A great deal of English capital, Mr. Hosmer, says, is being invested in the West. Wealthy land-owners found the Lloyd-George budget pressed to upon their resources, and many of them were selling their estates and purchasing larger ones in Western Canada. One gentleman, in single transaction, bought western property to the value of $300,000.

Another incident illustrative of de elopment Mr. Hosmer related in connection with the visit to the Okanagan fruit district. Half a dozen years ago a man from that region came east and painted the possibilities of the valley in such glowing colors that six gentlemen in connection with the Canadian Pacific directorate decided to advance $10,000 each for the purpose terest, but there is now a population
