nead of cattle are said to have died is the subject of a case to-day in the Court of Appeal.

John Chapleau exchanged the place, one containing 285 acres, to E. J. Pink, of St. Thomas, for property valued at $7,000. Pink, in turn, traded the farm to J. A. Robinson, barrister, St. Thomas, for real estate worth $6,500. Without seeing the farm at all, Robinson sold it to Louis Ullman, through Chapleau.

Ullman worked the farm, lost live stock, and sued Chapleau for cxedit. A Chatham jury gave Ullman $700 damages, the Divisional Court reversed the verdict, and the Appeal Court is now asked to step in.—107-001to Star.

RELIABLE

LIVELY PIONEER

Remarkable Record of Ex-warder Morrison yet in His Prime-Taught U. S. President Garfield

Ex-Warden Morrison is one of the oldest and most active men in the county. He passed his 80th year on Sunday last and is still in posses all his faculties. Some idea of Mr. Morrison's force of character and the confidence his neighbors have in him may be gained from the fact that he was chosen by Alex. Dolsen, Perry Dolsen and John Smith as their arbitrator in connection with the opening of the 5th concession line across their farms.

Mr. Morrison's life is a history of hard work, but success flutters over it all. Born in Ireland, a younger son, he left his home when 17 and came to Canada. He learned the tanning trade with a relative at Chippewa, and afterwards went to school in Ohio. Some of his schoolmates went teaching, so he decided to follow their example. He was appointed schoolmaster in a settlement 20 miles from Cleveland. The school stood about forty rods from the house of Mrs. Garfield, mother of the ex-President of the United States, and James Garfield was one of Mr Morrison's pupils. The veteran teacher lovingly refers to the martyr as er lovingly release "Jim."

Mr. Morrison afterwards returned to Chatham and taught school for a year down the river. He was engaged to teach in the school on the Middle Road, and at the end of five was drawing a salary of $500

Middle Road, and at the end of five years was drawing a salary of $500 per year, the record stipend in those days. Mr. Morrison married and settled on a farm on the Middle Road. In his own words he decided that "teaching was for the young man without a family, who could pack his trunk and move without trouble." Mr. Morrison sold his farm on the Middle Road and purchased one on the river, where he lived for many years. He has figured prominently in municipal life, being often reeve of Raleigh and frequently a member of the County Council. He has also figured on many arbitrations and has or the County Council. He has also figured on many arbitrations and has always been very successful. He represented Tilbury, the late Stephen White, Romney and Henry Smyth, and was the third arbitrator in an arbitration over drainage matters. Romney paid the costs,
