"My wife pro tem., I believe," said Crawford, as, hat in hand, he regarded curiously the young woman whose features were clearly the original of the photograph he held.

"I guess I must be, if your name is Crawford," she assented, with a nervous laugh. "Mine is Vanceton-Eunice Vanceton. Mr. Sholt told me you would be looking for me." And she gave him her hand shyly, yet trustingly, for Crawford had a face which inspired confidence, and even the strangeness of the situation did not blind her to that fact.

Three months before Eunice had graduated from the Wheatcroft Dra-

ASKED. matic school, and her playing in the one act comedy which marked her contribution to the graduation exercises had attracted the attention of a famous stage manager and dramatist. The latter's praise had induced Joe Sholt to engage her for his San Fran-see stock company. "I will pay fares," he told her when the contract had been signed, "but from Chicago you will have to go west with Guy Crawford, my new leading Eunice murmured some polite little speech about it being nice to have some one to look after her, thereby increasing the confusion which was already crimsoning Sholt's face. "Well-you see," he began awkwardly, "Crawford is not the worst part of the job. He's a great boy, big hearted, tender as a woman and as-as decent as actors ever come, but it's this: Crawford has friends in the railroad offices in Chicago, and he's got passes clear through to the coast for himself and wife. Now, you can save me a lot of money if you will travel as his

Sholt awkwardly lit his cigar to cover his embarrassment. By no means had he a reputation for bashfulness, but this novice might not understand the situation. Eunice blushed more rosily than he had done, and there was a tremble in her voice as she spoke. "I suppose you mean all right, Mr. Sholt," she said, "but I'm already engaged, and you really can't expect me to break my word and marry another man for the sake of a few collars. Why-why, I'd rather pay it myself!" Sholt's laugh made the windows rattle, but seeing that his companion was on the verge of tears he suddenly sat up. "My dear child," he explained, "you don't have to actually get married. All you have to do is to act as though you had known Crawford for a few years; no honeymoon, you know-just pure business, and only the porter and the conductor will know you as Mrs. C. You are Mrs. Crawford from Chicago to Oakland. You enter Frisco as Miss Vanceton." So it had been arranged, and though her fiance objected Eunice convinced him that it was no worse than being a man's wife on the stage, and Jack Hamilton was even disposed to joke about it as he saw her off in the Erie station. "Remember," he cried as he waved adieu, "it's only a wife pro

Here in the Chicago and Northwestern station it was something of a shock to look up at the tall, handsome fellow and to realize that she would be Mrs. Crawford for the ensuing three days. But she followed the man to the train rather pleased that her companion should do such credit to her supposed taste. It was late in the afternoon when the train pulled out. The Lake Shore train was late in getting in, and the western train was held. Finally the heavy laded cars swung slowly out of the station and, gathering speed, started on the three day run. Eunice was tired and immediately after supper had her berth made down, and she saw little of Guy until she stepped offthe car at Omaha the next morning to take a short stroll on the platform. Guy was already out, and he has i ******* Fear. '-Philadelphia Press. BABY'S OWN TABLETS was his greeting, and, noting her start, he continued: "I will have to call you Eunice and you must call me Guy to keep the conductors from taking up that pass. The C. and N. W. man came to me last night after you had retired and made me prove identity, because, for one thing, you had no ring on. He was a bit suspicious. I had letters that fixed me up all right, and I explained that actresses seldom wore their rings-that sort. At the same time, to save the pass, would you mind wearing this? It was my mother's." And he drew from his finger a plain gold band.

She slipped it on her hand, wonder ing what Jack would say, but the moment after she had forgotten young Hamilton in the charm of Crawford's conversation.

Like most actors of the better sort, Crawford was a capital talker, ever ready to amuse and careful to use the personal pronoun sparingly. The long, dusty trip, ordinarily so tedious, passed rapidly, and by the time Ogden was reached Hamilton was forgotten, and that night more than once Eunice caught herself looking at the wedding ring with more interest than she had a

The next morning the spell was completed. They were in the snowsheds, and her first glimpses of the Sierras strongly moved this city bred girl. There was a grandeur in the scenery that the Catskills lacked, and when the sheds were passed she sat on the steps of a passenger coach with Crawford at her side to explain everything until her somewhat hysterical temperament was thrilled by a strange sense of exaltation, in which the Sierras and her companion were sadly jumbled. Even when dusk closed in and Crawford led her back to their own car she was strangely silent and at dinner answered his laughing remarks in mono-asked herself. At last it did end. The train pulled on to the wharf at Oakland, late, as Southern Pacific trains usually are, and they boarded the ferry for San Francisco. It was a perfect California night, the blue sky studded with stars. From Alcatraz a few lights were reflected on the water, while to the west Mount Tammaplais loomed above the foothills-a very night for romance, and as Eunice leaned over the rail she sighed softly. Guy looked said gently, "but I shall always re- IT TELLS OF A BREAKFAST CERRAL member this trip. Usually it's so dull across the desert. Has it been tiresome to you?" "No," she cried; "anything but that: At first I was afraid of my-my-'husband,' but you were so good that I soon forgot that part. It was almost real. I never supposed marriage was so happy." 'It isn't," he replied harshly; "it's all right pro tem., but the quarrels will creep in. My wife and I always book in different comparies because we always fuss when we're together, and at that we get along better than most." "His wife!" Eunice laid her head on the rail, and for a moment she forgot everything. Then the auto suggestion, the unconscious influence, of the man and the mountains passed away, and she was herself again. "I thank you so much for your kindness, Mr. Crawford," she said in her ordinary tones. "I have had such a pleasant time, and I hope that when I am married to a man back east I will be as happy a real wife as I was when a wife pro tem. Here is your divorce!" And she handed him his mother's wedding ring. England's Early Coal Trade, Though the records of the incipient coal trade are scanty, they show that a traffic in coal first sprang up between London and the Newcastle oa-Tyne coalfields. A lane in a suburb of the metropolis where the burning of lime appears to have been carried on was already known as "Sea Coals lane" in 1228. A particular notice also occurs of the arrival of shiploads of sea coal in London in 1257, and small purchases of it were made for forging iron at Westminster palace in 1258-59. It was usually sold by the quarter. At Billingsgate, in the time of Henry III., every two quarters of sea coal paid a duty of a farthing. Sea coal was likewise bought at Berwick-on-Tweed in 1265, so that by the middle of the thirteenth century a small trade in coal was evidently being carried on along a large stretch of the eastern seaboard. The growth of the trade is reflected in the increasing revenue of Newcastle-on-Tyne, which, from being £100 a year in 1213, had risen to £200 in 1281 owing to the coal trade of the port. From smiths and lime burners the use of coal extended to artisans who used furnaces in their trades. In Nottingham, situated on the confines of a great coalfield, this movement appears to have commenced very early. Queen Eleanor was unable to stay there in 1257 on account of the smoke of the

The Farmer's Success Depends upon his Freedom from Disease and Euffering

Paine's Celery Compound

Is the Medicine that has made thousands of country toilers well and strong.

There are thousands of farmers in our land who are rich in broad acres of land and in gold, yet lack that true wealth known as good health.

It is a melancholy fact that men and women in the country districts, breathing the purest air and drinking from God's bubbling fountains and limpid springs, are liable to the same diseases and ailments that come thick and fast to city people. We find rheu-matism, neuralgia, debility, dyspepia, kidney and liver troubles blood diseases almost as common in the farmer's family as they are in the city Paine's Celery Compound, Heaven's best blessing to the farming community has done more more for the banshment of dread disease and the building up of health than all other combined medicines, Mr. G .J. Smye, well known farmer, of Sheffield, Int. "It is with great pleasure that I testify to the value of your great medi-cine, Paine's Celery Compound, For nearly two years I suffered from indigestion, kidney and liver troubles. After trying several medicines that did not effect a cure, I decided to try your compound. Before using it was so low in health that I could not eat or sleep. I could not lie in bed owing to pain in my back; it was only by resting on elbows and knees I was enabled to obtain a slight degree of ease. Before I had fully taken one bottle of your medicine I began to improve. I have now taken in all 14 bottles with grand results. I am farmer and am now working every day. Anyone may refer to me in regard t othese statements, or to any of my neighbors around Sheffield, where I am well known. I am a living witness of the worth of Paine's Celery Compound." The insuring coone's life is one of those enings which one is most apt to put off. There are few, however, who postpone what ought to be the !nevitable until so late a period in life as did the tough old smack owner of Grimsby. When he presented himself at the insurance office, he was naturally asked als age. His reply was, "Ninety-four" Why, my good man, we cannot insure you." said the company. "Why not?" he demanded. "Why, you are ninety four years of age." "What of that?" the old man cried. "Look at statistics, and they will tell you that fewer men die at ninety-four than at any other age."-Loudon Business 11instruted.
