The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

Are you one of those people who think that vices and virtues or what commonly go by those names, are north and south poles? Because they aren't.

You may think that you can put all the vices in one box and label them "vices," and all the virtues in another and label them "virtues," and set them side by side and that they will never jump over into each other's compartments.

But they will.

We have as great a person as Goldsmith's authority for a character, "even whose failings leaned to virtue's side."

And we all know an unselfishness that is so extreme as to be selfish in its appropriation of all the self-abnegation in sight.

And there is also a less popularly recognized example, in the sympathy that is so exaggerated that it is decidedly more a vice than a virtue.

Which is what I started to talk about.

It is this "sympathy" that starts and circulates and signs petitions to commute the life sentence of the convicted murderer.

There is in a Massachusetts prison on a man named Jesse Pomeroy who is undoubtedly the worst type of a degenerate. While hardly more than a child himself, he enticed two children away from their homes and cruelly tortured and mutilated them.

He was put in prison, but before long was released through the efforts of a "sympathetic" woman—I am sorry to admit is more apt to be a woman who runs the virtue of sympathy into a vice. This time, besides mutilating and torturing several more children, he killed three.

He has been put back into prison, sentenced for life. That his abnormal instincts still exist was pleasantly shown recently when his request for a cat as a comrade and pet in his solitude was granted, and he tortured the animal to death at the first opportunity. And yet every now and then some sympathetic person starts a movement to get his sentence commuted.

It is this "sympathy" that calls justice cruel when the good of all demands that some man should be made an example of.

It is this sympathy that completely spares the modern substitutes for the rod—and thereby completely spoils the child.

It is this "sympathy" that refuses to step on the worm that destroys the beautiful trees and vegetation.

Real genuine sympathy is about the most beautiful quality a man or woman can have, but this sloppy, mushy, short sighted, indiscriminate emotion that dares to call itself by that name isn't sympathy.

How can it be anything good when it places a little present suffering above much future happiness?

How can it be anything good when it places the welfare of a single individual above the welfare of the community?

It's just plain hysterical sentimentality.

And if, whenever you meet with it, you will characterize it by that name, and treat it as such, and avoid it as a contagious disease, you may put yourself on the back for having helped to discredit a very discreditable impostor.

Rev. Fr. A. Fyfe arrived here by the S. S. Portia on Saturday the 11th inst., to take up the duties of Rev. H. S. Renouf who was transferred to the parish of Trepassay last summer.

The village of St. Bride's was one mass of flags from end to end and as the Portia steamed into St. Bride's the bells of the R. C. Church rang out a welcome peal for our Parish Priest. At the landing a number of the St. Bride's gentlemen and ladies both old and young met and a little farther up the road the school children were assembled to the number of 30.

As Rev. A. Fyfe drew near, master William Doherty advanced to meet him carrying his own native flag and called for three cheers for Fr. Fyfe, P. P., St. Bride's and all the school children responded. Then the children advanced to meet him with their flags waving singing the following verses:

We come, we come, we come to-day
With joyous hearts to meet you;
We come, we come, we come to-day
With melody to greet you.
On every face the light of love for you
Is beaming.
Happiness mingled with music
Ashore;
In every heart sweet hope for you is gleaming.
As we gather here to greet our Parish
Priest, Fr. Fyfe, to-day.
Welcome, welcome, dear Fr. Fyfe;
Welcome, welcome, Rev. Fr. Fyfe.

At the close of above one of the children, Miss Seleana Lundrigan, presented Rev. A. Fyfe with the following address:

Rev. and Dear Father,—Very pleased and honored I feel to-day at being selected by the teacher, Miss Kathleen Condon, on the part of my companions to offer you a most cordial and respectful welcome to the parish of St. Bride's. We trust that your stay among us will be a prolonged one and that the days your reverence will spend in the parish of St. Bride's will be for you full of sunshine, peace and happiness.

We all know what a loss the city of St. John's has sustained by your leaving, and what a great benefit the parish of St. Bride's has gained by your coming among us, and we hope that we will profit by it. We also hope that by our obedience to your commands you will never regret leaving St. John's.

We know that at first you will find St. Bride's dull after city life. However, in the course of time, we hope you will like St. Bride's, and remember, dear Fr. Fyfe, that it will be our aim always to serve you.

Wishing you every success in your new home, signed on behalf of the children and teacher,

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

- Clam bouillon, served cold, is delicious on a warm night.
- To prevent needles from rusting, keep them in waxed paper.
- When making salmon salad, add a hard-boiled egg or two, carefully diced.
- Never stir a sponge cake batter. If that is done the air is allowed to escape.
- To overcome the habit of biting the finger nails, soak them in liquid quinine.
- Underwear should be ironed on the right side; colored clothes on the wrong side.
- Apples and onions shredded together make a sandwich filling that many people like.
- Green peppers, stuffed with fresh green corn and baked, make a dainty luncheon dish.
- Cold slaw, served in green pepper shells, is a suggestion for a dainty luncheon addition.
- To keep a veil crisp, dip it several times in alcohol and hang it up indoors to dry.
- A fine grater is better than a knife for removing the surface of anything that is burned.
- To quickly prepare horseradish or
- coconut, pare it and put it through the chopping machine.
- In sleeping keep the head as low as possible, so that the blood may have unimpeded circulation.
- A mixture of cream cheese and dates makes a delicious filling for a brown bread sandwich.
- It is much easier to climb stairs if the head is held erect and deep, regular breaths are taken.
- Pecans and almonds may be chopped coarsely and sprinkled over dressed lettuce for a dinner salad.
- In ironing fine silks and muslins, place a piece of fine cambric between the iron and the material.
- Powdered yellow ochre mixed with rice flour and rubbed on lace will give it the creamy tint so much desired.
- Olives and English walnuts, ground together and moistened with mayonnaise, make a tasty luncheon sandwich.
- Handles of table knives should never be immersed in water, or they will inevitably discolor and become loose.
- To freshen stale cake, dip it for a moment in cold milk and then rebake it in an oven at low temperature.
- When a receipt calls for a cupful of anything, it means a half-pint—an ordinary cup filled level.
