Divorced Life

By Helen Hanson Fugate

One Rich Young Man

Marian dropped into a bench facing Riverside Drive, and divided her attention between a book of short stories by Leonard Merrick, one of her newly discovered favorites among modern writers, and the procession of motor cars which slid silently by on the smooth pavement. It was a sunny, drowsy day, but her soul held a grey and restless mood. With envious eye she watched the finely-groomed children of the rich strolling here and there with their governesses. It would be an easy thing, she reflected moodily, to grow into a childless middle age. In troubled retrospection, she looked back upon the snarl of her own domestic circumstances which she had cut with the scissors of divorce.

"Ah, we meet again," said a pleasant voice. Marian looked quickly up, to behold a tall, graceful, well-dressed figure. It was Jack Meadows, the youth who had met at Mrs. Walther's dinner. "How do you do? Won't you sit down?" she said, glad that her depressing reflections had been cut off by the other's arrival. "If I may," responded Meadows, dropping to the bench. "Merrick?" he added, catching sight of her book. "We have a taste in common, then. I consume Leonard Merrick with avidity. Takes me back to the old Montmartre. He's a merry romancer, with a style like old wine."

"Then you know Paris?" murmured Marian with interest. "The Latin Quarter, yes. My people sent me over to study art, but I reneged, and became enslaved to the pen. It was the most absurd thing I ever did in my life. With smattering of art, I might have done something worth a certain degree of credit. A writer without genius is a mess. Without originality, he is impossible. That's me. I want to do the thing. It's in my blood, heart, and mind, but I can't get it out. Oh, I put things over now and then, but it's always the sort of thing I'm ashamed to sign my name to. There are some magazines here that will buy anything provided it's absurd and impossible. You write, they tell me?" he asked.

"I wouldn't call it writing," smiled Marian frankly. "I can't even do the absurd, impossible things you speak of."

"Ah then you have genius," returned Meadows seriously. "I haven't even enough genius to find a job," answered Marian, resignedly.

"Found in the cabin of the Victory, Nelson's unfinished message to his Emma is in the British Museum. Ten years ago we saw an ardent collector give £1,000 for the national hero's last complete letter to her who dominated his life like a second Cleopatra from the Nile to the end. Last week at Christie's, it was the wife's turn," says the Telegraph. "Unknown to the main to most of Nelson's biographers, came a number of letters written to Lady Nelson from the days of courtship, in 1785, to the melancholy finale, in 1800, when the two parted forever."

"The following is that which Lady Nelson sent to him in July, 1801, after the battle of Copenhagen:—

"My Dear Husband,—I cannot be silent in the general joy throughout the kingdom. I must express my thankfulness and happiness it hath pleased God to spare your life. All greet you with every testimony of gratitude and praise, this Victory is said to surpass Aboukir—what my feelings are your own good heart will tell you—let me beg, nay intreat you to believe no Wife ever felt greater affection for a Husband than I do—and to the best of my knowledge I have invariably done everything you desire, if I have omitted anything I am sorry for it. On receiving a letter from Our Father, written in a melancholy and distressing manner—I offered to go to him if I could in the least contribute to ease his mind, by return of Post he desired to see me immediately—but I was to stop a few days in Town to see for a House. I will do everything in my power to alleviate the heavy infirmities which bow him down. What can I do more to convince you that I am truly Your Affectionate Wife?"

Never sit on the edge of a sick person's bed and never place your chair so that he must strain his eyes or turn his head to look at you.

For Peace.

The following order has been given by His Grace the Archbishop. Until further notice the prayer "Deus a quo, etc." pro Pace shall be said in the Mass, rubrics permitting, after the "Oratio pro Papa."

Prices.

It is only too true that prices on food stuffs are advancing day by day, the market being put "in sympathy" with the markets away. However much this may be the usual custom of business ethics (?) in the present case some effort should be made to lessen a burden on our people who have to face bad times. In addition to increased prices. All that is needed is a group, however small, of importers to say "we shall sell present stocks at old prices" and the rest will follow suit. The President of the Board of Trade has now his opportunity.

THEOBALD.

"Beautiful Lady."

By the Prima Donna, at the Crescent—Five Acts of Feature Movies. The closing performance at the Crescent Picture Palace this week must be admitted to be one of the strongest bills seen in this city for some time; it is assuredly the best ever witnessed since the opening of the Palace. "The War of the Cattle Range" a two-reel Western drama with William Clifford and Phyllis Gordon, is followed by one of those ever pleasing society dramas, "The Awakening," by the famous Power players. "Grease Paint Indian," a humorous Eclair comedy is preceded by an interesting travalgue "Holy City of Japan." The Prima Donna Miss Alice Clark who has since her initial appearance on Monday last created such a favourable impression with the patrons of the House of Features will be heard to advantage in the well known operatic selection "Beautiful Lady," as sung in the Pink Lady and which ballad has gained the world wide fame.

To-morrow afternoon the usual big Saturday Matinee will be held.

News From Labrador.

According to reports brought by the S. S. Kyle from the Labrador Coast the fishery will be a failure and that 600 craft are held by ice at Ico Tickle, Indian Harbor, Rattle's Bight, Fish Cove, Blowhead Cove, New Harbor, Tub Harbor and Cuff Harbor. Since the previous trip of the steamer 20 vessels got north but six of them were driven ashore and became a total loss. Three of the shipwrecked crews came along on the Kyle to their homes. On Friday last the ice loosened at Griffin's Harbor, some traps were set and good fares were secured.

The annual Garden Party in aid of the new R. C. Church at Portugal Cove will be held on Wednesday, Aug. 19th.—aug6.1f

S. A. Congress.

Owing to the uncertainty of Colonel Unsworth reaching the City in time to fill his Sunday engagements, his lecture in the T. A. Hall has been postponed until Sunday, August 16th. The outport officers visiting the city will be sent to the different corps, where special service will be conducted all day on Sunday.

Prospero Back.

The S. S. Prospero, Capt. A. Keen, arrived back from northern ports yesterday afternoon, after one of the quickest trips on record, bringing a full freight and seventy passengers. The ship brings word of a slight improvement in the fishery north.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, Aug. 7th, 1914. We do not do much shouting about our Camphor and Harralson Liniment but that is not because we have not the fullest confidence in it or in what it can accomplish. Those who have used it are practically unanimous in its favor, and say it is about the best of its class. At any rate people are buying it, and if you need a good liniment for general purposes—and a bottle of something of the kind should be in every house, we can thoroughly recommend this liniment. Price 15c. a bottle.

Acme Corn Silk is one of the speediest means of getting clear of corns, and one of the least painful. If your corns all, try this handy plaster. Price 10 cents a pkg.

YESTERDAY'S BASEBALL.—The city team again defeated the visitors in the second game of the inter-town baseball series for the Reid Cup, the score being 22 to 13. In four innings the visitors notched up 13 runs, batting freely. In the fifth round Rosier pitched for the city team, and to him is largely due the victory of the city team.

All those feet had Corns

Watch the feet that now trip lightly. All of them had corns.

But the owners learned of Blue-jay. They applied it in a minute. There was no more pain. The corn was forgotten. And in two days the corn came out.

Soon or late you will treat your corns in that way. You will stop the paring, stop the old-time treatment. You will deal with corns in a scientific way.

You will take them out, with no soreness, no pain, no inconvenience. Nearly half the corns in the country are now ended by Blue-jay—a million corns a month.

Why wait? Other ways, as you well know, don't really end a corn. Why don't you try this easy, painless, most effective way?

Why don't you try it now?
