A Negro Suspect Burned At the Stake in Kansas.

"My God, men," he cried in his agony, "I have told you that I am innocent. I can't tell you any more. I did not do it."

"He lies, burn him," cried the mob. "Take him where he committed the murder," suggested one.

SCENE OF THE CRIME. The suggestion met with instant approval, and the crowd, carrying the negro, pushed on.

At 5.15 Alexander was brought to the scene of the murder of Pearl Forbes, at the corner of Lawrence avenue and Spruce street. The exact spot where the murdered girl was found was located by the leaders of the crowd, and then a semi-circle was formed. Alexander was brought up in a wagon with a dozen men. The wagon was stopped in front of the ravine, and surrounded by the crowd, the leader of the men, who held Alexander called for silence. The roar ceased and Alexander was shoved forward into full view of the crowd.

"You are going to kill me whatever I say," he said, "but you mean are wrong. I want to tell you right now, you've got the wrong man, I did not do that, and some day you men here will run up against the man who did. I know it ain't any use to say so for you're going to kill me, but I did not do it."

The men standing behind Alexander then shoved him from the wagon and the roar from the crowd drowned every other sound. The negro was quickly driven down the embankment by the edge of wood, with his hands still shackled, and there brand to the stake. Coal oil was then poured over him.

Before the match was applied John Forbes, father of the murdered girl, stepped up to Alexander and said: "Are you guilty of murdering my daughter?"

"I don't know what you have me here for," said Alexander.

Forbes replied: "For killing my girl on this very spot."

"Mr. Forbes," if that's your name, you have the wrong man," said the negro.

"Burn him! Burn him!" cried the crowd.

"Gentlemen, you've got lots of time," said Alexander. "You're burning an innocent man. You took advantage of me. You gave me no show. Can I see my mother?"

A man in the crowd called for the mother, but she was not in the crowd. Alexander then said: "Will you let me shake hands with all my friends?"

"You have no friends in this crowd, you d—d beast," said one of the men in charge of the negro, "if you have anything to say, say it in a hurry."

Another man then stepped up and said to Alexander:

"Make your peace with your God, nigger, for you will surely die."

THE MATCH APPLIED. Coal oil was then applied for the second time and while it was being done Alexander called to acquaintances in the crowd, and said good-bye to them. He did not seem to realize that he was to be burned at the stake and talked rationally until John Forbes, the father of the murdered girl, lighted the match. Again Alexander was asked to make a confession, but he replied that he had nothing to say.

As the flames leaped about him, Alexander turned a ghastly hue, and, clasping his hands together, began to sway to and fro, while the crowd yelled.

In five minutes the negro was hanging limp and lifeless by the chains that bound him. As soon as the crowd saw that life was extinct, it began to slowly disperse. Hundreds, however, stayed to the last.

Men kept piling on wood all the time until about 7 o'clock, when the flames were allowed to die down. From 6 to 8 o'clock, there was a continuous stream of people going to obtain relics. Bits of charred flesh, pieces of chain, scraps of wood — everything that could possibly serve as a souvenir was seized on with morbid eagerness.

When the fire had died down sufficiently to allow the crowd to approach, the remains of Alexander, there was a wild scramble to obtain relics. Bits of charred flesh, pieces of chain, scraps of wood — everything that could possibly serve as a souvenir was seized on with morbid eagerness.

After Alexander's arrest he was taken before Miss Roth, who identified him. Since then a mob has surrounded the penitentiary day and night. Yesterday the crowd became so formidable that Gov. Stanley in response to a telegram from Warden Tomlinson, ordered two companies of military to be sent to the penitentiary to prevent a moment's notice.

Gov. Stanley ordered Warden Tomlinson to refuse to turn Alexander over to the sheriff unless he agreed in writing to protect him.

AFTER THE LYNCHERS. Topeka, Kan., Jan. 16.—Gov. Stanley last night announced that he would offer a reward of $500 for the apprehension of anyone implicated in the lynching of Alexander at Leavenworth. The law allows him to offer only $500. He said that he was also going to instruct the attorney-general at once to investigate the conduct of Sheriff Everhardy in connection with the lynching. He declared his belief that the lynching would have the effect of bringing about the restoration of the death penalty.

OPPOSED TO ANY SALARY

For the Office of Humane Inspector—F. F. Quinn Writes on the Subject.

To The Planet.—Will you please allow me space in your paper to voice my opinion in reference to a paid officer for the Humane Society.

Mr. Dagneau, who is acting in the capacity of inspector or prosecutor for this Society, now wishes to be paid a set salary of $200 a year for his services. If the mayor and council earnestly wish to reduce the taxes for the coming year, they will not listen to any request from our humane officer for an attached salary to his position.

He was quite willing to accept this position without salary, and its duties will really not be as onerous this year as in the past, as the public have become well acquainted with the fact that the abuse of dumb brutes will not be tolerated, and if he has been acting from a charitable standpoint, why not continue?

We have a well-paid police force, and one that in my opinion is second to none in efficiency in any town or city in America, considering the size of the municipality. They could easily do the same work that Mr. Dagneau is doing, and I am quite sure that they would be willing to do so if required.

Mr. Dagneau, no doubt, has done, and is doing a good work, but we are already taxed almost beyond our limit, and it is just such amounts as Mr. Dagneau's proposed salary, tacked on here and there and now and then, that gradually increased our taxes, until it has become almost unbearable.

I have always advocated good wages for a fair day's work, and an even a stickler where a few dollars are required to help a needy toiler for his daily bread, but Mr. Dagneau does not need the money, and there are many of our already over-taxed working men who have found it very difficult to pay their taxes for 1900, and everything in the council's power, consistent with good government, should be done to lighten their burden.

I am sure that a minded man and lover of the dumb brute feel grateful to Mr. Dagneau for his past services and hope, as I do, that he will not press for a salary but will continue to act in his present position with the same of the motive that has actuated him in the past.

KINGSVILLE'S WILD WELCOME To Her Returning Soldiers an Affair to be Remembered.

Feted First and Them Presented With Gold Watches—Thousands of Visitors Present.

Kingville, Jan. 16.—Two thousand people greeted Kingville's returning soldier boys at the station yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. An address of welcome was read by the Mayor. The seven boys and Trooper Allen, of Windsor, who recently returned, were quickly mounted on white horses. The Leamington company of the 21st Bitt. Coy. strong, and the Leamington company of Daughters of the Regiment, thirty strong, accompanied by the Leamington and Kingville brass bands and the Windsor bugle corps, formed the military part of the parade. There were also three of Chatham's returned soldiers in line. The old veterans of this town participated in the services on the conclusion of which the men reformed and the parade was continued through the main street, and ended at the Town Hall. The crowd, from the surrounding country had by this time swelled to three thousand. All the churches in town were open to accommodate the crowd. Tables were set in every room in the large town hall, and the crowd was fed rapidly. At the station, on arrival, Lieut. Mortimer Wigle, on behalf of the boys, made an eloquent speech in reply to the address of the Mayor. Hundreds of men with guns paraded the streets, firing volleys of welcome. The town hall was beautifully decorated. The ladies of the W. C. T. U. presented each returning soldier with a bouquet of flowers, with hand-painted mottoes attached. The brass band employees presented each man with a glass cane. A large contingent came down from Harrow with the boys. At the military concert each returning lad was made the recipient of a solid gold watch suitably engraved.

GUN CLUB WANTED. Some of the Maple City young men are seriously considering the formation of a gun club here. This will be a move in the right direction. Such a club would teach all who belonged how to handle a gun, and too few know how. When you hear of gunning accidents it is never the members of a gun club who are participants, but novices or non-members of gun clubs. The organization of a gun club here is well worthy of consideration. Other places have clubs, and why not Chatham?

head was knocked out of the 150 horse-power engine used in furnishing power for the Kent Mills. The accident was caused by a flaw in the strap on the driving shaft. A window was just behind the engine and pieces of the head carried away the window and bits of iron were picked up 50 feet from the engine house. Engineer Brady was, fortunately, in the boiler room at the time, and shut off the steam from the top of the boiler. A new cylinder will have to be put in. Harry Stevens was seen this morning. He said: "At half-past nine last evening I was called to see what could be done in regard to the break in the engine. My father and Mr. Walker arrived shortly after and, on examination of the damage, we were relieved to find that we would only have to replace the cylinder of the engine. My father and Mr. Walker left on the midnight train for Toronto to secure a new cylinder and the damage will be repaired at once. The greatest loss to the firm will be in the shutting down of the mill, but we hope to be running in a day or two. We are glad that no one was hurt."
