"LITTLE MOTHER"

A Tribute to Nursing Sister Margaret J. Fortesque, Who Gave Her Life on Board the Lion-dovery Castle.

The following beautiful tribute to Nursing Sister Margaret J. Fortesque, who was lost on the Lion-dovery Castle, is written by a Brantford soldier who was nursed by Miss Fortesque while in hospital. On a beautiful night in April, 1916 I was carried into "D" Ward of No. 3 Canadian General Hospital in France. There I met "Little Mother" for the first time. The title "Little Mother" (bestowed upon her by the patients whom she nursed) tells the story of the character and work of this noble woman better than any lengthy detailed description ever could. Sister Fortesque not only nursed, but mothered us. At night as she went about smoothing every cot she passed and thus soothing every inmate therein, her motherly thought of his own Mother and childhood days and to many a father there came visions of "kiddies" at home. We were all heroes to her.

"Look what you have done and what you have been through," she would reply if we said the Sisters were doing more than their share. It would take columns to relate all that she did for the boys—how she gave of her means as well as her strength; even doing her own laundry that she might have more money to buy tobacco and other comforts for her soldier laddies, and how her great heart reached out to her boys' home folk! "Tommy, have you written home? If you can't I'll do it for you," your people must know. She gave me a handkerchief embroidered with blue birds and said, "Send this to your wife and say the blue birds are looking after you." "Little Mother" refused promotion because she thought she could do more for the boys as a regular nursing sister, and seemed the happiest when getting the boys ready for "Blighy" giving the last touch to their toilet, adjusting a balacava cap here, a bed-sock or muffler there and seeing that each one had a handkerchief. Then the fond hand-shake and kind wishes for a safe trip and quick recovery.

"Little Mother" earned the Victoria Cross as much as any man in the army. Think of it—four years of untiring labor and fearless devotion, often caring for the wounded and dying in sound of guns and while bombs crashed through the hospital roof; through cold and heat, long days and dreary nights of ceaseless care. Then—murdered by the ruthless Hun. Miss Fortesque was typical of that noble order of women, Angels of Mercy, splendid as their founder, Florence Nightingale, who when men are wounded nurse them back to life and inspire them with a desire to return to the front to help make the world a fit place for women to live in.

I know that "Little Mother" last thought would be one of thankfulness that there were no wounded on board.

The following is a copy of a part of a letter she wrote some months ago. "What a good time we shall have when all this is ended. Our boys will need as much courage after the war as now only of a different order. Many boys won't understand them and it is going to be most trying to find other men in their places and no room for them. You will be there to cheer them up and live over the trenches and appreciate and help the lad who takes a drop too much. There will be lots of work to do at home so don't fret if other boys are sending off your fire-crackers. The spirit of Canada, of Britain, France and the United States, typified in the men who are to-day battling for freedom in Flanders on the banks of the Marne is calling to every man and woman of the industrial army in Canada for the means to victory and to the answer on that answer depends—THE LIBERTY OF THE WORLD.

UNFAILING EFFORT PRICE OF VICTORY. Call for Increased Output of Munitions Never More Urgent. Extent of Success Measured by Industry and Unselfishness.

At no time in the history of the world has the call for an increased output of munitions come to Canada with more urgency than it does to-day. Just now the great armies of democracy are valiantly driving the Prussian hordes from the fair fields of France and in order that they may consolidate and follow up the gains made the material essential must be provided. Every effort must be doubled and every force concentrated for the supreme test of strength which will decide the fate of the nations and the liberty of the world.

Four years ago, Canada, then not fifty years of age as a Dominion of the Empire, although separated by the wide expanse of the Atlantic, hastened to the call of the Motherland and staked her last man and her last dollar, if need be, for the cause of right and civilization. Today, through the valor of her sons, whose blood has been given unselfishly for the cause, the name of Canada is emblazoned on the roll of imperishable fame. The names of St. Julien, Festubert, Ypres Ridge and Passchendaele must ever be associated with Canadian gallantry and sacrifice, and the deeds of a citizen soldier must ever remain an inspiration to future generations to come.

This spirit of sacrifice must also inspire the industrial army at home, whose duty is loyally to back with every resource the legion of democracy facing death that Canada may live. Upon the quantity and the quality of the output of munitions in Canada rests the fate of the Empire, and for Canadians to stick to their effort will amount to a betrayal of their own flesh and blood. Canadian production of munitions per worker is much less to-day than it was a year ago, and the work has become "a matter of course" as it has apparently lost the old fire and enthusiasm.

AMERICANS MAY LEAVE THE ARMY. Can Secure Release From Canadian Ranks by Lengthy Process. SEARCH FOR "B" MEN. Regulations from Ottawa regarding the discharge of American citizens from the ranks of the British-Canadian recruiting mission must be referred to militia headquarters with a full statement of each case. Upon the application being made, the applicant will be paraded before his commanding officer and an explanation will be obtained as to how he happens to be claiming to be an American when he enlisted as a British subject. He will also have to explain why he delayed making his application for discharge.

DOLLAR DAY CERTAINLY GROWING IN FAVOR. Crowds of Buyers are in the City and the Day Looks Like Another Record Breaker—Astonished at the Many Bargains—Almost Impossible to Believe That Goods Could be Secured to Sell at Such Low Prices.

It seems almost impossible to believe, but the fact remains that the advertised bargains of the merchants, the splendid weather, the good roads, and last but not least, the fact that Brantford and vicinity had not felt, to any extent the war stringency, have made of the August 1918 Dollar Day a record breaker. With the experiences of former dollar days fresh in their minds Mrs. Mr. and Miss Shopper got on the ground early. The big crowds visited first the dry-goods stores and then the ladies' and men's stores. From these they scattered, and before 10 o'clock every clerk was a busy one, and every merchant was a smile when he worked. Some few of the shoppers kept a sharp lookout for Miss Dollar, with the result that she was captured at a comparatively early hour on Market St. But the bargains were the big attraction.

CITY MERCHANTS VISIT PORT DOVER. Automobiles That Contained Many Merchants Had Pleasant Run. Leaving the corner of Queen and Dalhousie streets shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, over a score of automobiles, every one filled with Brantford merchants, and a few new men of the city, started on their annual Dollar Day trip by way of Burch, Boston, Waterford and Simcoe. The Canadian agents of the Automobile Club of Canada, who were the pilot car containing members of the committee, and bearing banners, one of which read, "This car is not for sale," was prominently displayed. The party was met by the fact that Chief Simlin was along as a guest, or because some of his members could not drive faster than a snail.

IMPORTANCE OF GAINS HIDDEN. Many of Recent Allied Successes are Larger Than They Appear. London, July 30.—Although the Allied gains during the past 24 hours may seem small, some of them had been exceedingly large. Telegrams Reuters at the American front in France. The chief feature of the recent fighting, he says, is the French advance from Ontoebry-Lo-Chateau, which carried the village of Grand Rozoy and swept the Germans off the butte of Chalmont. This hill was a centre of enemy resistance along the western side of the salient.

UNION PICNIC. The union picnic held by Park and Calvary Baptist Sunday Schools was of a very successful nature. A special train of five cars conveyed the merry crowd of over 250 to Port Dover. Under the ideal weather conditions which prevailed an enjoyable time was spent. A great many of the picnickers took pleasure in bathing, others by a sail on the "City of Dover" and still others in baseball and the other sports. War-time refreshments were served, followed by races provided for young and old. The merry crowd left on the 7:30 P.M. car and arrived here an hour later.

RED CROSS ROOMS. Red Cross workers are reminded that the rooms in the Y.M.C.A. are open Monday and Thursday afternoons and Tuesday and Saturday mornings during August.

BUILDING PERMITS. Two building permits were issued yesterday, one to Fred Simmond for the erection of a brick dwelling, 141 Campbell St. to cost $1,000, and one to Mickle Dymon Co. for the construction of an addition to a kitchen estimated to cost $90, at 104 Eagle Ave.

SITUATION TO-DAY

By the Associated Press. French and American troops have begun a turning movement that if successful will compel a German retirement over a wide sector east of Feren-Tardenois at the center of the Soissons-Rheims salient. They have attacked over a front of over three miles on each side of the village of Noyelles, the apex of the Allied wedge north of the Ourcq. Their greatest advance was toward the east, where the Americans pushed on some distance from the town of Sergy and approached Chamey.

To the Editor of The Courier. THE MAYOR REPLEAS. To the Editor of The Courier: Sir: The good book tells us "we should be thankful of small mercies"—and after reading Mr. Galloway's dispiriting episode of last evening I am sure all citizens will be glad that he was not a member of our refreshment committee at the civic picnic. Just imagine what might have happened if his massive mind had dwelt for a few moments on those "sacrifices the wives and kiddies are making." The rainstorm was bad enough, but a flood of "crocodile tears" would have been more than we could bear.

their infantry. Reports from the front tell of heavy artillery fire along most of the line between Soissons and Rheims. The Germans attacked the Allied line on the heights of Bligny, south-west of Rheims, but were repulsed. The methods adopted by the Germans since their retirement from the Marne began, are being followed by the enemy along the line of the hardest fighting. Machine gunners, for the most part man the line. This may indicate a further retirement of the Germans for machine gunners have borne the brunt of the rear guard fighting during the past two weeks.

Most of our soldiers' families are living to-day on the same allowances as they were enjoying four years ago. The cost of living has doubled since then, and we hear less grumbling from them than from others who are enjoying the good things of life. If you want to preach a doctrine of thrift, there is abundant opportunity all around you, but if you desire a respectful hearing you had better look up the definition of the word "consistency" and then practice it good and hard.

That Dollar Day will be repeated as before is a safe statement.
