

PRIZE WINNERS AT UNIVERSITY ARE ANNOUNCED

Annual Encaenial Proceedings Being Held at U. N. B. Today—Large Number Gathered.

Fredericton, May 12.—The annual encaenial proceedings at the University of New Brunswick will take place tomorrow afternoon. Already, graduates of the institution are flocking here, and with reunions of the classes of 1884 and 1918 included in the proceedings, it is expected that the proceedings will be more largely attended and marked by more interest than usual. Of a total membership of thirty-three, only one member of the class of 1918 is unable to take his degree because of some work he was unable to complete, owing to delay in returning, and another member has been married since the completion of the examinations and left for the West to reside.

Following the final meeting of the faculty, the graduation honors and distinctions lists were given out this morning by Dr. C. C. Jones, the Chancellor, together with the names of the winners of all medals and prizes, as follows:

Douglas gold medal—Best essay on "The Preservation of Wild Bird Life, Its Economic, Aesthetic and Humane Aspects," Christopher Lee Armstrong.

Alumni gold medal—Announcement by Alumni Society.

The graduating class held a dinner last night, and a short toast that was carried out, Clarence B. Burden, president of the senior class, acting as toastmaster. The King was proposed by G. Alva Good. Alma Mater was proposed by Miss Helen A. Thurrott, and replied to by Dr. C. C. Jones, who said he was very pleased to be present and that he was very glad to have so many of the men who answered the call of duty return to take up their studies at the university as members of the senior class.

The Class was proposed by Charles R. Townsend and replied to by Samuel T. McCavour. A toast to those who sleep in Flanders Fields was proposed by Ian M. MacLaren, M. C., and responded to by Hilton D. McKnight, both returned officers. Horace P. Webb proposed the toast to the ladies, and G. F. G. Bridges, Rhodes scholar, responded. Following the toast list the Ivy Oration, prophesying the future of the members of the class, was read by Miss M. Louise Friel. After the reading of the Ivy oration the class went to the Palace, where a programme of eighteen dances with four extras was carried out, supper being served about midnight. Mrs. C. C. Jones chaperoned the party, which broke up about two o'clock. The time-honored custom, the "Burning of Anna," was carried out by the sophomore class in College Hill last night. The funeral oration was delivered by Russell Sheldrick, who led his class in mathematics. Great joy was manifest among the members of the class as they saw his "analytic" textbook cast among the flames.

There were time-honored celebrations by the students last evening following the annual field and track sports, and the appearance of a young freshman on Queen street at the busiest part of the evening wearing a generous display of baguette over his ordinary clothing showed that the spirit of initiation has not entirely disappeared even if many of the old time pranks are tabooed. This evening the Alumni and Alum-
