AGRICULTURE Notes and Suggestions of Practical Utility FOR THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY. Cleanings of Interest to Our Country Readers. Mixed manure work best. Keep the grass lands rich. Allow nothing to go to waste. No man needs a million dollars. Put in the drains at any depth. See that the harness does not pull. Never be ashamed of your attire. Economizing in labor seldom costs. It needs exercise to develop muscle. Colds especially need exercise daily. "Cleanliness" is a comparative term. A yard without shade looks beautiful. Eat only ripe fruit, but not decayed. The best feed makes the best manure. Every door opens to "wash" or "pull." The milk-bow, once lool, never returns. Subduing the soil makes farming easier. Good seedling is slow but sure sowing. Good shelter keeps off flies as well as sun. Always seek to lessen household burdens. Unpaid laborers make poor purchases. Set berries in the shade as fast as picked. What a fine boy and be sure it is genuine! A comfortable home is a strong attraction. Water plants sufficiently to reach the roots. A dirty dog prepares the way for another. All swampy places should be under-drained. Corn and oats are among the better foods. Strive to have a good supply of fruit in season. Hay is always sold off from the farm at a loss. Roughage not fit to feed may do for bedding. Run the plow deep and the cultivator shallow. Don't sell your hay or grain, but keep more stock. Gain and keep the confidence of your live stock. Cows, horses, sheep, goats and hens like clover. Every dairy farm should have a few sheep on it. Young stock should not be too much confined. The richer the soil, the better it stands through the winter. Learn from the past and prepare for the future. Eat no more than you can digest and assimilate. Sell before there ceases to be a profit in growth. The farm is an excellent school for the students. Don't feed corn to hens in summer; it is too heating. Rich pastures and meadows make rich plow lands. Don't depend so much on the miller for good feed. If you have sufficient food, sell some of your stock. Men in the dairy room are not as cleanly as women. Now is the season when milk cows need attention. Eternal vigilance is the price of good dairy products. Well-fed animals are generally quiet and contented. Be careful in small things; it often saves large costs. Plan work to make it easy for both men and teams. It is better to run unthreshed oats through the cutter than to thresh them. Conveniences are as good for the house as for the field. If grass is grown in the orchard manure for the two crops. Be provided with plenty of bedding for your animals. Keep the waste of the harvest reduced to the minimum. Everyone is clean according to his or her own conception. Expend both muscular and mental power to some purpose. Pick the cucumbers daily if you want the vines to bear well. In a rich soil, the roots are more vigorous and extend deeper. Loading is more dangerous than the "grippe" and more common. The sweet elder is hardy and makes a showy doorway bush. Too many people want to live by the sweat of other people's brows. Eat and drink only what you are reasonably sure will do you good. The man who knows it all does not progress but always complains. The older the animal, the more it costs to add a pound of live weight. Deliver us from the cheese factory which is made an assent to a pig pen. Cleaning away obstacles make possible the use of machinery on the farm. Fence stakes are easily stuck when the ground is too wet to cultivate. The best points of a good mutton sheep are good nutrition and plenty of it. There is the most profit in the first 100 pounds growth of the young animal. It is the progressive man who wants to learn, and succeeds best at farming. It is as foolish to waste labor as it is to waste any other thing of value.

PARAGRAPHS On All Subjects of Current Note at Home and Abroad. ANECDOTES, HAPPENINGS AND GENERAL COMMENTS. Clipped and Condensed for the Readers of The Globe. In the United Kingdom there is a library for 277,000 of its inhabitants. A professor shot a student the other day. He had come to the conclusion that it was the only way to get anything into his head. The President of the French Academy of Medicine offers to give to poor mothers for every child born during next year in his native town. London had already ten Sunday papers, and with the recent publication of the "Sunday Sun," edited by Mr. T. F. O'Connor, M. P., an eleventh competitor has entered the arena. A short time ago the aged sexton of the cemetery at Ceta, near Merthyr, died. A favorite dog sought for his master with unflinching patience, and then lay down by the grave and died. The Archdeacon of Essex has admitted Miss Clarke as churchwarden of North Elmcherry. In the adjoining parish of South Elmcherry the position of churchwarden has also been filled by a lady. A miserly woman got her living by lighting the Jews' Green on Saturdays and was known as a "Jew's poker," died from sheer want in Whitechapel. She had some hundreds of pounds invested in Consols. Liverpool takes more American cotton than all other ports in the world put together, and Manchester takes nineteenth. It manufactures about 3,000,000 bales of cotton annually. It is, in fact, the greatest manufacturing center in the world. Fifty thousand persons will be sent from Russia to Siberia as soon as the weather permits. One-third of this number consists of political prisoners, criminals and convicts, the remainder of their wives and families, who have voluntarily offered to accompany their relatives to exile. By means of the four telephone transmitters in Christ Church, Birmingham, the whole of the service—prayers, reading of lessons, hymns, anthems, and sermons—will be transmitted to the church. The cloth of the old Egyptians was so good that though it had been used for thousands of years as wrappings of the dead, it was still found to be as strong as when first made. It is all of linen, the ancient Egyptians considering wool unclean. Modern man has smaller ground for boasting of his "progress" in making cloth than the old Egyptians. It seems hardly possible to put any limits to the capabilities of Australia as a stock-raising country. The total number of cattle is now estimated at $500,000, an increase of over two and a half millions during the last fifteen years. During the same period the stock of sheep has risen from 100,000 to 1,000,000, or 10 million. New South Wales, Western Australia, and Queensland show the most marked improvement. The Treasury has decided that a Swedish couple who recently arrived in New York from Europe, and have been detained there on the ground that they are polygamists, fall within the prohibition of the act of 1855. It has accordingly ordered their return at the expense of the steamship company. This is the first time that a polygamist had been deported from landing in the United States. A company has been formed in New York "to manufacture sandwiches by the thousand." A centrifugal motor, with rollers, treats the meat which is in the centre and the bread which is on each side to a rapid slicing action, and the three items are then ejected in the form of a sandwich. The butter is laid on in rather an imaginative way by an extra revolution of the bread over the face of a butter-tub. There have been twenty-three Presidents of the United States; of these seven, namely, Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Lincoln, and Grant, have been chosen to serve second terms. It is curious to note their nationalities by descent. Three, Washington, Madison, and Lincoln, were English; three, Monroe, Jackson, and Grant, were Scotch; and one, Jefferson, perhaps "the noblest Roman of them all," was a Welshman. A bottle which had travelled between three and four thousand miles has been cast ashore on the coast of Florida. It was thrown into the sea by the captain of a barque in latitude 23° N., longitude 22° W. This was on March 11, 1887. The barque had made one or two voyages since then, and on arrival at Halifax a few days ago the captain received a letter from the Hydrographic Office in Washington saying that the bottle had been picked up on the Florida coast in latitude 27° 30' N., longitude 80° 20' W., on the 27th day of its travels. It had then journeyed no fewer than 3,320 miles, or an average of 12 miles a day. ADVERTISE IN THIS PAPER.

JINGLES OF REMOVAL. A Little Nonsense Gathered for Leisure Reading. Dentist (pleasantly): "It is a hollow tooth!" Victim: "Well, you'd say it was if you had heard me holler for the last two days." "I'm sorry to hear, Mrs. Brown," said the minister, "that you were present last night at the chapel tea meeting. I have often told you that your doctrines are highly erroneous." Mrs. Brown: "Well sir, their doctrines may be, but their cake with sultana raisins is excellent." He: "Miss Schiller was actually encored four times last night." She: "That is easily accounted for. The audience appreciated the fact that she needed rehearsal." He: "Does your wife obey you, as she promised to do at the altar?" Simple: "Well, the fact is, I've never dared to test her!" Kind Father: "My dear, if you want a good husband, marry Mr. Goodheart. He really and truly loves you." Daughter: "Are you sure of that, pa?" Kind Father: "Yes, indeed. I've been observing many of him for six months and still he keeps coming." Florence: "The idea of saying you were only twenty-three!" Bessie: "Don't forget mamma told us that when she was young she had a husband who was so good that she never wanted to get married." Husband: "Sarah, dear, if I were in your place I wouldn't keep that babe so full of butter as you do." Wife: "Butter, my dear, I never give it any butter." Husband: "No; but you poured about a quart of milk down it this afternoon, and then trotted it on the knee for about two hours. If it doesn't contain a good deal of butter by this time it isn't for the want of churning." Mr. Meeks: "The paper says the judge reserved his decision. I don't see why it is judges invariably put off deciding a point until the next day." Mrs. M.: "Thank! Judges have sense enough to want to consult their wives." Ella: "Pa says we can't say for ten years. But don't look so sad, George; you are yet young." George: "Yes, I know I am, dearest. I wasn't thinking of myself, but of you, love." It was at once put off indefinitely. A Frenchman's gallantry to ladies is said to be always equal to an emergency. At a party a gentleman of that race stepped heavily upon the toe of a lady, who looked up with an angry frown. "I'm sorry to bring my microscope." "Your microscope?" "But, for to see so little feet of madame!" The Sultan of Turkey led the toothache, and the dentist said the tooth must be extracted. Fearing the operation would be painful, the Sultan ordered it to be tried upon one of his slaves in his presence. The man seemed so white his tooth was being drawn that the Sultan shrank from the ordeal. Nor could he bear the continued toothache, so in all eight slaves, one after the other, had to have a tooth drawn to try and prove to His Majesty that the operation was not a very painful one. All bore the extraction so badly that the Sultan refused to put up with the toothache. The latest preventive of influenza suggested is the use of tobacco and cigars which have been soaked in quinine. This process is declared to have, by those who have tried it, the additional recommendation that it destroys the nicotine in the tobacco. I cannot personally vouch for the efficacy of the expedient, but it may be worth a trial by smokers, and will, at all events, be found harmless. The cigars or tobacco should be soaked in a strong solution of quinine for four hours. The solution should then be squeezed out and the tobacco be allowed to dry. Thus treated, enthusiasts on the subject consider that tobacco, instead of being harmful, as those who condemn smoking allege, is a valuable tonic, and its aroma is yet unimpaired. "Much amusement, and not a little indignation to boot, has been occasioned here by the arrest on Friday of a prominent citizen and his wife for being guilty of violating the ordinance against kissing in the street. The couple have not long been married, and, happening to meet in the street after a few days' separation, they could not help saluting each other with a kiss. By this act they brought themselves amenable under one of the old Puritan Blue Laws, which has never been repealed, for the promotion of chastity and becoming behavior. There is a similar law in the statute book of Massachusetts against smoking in the streets, but that law is of course never put in force." Dirty streets are among the chief drawbacks of life in large American cities. In Cincinnati there have recently been especially loud complaints against the street-cleaning department. The other day the women who resided in one of the streets, fired out by perpetual delay, resolved to act and shame the authorities. At half-past eight a. m. a woman appeared on the curb and stepped into the street, waving a broom as a signal, and instantly women and children swarmed out with brooms, rakes, and wheelbarrows. The work was pushed on vigorously, and in half an hour the pavement began to appear once more beneath the accumulation of muck. In an hour all was ready for the city cart. Not satisfied with cleaning the street, the women took a hand at the sewers. Later in the day the Board of Aldermen woke up and appropriated $2,000 for street-cleaning purposes.
