BASEBALL AND GETTING RICH

Some Remarks by Connie Mack on the Question of Big Profits From Game

Connie Mack, manager, and half owner of the Athletics, has unexpectedly become eloquent long enough to deny the generally accredited assertion that baseball magnates are becoming wealthy off the "dear public." Connie also sounds a warning of the big fact that the Athletics have not paid a cash dividend in years notwithstanding that they have been world's champions of the diamond.

"Then I named the really man of whom I copied this. This was New Haven, former manager of the Baltimore and Brooklyn teams. Hamilton was player manager and club owner. I don't know who look carefully into his case we will find that Hamilton retired on the profits which he made out of real estate, rather than the profits from baseball.

"The immense growth of baseball has reached the point where, it has forced the club owners to sit up and think. The cost of building new plants, the large increase in salaries of players and the other expenses have grown to be a serious question with magnitude as to how it is to be done if they are going to get even a fair interest on their investments.

"We have been working for years for our purpose. That was to build a park that would take care of our patrons and then pay for it. We planned the venture at Shibe Park, three years before we left Columbia Park, and we have been at Shibe Park four years, during two of which we were world's champions.

"The situation in giving minor league as well as major league club owners a lot of thought. The problem will have to be met by each club according to its ideas of what is best for itself and its patrons.

"One of the reasons for the largely increased outcry to run a ball club is the men to their roster. There was a time when we were allowed to carry twenty-five men all the time and thirty-five men part of the time. If some of the club owners had their way we would be allowed to carry forty-five men. How they can stand it is more than I can see.

"I may never play ball again." "I was never in Montreal the other evening. I am disgusted with the action of the Detroit management and unless they raise their offer to him or give him his release on reasonable terms he will probably devote himself to a business proposition recently made to him.

"Detroit intends cutting down my salary so much," he said, "that it would pay me almost better even without any thing else to stick all the year round to my present business. I offered them first terms for my release, and they refused. And naturally they have me for life. Talk about your slavery."

WHAT A FALL WAR THERE. Blah—I understand he fell into a fortune. Slobbs—Not only into it, but right through it.—Philadelphia Record.

THAT ARTFUL WAY. "Excuse me, sir," said the well-dressed stranger, as he stepped inside the apartment, "is this Mr. Smart's office?" "No," replied the man at the desk rather angrily, "his office is upstairs, on the floor above."
