JUSTICE VERSUS LAW.

Really our esteemed contemporary is growing crusty over this unfortunate constitutional discussion. Its columns this morning positively bristle with sharp sayings about the Times and the News-Advertiser, and we almost fear to venture upon the subject again in case the Colonist should plant any more of its intensely humorous shafts, that rankle so

BRITISH COLUMBIA LIBERALS.

The Conservative party in British Columbia is displaying unwonted activity in attempting to perfect its organization. The election of 1896 showed the result strated that this province, like the Dominion is normally Liberal. What effect the events of the last two years have had cannot be a matter of conjecture, but we see no reason to suppose practice in the fine arts, drawing that there has been any change and cer- being his favorite recreation-drawing strength to the Tory party. A large num-system of officialdom has never, so far ents thereby. Indeed, so popular has the formation about British Columbia, and tiself during the last two years in this province that it is doubtful if the party opposing it can honestly claim to be as relatively strong as it was in 1896. The people have watched with care the lines of poincy followed by Sir Wilfrid Lanrier, and find themselves compelled to resent the ridiculous saying of Sir Charles Tupper, that "what there is good in it was borrowed from their prejeccessors."

We cannot tell what ground there is for the Order the statution may be brought on before the statutory date for the elections, but we may make up our minds that the government is so that a general election may be brought on before the statution of the resistibly convincing by its fank, straightforward and plain states.

THE SEALING AWARD.

Many months have elapsed since the announcement that the United States government had agreed to pay the award fixed by the international commission to the British Columbia sealing men, but up to the present time no money has been paid over to any of the sealers. The cause of the delay is not known here, but it is supposed to be the chronic delay to which the law is subject. Victorians have a very special interest in the proceedings of the Quebec International Conference, for one of the ques tions to be considered by that august assemblage is this one of sealing, one of the most vital to the interests of this city. While it would be rash to build any very great expectations or indulge. in any hopes of material improvements in the condition of affairs as left by the sealing tribunal, it is not improbable that the British and Canadian delegates will succeed in laying before the conference, a good deal, of evifavor of the Candence in adian sealers.
