The last of the Agricultural Exhibition.
Medicine Hat and its surroundings. A trip into British Columbia. Return to Calgary.
Old Acquaintances in the North-West.

(Staff Correspondence.)

CALGARY, Oct. 14th.—My last letter was dated from Regina, where our work of attending Agricultural exhibitions closed, much to our satisfaction, for although we had enjoyed the two weeks spent in that way and appreciated the fine opportunity it gave of learning the resources of the country and getting acquainted with the people. Still we were not sorry when banqueting and exhibitions were over and we were on the train speeding our way to the setting sun. Regina was left at about midnight, and when morning came we found our train bowling over a level prairie with here and there a small lake, pond, and now then an alkali flat, looking like a pond frozen over. No place of importance until the Saskatchewan was crossed and Medicine Hat comes in sight. The Hat is quite a thriving little place, and although the soil here looks as if it were quite second-rate for agricultural purposes. The Hatites would listen to any such thing, but claim that just away from the line they have soil equal to the best in the N. W., and in proof of the fertility of their soil they had a large case with a glass front on the station platform on exhibition, samples of what their soil would produce in cabbages, potatoes, turnips, onions, &c., and if these were fair averages, their soil is all right. All aboard and we are away again. The Hat is the next town of any importance, but night is around us again and the prairie looms up near and again in the distance is all there is to break the monotony, except a gas well that was burning near where the train stopped, which gave us an excuse to stretch our legs and watch for a short time the brilliant flame that was coming out of a four inch pipe, about four feet high, and making a bright spot in the darkness that seemed more dense at a distance. We passed Calgary in the night, and morning found us nearing Banff, where we ought to have stopped but did not. I will not attempt to describe the mountains, because, like the man who lost his shoes, I could not do them justice. We breakfasted at Field station in British Columbia, a C. P. R. Hotel, got up almost regardless of expense, situated right in the mountains, and to my mind one of the finest spots on the road. Our Photographs did not lose the opportunity of getting a picture here. As the hotel only expected to feed about ten, and there were about fifty it took some time to get breakfast over. The conductor however was obliging, as we have found all the officers on the road, and the passengers were assured that the train would not leave until all had time to get their breakfast. After passing Field we began to notice the work of the glaciers where the trees had been cut off in their descent, just as if a great plane had been run down its sides. Now we run along the edge of the Beaver river, a dashing roaring foaming river, with a rocky bed and green water. The water in the mountains is all of green color. Now the scenery is best on one side of the car, and the passengers are all on that, trying to take in all there is to be seen, and now it is best on the other side, and we all go for that side, each one trying to point out something startling of the mountain in their descent, just as if a great plane had been run down its sides. Something About Numismatics.

The question is often asked by some one not engaged in the pleasant pursuit of coin collecting: "What personal enjoyment and benefit does the party so engaged derive, in return for what requires time, research and a liberal expenditure of money? Does he possess that keenest of all interests, the supreme relish for such things which only one man in ten thousand possesses?" And still wondering, we display tray after tray, upon which rests specimens which we have been years gathering together, he asks "How has it come about that you have collected such a wonderful assemblage of coins and so many relating to this country? Such a task is almost without precedent." Smilingly we crave his kind indulgence for a brief space of time, giving a short history of the coinage of the world and generally, and with some flowery statement like this: "History and Numismatics being synonymous terms, it follows that to the history and geography of a country there can only be added the money of it, naturally the science does much toward enlightening the world, and here is a Summer Island Sixpence, please examine and tell me its history. A fine specimen you say, on the obverse is a hog and on the reverse, a ship under sail, and the legend runs: "Summer Island," a piece perhaps of exceeding rarity, and further you cannot go. However, as a record of all sales is published and memorized by those engaged in the art, I am enabled to give you its history. It was formerly owned by Mr. Bett, of Brooklyn, and was purchased by the collector, Mr. Parmenter, of Boston, for the modest sum of $400. The Summer Island is so called after Sir George Summer. It is one of the Bermuda Islands. Sir George died there some time in 1610, having gone there to visit his wife. The island abounded with wild pigs and the date of these coins is probably from 1610 to 1619. They are the earliest coins intended for American use, but when coined cannot be actually stated.

Constipation

Is a universal and most troublesome disorder. It causes Headache, Mental Depression, impairs the Sight and Hearing, destroys the Appetite, and when long continued, causes Enlargement of the Liver, Inflammation of the Bowels, and Piles. Constipation is speedily cured by Ayer's Pills.

(Written for the Post.)

I suffered from Constipation, in consequence of which I suffered from Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, and a disordered liver. My eyes also troubled me. I was unable to wear a shade over them, and at times was unable to bear exposure to the light. I was entirely cured by using three boxes of Ayer's Pills. I have no hesitation in pronouncing this medicine to be the best cathartic ever made.—J. J. Ayer, Lowell, Mass., U.S.A.

HAY PRESSES.

PARTIES intending to purchase a TRENHOLM HAY PRESS will find it to their advantage to correspond with the Subscriber, who is agent for Westmorland and Cumberland Counties, as to the number of acres in each lot, and the price of the Presses, as they are ordered except those that have been ordered.

The Presses are superior to any other in the market, being more powerful and machine than the Moncton Presses, which cannot be worked in a barn floor. The Trenholm Press will work any where, and will press two tons of hay to the ton, and with the same number of men, and is as convenient to move, the difference in cost of wire per ton being 20c. less,
which will pay the extra cost for power.
