"The Man of the Hour." A good many managers wonder how William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer contrive to make their successes profitable season after season. Perhaps it is because they play fair with the public. One of their shows is as good the last time it comes as the first. They keep their trade mark glistening, for they intend to use it a long time. There are standard goods in theatricals as in manufactures—as for ex-

new play; Robert Mantell in Shakespearean repertoire; Thomas A. Wise and Douglas Fairbanks in "A Gentleman From Mississippi," and four companies on tour in different parts of the country; Tim Murphy in a new play; Wright Lorrimer in "The Shepherd King"; the everlasting pastoral play, "Way Down East," and two companies in George Broadhurst's new play, "The Dollar Mark."

The presentation of "The Man of the Hour" in this city, which begins an engagement of one week at the Grand beginning Monday Matinee will be particularly interesting because it brings several of the well known players who have been identified heretofore only with the long runs in New York, Boston and Chicago.

Altho the long-sought freedom from Street Railway tyranny is denied, Toronto still has reason to support Sir James for has he not left us our reliable genuine 30-day Syl-labic Short-hand Institute—even our Moon College—where our young men and women can secure the best that can be had in Stenography with only 30 days' study. Surely this an asset to Toronto, and hundreds will think kindly of Sir James as they enroll with this famous, reliable, genuine 30-day Short-hand College, and secure good posi-ample "The Man of the Hour" and "Way Down East." They have three companies on tour in "The Man of the Hour," acting in as many different divisions of territory, and each company of equal strength with the two others. Indeed, the cast of all three were made up in such a manner that the companies could be switched at any time. Messrs. Brady and Grismer control such stars as Grace George, in "A Woman's Way"; Nat C.
