HOW TIME DOES FLY.

(Golden Penny.)

Two young ladies on the promenade of a beach resort had been watching the vessels pass, through a telescope lent them by an "ancient mariner." On handing the glass back one of them remarked that it was a very good one.

"Yes, miss," said the old tar, "that 'ere telescope was given me by Lord Nelson."

"Good gracious! Why, Nelson has been dead nearly 100 years."

"Well, I'm blowed!" replied the salty one, quite unabashed, "ow time do fly!"

ST. JOHN, N. B., NOVEMBER 19, 1908.

TO PREVENT STRIKES.

In an attempt to reach a solution of the problem upon which the social security of this century largely rests, the American Humane Education Society recently offered a large cash prize for the best plan of preventing strikes.

The plan which won the prize, claimed that in every labor dispute four parties are interested, namely, the employer, the laborer, the public and the government, and suggested the establishment of a system of industrial courts, which should have the same power to try questions arising between labor and capital that the existing courts have in other matters. The scheme involves a state or provincial system and a federal system, appeal from a lower to a higher court being allowable. These courts and their decisions are backed by the authority of the government—federal or provincial—according to the jurisdiction of the court.

To provide against the stopping of labor in mines or mills while the dispute is being settled, the scheme provides that as soon as trouble arises it may be brought before the industrial or if these fail to do so the public may enter suit or the government may take action on its own account. This done the court gives notice to the parties involved that the dispute and all matters involved in it are in charge of the court and orders that work continue pending a decision. Should the employers refuse to allow the strikers to work or the strikers refuse to go back, the government is empowered to take possession of the business and either by taking the old men or, if they persist in their strike, by employing new men, temporarily conduct it until all difficulties are settled.

In spite of the difficulties in the way of the plan, it has many things in its favor. The present system of allowing the employers and employed to fight their disputes out cannot be permitted to continue in justice to the public who in such strikes as the one in the Pennsylvania coal fields last year, are the principal losers. Compulsory arbitration as advocated does not provide for the continuance of work during the arrangement of terms. The matter is of national importance and this proposition for the establishment of authoritative courts by the nation before which all disputants must come goes far toward the solving of the strike problem.

CANADA'S CHOICE.

Because Canada is a growing country, with capacity for further growth to an extent we cannot now conceive, and because she has become, in the matter of government largely independent of the mother country, the Globe argues that her ultimate future is existence as an absolutely independent state. In the course of an able article on the subject that journal also intimates its belief that this future is the best possible one.

That complete separation from Great Britain is the logical outcome of present conditions is apparent. The only force tending to hold us within the Empire of which Britain is now the head, is sentiment—the strongest of all bonds, but an uncertain and variable one. Against it are many and increasing influences. The ablest statesmen recognize this condition and various measures have been offered to remedy it. The one which meets with the widest favor is that proposed by Mr. Chamberlain, whose plan is to add to the ties of sentiment those of mutual advantage and by the establishment of a system of commercial reciprocity among the scattered British possessions, to make them an Empire in more than name. His ultimate idea is the federation of the various colonies and dependencies of Britain into an Empire, self-supporting because it has states in every zone of production and independent of all the rest of the world for the same reason.

It is between this magnificent possibility and the alternatives of independent existence or annexation to the United States that Canada must make an early choice. Separation from the Empire in the near future would undoubtedly mean annexation. Without something outside of ourselves to hold to it is impossible that with our present strength we should be able to resist the attractions held out by the United States and the pressure that its government would undoubtedly bring to bear upon us. If on the other hand we should in the course of half a century's existence under present conditions drift into a state of complete independence, it is possible that we might be able to maintain it, but at a tremendous cost.

Universal peace is a long way off yet, and until it comes we should have to maintain armies and navies comparative in strength to the armaments of those powers who might endanger us. Universal free trade is as far in the future as universal peace, and until it came Canada, being not a self-supporting country, but one dependent upon many others for most of the luxuries and many of the necessities of life, would be at the mercy of such tariff conditions as competitive countries should be pleased to create. And all we would gain in return for these and innumerable other drawbacks would be the petty satisfaction that Canada, sentimentally, was free.

Could any Canadian have more healthy liberty than he has now? Could Canada be more sure of the continuance of her peace than she is now? Is the thought of free Canada any more inspiring to the imagination and inspiring to loyalty than that of a free and independent Empire, greater in extent, in wealth, in power, than any that has ever been, to which we shall contribute not the least part of its existence, and in whose affairs our word will in time have probably the greatest weight?

Columbia must also be anxious for annexation to the United States. She is said to be preparing for war.

If one were inclined to be suspicious of America's disinterestedness in the Panama affair he might express some wonder at the fact that though the revolution only occurred a few days ago that enterprising country has already prepared a canal treaty for the new republic's signature.

It's up to the Maine legislature to pass a law restricting the number of guides and other hunters such sportsman is allowed to shoot in a season. The supply of them is as likely to run out as that of moose and deer at the present rate of decrease.

The victory of Hon. Chas. Wilson in Vancouver yesterday completes the victory of the McBride administration and assures the supremacy of the conservative party in British Columbia. The election was doubtful, because it was acknowledged by both sides that the result depended upon the labor vote. The labor element in the Pacific provinces has fallen into line with the opinion of labor men all over Canada that the conservative policy is the one best fitted to serve its interests.

DELIGHT IN DISORDER.

A sweet disorder in the dress kindles in clothes a shanties; A lawn about the shoulders thrown into a fine distraction;

An airing lace, whose here and there entrails the crimson stomacher;

A cuff neglected and thereby Ribbons to flow confusedly;

A winning waist, deserving note, In the temptuous petticoat;

A careless shoe-string, in whose tie I see a wild civility;

Do more bewitch me than when art is too precise in every part.

—Robert Herrick.

RECENT DEATHS.

Word reached the city yesterday of the death of Richard Robertson in Boston, Friday last. Mr. Robertson was a St. John young man who left here fifteen years ago and made his home in Boston. He was in the works of Chas. Holden, machinist, in Atlantic avenue. He was but twenty-nine years of age and was survived by his wife, Joseph Seymour, of the Telegraph composing room, is an uncle of deceased.

Mrs. Jane Read, wife of Capt. Arthur Read, died yesterday morning, at her home, 54 Simonds street, after an illness of four months. Mrs. Read was 54 years of age and leaves three children.

At the General Public Hospital at an early hour yesterday morning, the death took place of Miss Bessie Duffy, 64 years of age. She had only been in the hospital a few days, and was a sufferer from heart trouble.

The death of Norfolk, Va., is recorded of William J. Furlong, son of William Furlong of 79 St. James street. Shortly after the fire of 1877 Mr. Furlong—then a mere lad—removed to Virginia, where he has resided ever since, and where he married. His St. John friends will regret to hear of his death.

The wife of Chas. Geldart, formerly of this city, died at her home in Stratford, Ont., on the 15th. Mrs. Geldart was formerly Miss Susie Belyea of this city, and leaves four children to mourn their loss, besides her husband and two sisters and her mother, now in Boston.

BUILT UP THE SYSTEM AND ADDED TEN POUNDS IN WEIGHT.

Mr. Ed. J. Harris, Newbridge, Ont., was in poor health, but has now been restored to full health and vigor. Here is what he writes us: "Last spring I was in a very critical condition, my system was all run down. I felt drowsy and miserable, and thought I would surely die if I did not get something to build me up. After reading one of your almanacs I decided to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and before I had taken two bottles I had gained ten pounds in weight, and am now in perfect health, and I can certainly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters to build up the system."

Pandora Range

Does its Work while You do Yours

You do not have to constantly watch the Pandora range when cooking or baking. Arrange the fire, put on your pots and set the damper—the range does the rest.

While dinner is cooking you can do your other work, just the same as the woman in the picture, and know positively that your cooking is being done right.

The Pandora range is entirely new and has many new features and devices for regulating the fire, extracting all the heat possible from the fuel consumed and using it to the best advantage.

Special flue construction forces all the heat around the oven twice and directly under every pot-hole—only the smoke goes up the chimney.

Oven is roomy, ventilated, fitted with thermometer, lined with sheet steel, and is a perfect baker and a perfect cooker at the same time.

Sold by all enterprising dealers. Booklet free.
