THE SITUATION.

The big drive against the Italian front has not, even in the initial stages, made the headway which the foe must have hoped. These massed rushes have usually resulted in the gaining of much ground at the commencement, but it has not proved to be so in this instance.

Official announcement is made that from January, 1915, to the end of May, 1918, no fewer than 487 ships sunk in British waters by submarines were salvaged.

Between the Oise and the Aisne the French are commencing to again take back ground lost in that region. The surprising news comes that the Turks have occupied Tabriz, next to Teheran, the largest city in Persia. It had not hitherto been known that they were conducting any such operations in that country.

FORD FOR THE SENATE.

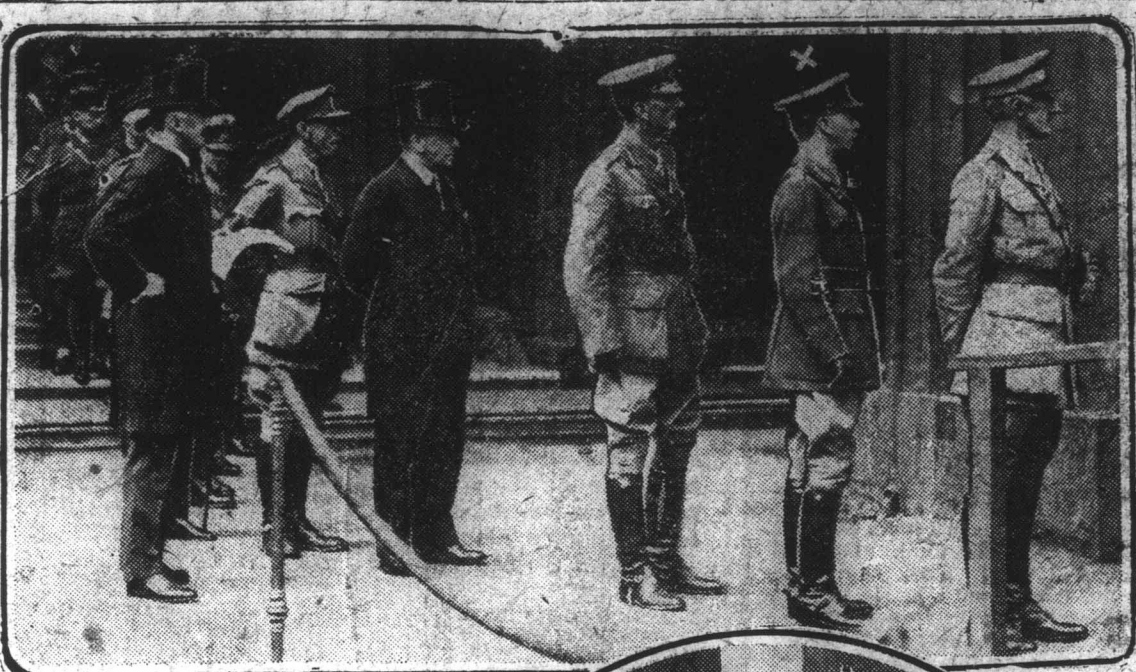

Henry Ford has decided to run for the U. S. Senate and he is doing so moreover at the personal request of President Wilson. It is not so many years ago that he was almost begging investors to take some stock in his idea of turning out motor cars at a price which would make them available to those of moderate means and now he is a multi-millionaire with the chief executive of the States asking him to run for high office. Moreover, Ford has made a huge fortune without exciting any of the criticism usually levelled at modern wealth creators.

There are two reasons for this. In the first place his genius and his enterprise have served to revolutionize farm life and to extend the modern conveyance far beyond the exclusive class. In the second place he won the approval of wage-earners by some time ago issuing the decree that no man in the employ of his firm should receive less than $25 a week. His intermediary attempt in connection with the war and the sending of a ship there after the manner of a modern ark from which the dove of peace would ultimately be let loose over the blood-stained trenches created a good deal of ridicule and was altogether a most Utopian performance, but the best of men make mistakes and he has since fully made up for any faulty ideas with regard to the ruthless Hun by placing huge plants at the disposal of Washington for the production of war material. It is the general impression that he will be given an exceedingly smooth pathway into the Upper House and he will certainly constitute a new type in the legislative arena.

AN ABLE ADDRESS.

Professor Osborne of Winnipeg, who delivered an address in the Board of Trade rooms last night, is undoubtedly a man of exceptional ability, and he presented a great theme in a most forcible manner. Briefly stated, the idea enunciated by him is that whereas Germany through her educational system has shown such remarkable, although perverted results, in the establishment of the military super-man propaganda, that Canada, by equal co-ordination, would be able to create a like condition of cohesive aims on behalf of good citizenship and a high ideal of national life. There can be no doubt whatever that the schools afford the best possible ground for the sowing of such ideals, and that the various Provinces today in this respect are at sixes and sevens, so far as any cohesive action is concerned.

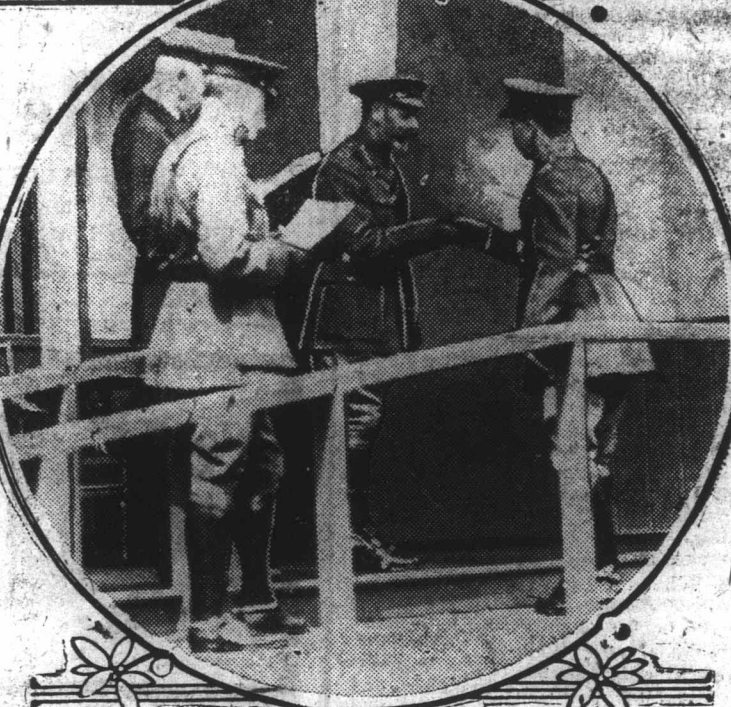

In Ontario, the newly-appointed Minister of Education, the Rev. Dr. Cody, made it abundantly clear in a recent address before the Canadian Press Association, that ninety per cent. of the pupils in this Province get nothing more than a public school education, and that this is not enough. He believes that commercial and technical, and farm education in suitable districts should be added, and on top of these things, the ideas advanced by Prof. Osborne might also be very properly introduced. We are very apt to speak of Ontario's educational system as the best on this half of the Continent, but there is very much reason to doubt the correctness of that affirmation. World thought is advancing in very many directions, and something will have to be done to place the work of the schools on a more stimulative basis with regard to practical results and national life in the truest possible sense.

THE FIRST "OPEN AIR" ROYAL INVESTITURE OF THE YEAR.

For the first time (this year) the King held an "open air" investiture in the quadrangle of Buckingham Palace, when he personally conferred decorations upon a number of heroes who achieved distinction in the war. There was a large crowd of spectators to witness the ceremony. The upper photo shows a long line waiting to go before the King. The second figure from the reader's right marked with an X is Gen. Sir R. W. E. Turner, V.C., the Canadian force commander in England, and below the same officer is before the King receiving his decoration.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Entering the United States from Canada these days at border points, and also getting into the Dominion from the other side is somewhat akin to the camel and the needles eye performance. The examination in the average of cases includes birth marks.

The Italians are grinding the toe in excellent style. To fill the vacant postmastership in Toronto Mr. W. Lemon, assistant postmaster for thirty-six years, has been appointed. The step will be generally applauded. When merit is proved promotion within the public service is the proper course and an incentive to all government officials.

There was no need for Germany to proclaim the American coast as a danger zone. It was that for Teutich hopes from the moment Uncle Sam entered the war.

O'LEARY IN NEW YORK

By Courier Leased Wire. New York, June 18.—Jeremiah O'Leary, who was arrested near Portland, Oregon, last week, after fleeing from trial here on charges of espionage act violation, arrived here today from the west, in custody of federal officers.

Since his disappearance from New York on May 7, O'Leary has been indicted with two German subjects and four other Americans for complicity in alleged plots to commit espionage in behalf of Germany and treason against the United States. The prisoner was taken directly to the office of Charles F. Dewoody, chief of the New York Bureau of the Department of Justice, for examination. O'Leary was later taken before Judge Hand and arraigned on the treason and espionage conspiracy indictments. He pleaded "not guilty" to both charges, and was held without bail on the treason indictment.

COUNTY COUNCIL

The County Council met this morning in the Court House. The following report of the Council as a committee was adopted on the motion of A. W. Eddy:

(1) That the communications from the Public Highways Department in regard to the payment of the commissioners of the suburban areas and the certifying of the accounts incurred by the commission be referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee of the Council.

(2) That the communication from the Woodstock Board of Education as to the expense of County of Brant pupils attending that institution be received and referred to the committee on education to report.

(3) That the communication from the Council of the City of London, asking that this Council endorse a resolution of that Council asking the Dominion Government to provide insurance for the overseas service of soldiers as provided by the United States be received and referred to the Committee on Finance to report.

(4) That the communication from the Department of Education that the communication from the Department of Education that the grant to the County of Brant for the year 1918 is $847.49, and that the county is required to raise a similar amount, be received and filed.

(5) That the communication from the Ontario government in regard to firewood in Algonquin Park, and estimating the cost of same, delivered at Brant county, at $10 per cord, be received and filed.

(6) That the communication from the Red Triangle Fund, acknowledging the grant of $55 made personally by the members of the council to the fund be received and filed.

(7) That the communication from the Hon. George Foster as to the Daylight Saving Act, also from the office of the Post Controller as to increased production and the Organization of Resource Committee as to farm labor be received and referred to the committee, consisting of Messrs. Crichton, Greenwood, Douglas and Eddy to consider and prepare a resolution for submission to the Council dealing with the question referred to.

(8) That the communication from the Ontario Municipal Association as to the convention of that association and asking the Council to join the organization be received and filed.

(9) That the communication from the Council of Toronto, enclosing a form of petition asking that the British North America Act be amended by a vote of the people of Canada providing for the abolition of the Senate of Canada and asking this Council to join in a similar petition be received and filed.

(10) That the communication from the Ontario Municipal Association as to the convention of that association and asking the Council to join the organization be received and filed.

While the committee was in session Councillor Smith occupied the chair.

ADMIRAL PAGET DEAD. By Courier Leased Wire. London, June 18.—Admiral Sir Alfred Paget died suddenly here last night.

Admiral Sir Alfred (Wyndham) Paget was a son of the late General Lord Alfred Henry Paget, and was born March 29, 1852. He entered the English navy in 1865, became rear-admiral in 1906 and vice-admiral in 1911. He served in the Egyptian and Sudan campaigns from 1891 till 1893 and was British naval attaché at Washington 1896-1899. He was knighted in 1911 and received the distinguished service order in 1917.

PARIS GIRL IS LAID TO REST

Funeral of Late Miss Mary Doyle Took Place Yesterday

OTHER NEWS OF PARIS. Corp. Harold Smith, Prisoner of War, Has Been Released

MRS. O. H. MILLER DEAD

(From Our Own Correspondent.) Paris, June 17.—The funeral of the late Miss Mary Agnes Doyle, daughter of the late John and Mrs. Doyle, who passed away on Friday, took place this morning from the family residence, Paris Station, to the Church of the Sacred Heart, where Rev. Father Cassidy chanted Requiem Mass, and thence to R. C. cemetery. Deceased had been poorly for nearly a year, having had a stroke some months ago, from which she never fully recovered, and was seized with another on Friday, death resulting from same. The late Miss Doyle was born and educated here and by her bright and cheery nature had made many warm friends who will regret to hear of her demise. She was a faithful member of the Church of the Sacred Heart and took an active part in all its branches until prevented through illness. She leaves to mourn her loss three sisters and three brothers: Mrs. Thomas Cavan of Paris; Mrs. Burke; and Mrs. John O'Neill of Grey County, Richard, John and Patrick of Paris Station, to whom the sympathy of the community will be extended.

A large number of members from Court Harmony A. O. F. went to Brantford last evening and attended the memorial service in memory of the members of the Ansele Order of Foresters of Brant district, who have made the supreme sacrifice for King and Country. The service was held in Alexandra Presbyterian Church.

Many in Paris will be pleased to learn that Corp. Harold J. Smith has been released by Germany and now interned in Holland, after being a prisoner for over 22 months. He left Paris with the 4th Mounted Rifles under Captain W. R. Patterson, who is now Lieut.-Colonel. On June 2nd, 1916, with the late Corp. C. Ball he was scouting, just prior to a British attack. During the fierce fighting that followed, Smith was wounded and captured, while Ball was reported missing, and since been listed as dead. In a card to Paris friends Smith says: "I am thankful at being exchanged from Germany, after 22 months enclosed behind barbed wire. It is like being in a new world. My experiences I will never forget. Thankful that now I am in good health. Remember me to Paris friends. My address is B. F. of War, interned in Holland No. 109603, Corp. H. J. Smith, 4th Canadian Mounted Rifles, Group 10, Townley Hall, Vachman Street, Den Hague, Holland."

On Friday evening several members of St. James' Church choir waited upon Miss Violet Fowkes and presented her with a gold mounted fountain pen. Miss Fowkes was a valued member of St. James' Church for several years and left on Saturday for London. It is her intention of taking a course of training with the St. John's Ambulance and later going to England for V.A.D. work there.

There passed into the spiritual world on Friday evening, Elvira V. Riener, beloved wife of Mr. C. H. Miller in the 40th year of her age. She had been ill since last February, suffering from heart trouble. Mrs. Miller was the daughter of the

CHAPTER LXXXIV A Poor Correspondent

Bob had been gone a week. I had had but two short notes from him, and a few words so carelessly written that I could almost see the nervous, hurried way he had written them.

It was strange that he couldn't take time to write me a decent letter. I thought bitterly as I held the thin sheet of paper with the thin hastily scrawled words in my hand. Then I excused him as usual, "he might be very busy, even although I could see no reason for it as it was estate work, that engaged him."

Donald had almost entirely recovered. I would take a day and go into town and do some shopping. I telephoned Elsie and asked her to go with me.

"I shall be delighted," she answered. "We'll have luncheon downtown and make a day of it. Come in early."

It was only ten o'clock the following morning when I met Elsie at one of the large department stores. "What in the world have you been doing to yourself?" she asked as soon as our greetings were over.

"What do you mean?" "You look like the very old scratch. Been worrying over Bob again? Tom said he was away."

"Some—perhaps." "Cut it out, Margaret. Now I want you to do exactly as I tell you today, will you?"

"That depends on what you want me to do." "Let the shopping go, at least until afternoon. Come with me to a beauty parlor, have a facial massage, and have your hair dressed."

Really, Margaret, you look every day of forty." Then she added, "Don't be cross with me, dear for speaking so plainly, I know Donald has been sick and you have been very anxious, but you mustn't let Bob come home and find you looking like this. Not if it takes every penny you've got in your pocket book, and you have to borrow of me."

"I'm not cross, Elsie," I replied rather wearily. "I had been criticised so often of late to resent it, but I was any longer." "Then you'll do as I want you to." "Yes, I think it a waste of time, though."

"Wait and see," she said critically.

ly as she led the way to a well known beauty parlor.

She asked for a particular massage, one whom she then mother and herself, then stood by and bossed the job, as she expressed it. I had to acknowledge that the massage was grateful, that the hot cloths rested my tired eyes. Then my hair was brushed, and I had an electric massage of the scalp before they powdered my face, and dressed my hair. A touch of rouge on my cheeks, and the operation was finished in just two hours and a half.

"Come on now, let's have luncheon. I'm as hungry as a bear," Elsie exclaimed as I parted with a five dollar bill.

I was hungry too, more so than I had been for days. We went to the Halford as it was close to the stores I wished to visit.

"Well you do look different!" Elsie exclaimed as we sat down, "You look ten years younger."

"Thank you," I replied laughingly. "It's your fault, but I was pleased. I had been astonished when I looked in the glass in the beauty parlor. The tired look was gone, I looked fresh and almost girlish."

"See that you do it often," she replied, "at least until you have rid yourself of those wrinkles. You never had any that I noticed until lately, and they will be easily gotten rid of if you take them right away. Bob is altogether too handsome for you to neglect your looks as you have been doing."

"Why in the world couldn't people let my relations with Bob alone? First Mrs. Baldwin, then mother and now Elsie. It was aggravating to say the least. I thought as I saw John Kendall making his way toward us."

"How do you do?" he said to Elsie, then to me, "I never saw you looking better. Mrs. Garrett, so I won't ask you the senseless question I suppose you are happy that Bob is coming home. Here's the best correspondent, just think, Mrs. Barton," I turned to Elsie, "he's written me every other day since he left. Pretty good for a busy fellow like Bob isn't it?"

After a few more words he left us. So Bob had written John Kendall every other day and had written me, his wife, two short careless notes. Even if they did have business together, I couldn't quite feel that would excuse his failing to write me.

After luncheon Elsie and I shopped until late in the afternoon. Remember what I tell you, Margaret. Spend your money making yourself handsome. Some day you will thank me for the advice," she said laughingly as we bade each other good bye.

It has done you good to go in town, Mrs. Garrett," Della said when I reached home; "you look fine and rested."

I looked long into the mirror that night. Perhaps mother, Elsie, were right, and I should have taken more pains with my toilette. Well, I would hereafter I would have a facial treatment the day Bob returned then I would meet him at the station.

TO MATCH WORK OF OVERSEAS MEN

Registration Day Will Furnish Information Necessary in Fight Against Waste

An extremely interesting report from the Overseas Minister of Militia, the other day told of the work of the Salvage Department of the Expeditionary Force, which during the past nine months has saved the people of Canada the considerable sum of $211,955. It did this by the systematic collection of all discarded articles and their subsequent sale in bulk in London. This achievement shows what can be done by the studied elimination of waste. One of the principal objects of the National Register, which will be taken on 22nd June, is the elimination of waste. It will accomplish this by providing the Government with the information necessary to a scientific direction of the country's man power. Production, agricultural as well as industrial, will be increased, and in the process the expenditure of human energy in useless and non-productive pursuits will be reduced to a minimum. As a result of the information secured on Registration Day Canada will renew her strength for the final onslaught against the powers intent upon arresting the course of civilization.
