, and Bloor-street is the truly great thru line. With the absorption of the great downtown district, where were the people going to? The Guild of Civic Art was in a measure responsible for the defeat of the bylaw. The charge of the man in Rosedale were responsible for urging on the project was ridiculous. I am no speculator," said he. "I have bought property, but I never had a foot in the Bloor-street project."

animated by personal motives, and that Mr. Maclean would benefit directly, was absurd and unfair. The city at large will benefit, and Mr. Maclean will benefit probably less than any man favoring the measure. The World is always found on the side of progress," said the ex-controller.

Ald. Hilton, Ald. Phelan and Ald. Clinton avowed their hearty support of the bylaw, the some difference of opinion existed as to the better time for its submission. Each of the representatives agreed that a policy of education was essential before another vote was taken, and this will be done.

W. W. Hiltz, in the course of a practical speech, urged a policy of education, and charged that the bridge could be built for a great deal less money than the city engineer's estimate would indicate. This view was also borne out by others, and a motion to secure an independent estimate by a competent engineer was unanimously carried.

NORTH TORONTO.

NORTH TORONTO, March 2.—(Special).—It is currently reported that Waddington & Grandy have disposed of their big coal, wood and lumber yards at the corner of Merton and Yonge-streets, to the Milne Coal Co. of the city for $15,000. The property was acquired some years ago by the present owners, but no action was ever taken toward improving it until last fall, when Waddington & Grandy erected large coal houses. It was regarded as certain that with the establishment of the coal and wood business by the firm at this point that they had received assurances of the opening up of the old G. T. E. belt line, but so far no progress has been made. Rumor also credits the appointment of Mr. Waddington, with his retirement from the coal and wood business, to the position of manager of the Reliance Loan and Savings Co., succeeding the late Mr. Blackstock. Mr. Wad-

RIGHT TO EXPROPRIATE IS MUCH TOO DANGEROUS

One of Objections Registered to St. Lawrence Transmission Company Bill.

OTTAWA, March 2.—The St. Lawrence Power Transmission Company bill was still further mauled to-day by members of the railway committee, who feared that the desired privileges of expropriation and power export were dangerous to the public interest.

Mr. P. Graham, speaking as M.P. for Brockville, declared that that city was in sore need of a transmission line, whether the allied project—the Long Sault dam project—went forward or not. He also advocated that the company be privileged to import power.

Dr. Reid objected to the clauses on amalgamation and power export, and Robb, of Huntingdon, thought the municipalities should be consulted as to expropriation, and the railway board given control of rates. Major Sharpe believed the scheme would interfere with the extension of the Ontario Government's power lines in eastern Ontario, while R. A. Pringle, Cornwall, said the hydro-electric commission was not prepared to enter the district.

Leighton McCarthy, the counsel for the company, agreed to eliminate the power export clause, but an amend-
