WHY MEN FAIL.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Life is often pictured as a race. Would it not be even nearer the truth to go a step further and call it an obstacle race.

A business friend of mine had told me of his plans to work out a new system of office management. When I asked him a few weeks later how the new plan was coming on he said, "Well, you know I haven't gotten at it yet. There's been one thing after another to hinder me. I'm waiting for a week when things are quiet."

That was some months ago. The last time I asked about the plan he was still waiting for the quiet week. I imagine he will have to wait a long time, don't you?

When one waits for opportunities one usually waits a long time.

The only way to get an opportunity of this sort promptly is to make it instead of waiting for it.

Saving Time on Twenty-Four Hours a Day.

Putting aside time for any purpose is like saving money—there is always something to prevent. If we wait until the day comes when it is easy to do either of these things we shall still be waiting when we are called to move on to our next existence.

"Next week I shall have more money to spare," we are always promising ourselves in apology for a bank account not yet started. "This week I have this or that extra expense."

"Next week I shall have more time," we are always assuring ourselves in excuse for not accomplishing something worth while. "This week there has been this or that extra call on my time. I won't have that to distract me next week."

And then next week comes, and lo, we find that although we do not have the same extra demand upon our time or our pocketbook we have some other equally imperative and diverting.

Never the Same Thing But Always Something.

It won't be the same thing two weeks in succession that makes saving time or money hard, but it will be something. If it isn't one thing, it's another. It's always something.

Life is an obstacle race. Those who win it win by dint of overcoming one obstacle after another. The failures are these who are going to begin to run just as soon as they see a clear road before them.

And now, here's hoping that those who are already doing too much won't take this to heart and try to do more, and that those who could do much more won't say, "Well, that dosn't mean me. I'm doing all I can."

Questions and Answers.

Question. If a friend brings a girl a box of candy should she open it before him or set it aside until he has gone? Supposing a few other friends are expected later in the evening, should she open it for them or say nothing about it?—An interested reader.

Answer. It seems to me the gracious thing to open any gift in the presence of the giver and thus give him the pleasure of seeing your pleasure. As to the other question, that is simply a personal matter. I should think the nicest thing would be to offer the candy to your guests. Perhaps your friend brought it with that in mind.

Nfld. Reservists.

Wounded in Falkland Fight.

Two of the Newfoundland Naval Reservists, Alexander Clarke, of Trinity, and James Keates, of Fogo, were passengers arriving here on Sunday. Both came out from Liverpool on the Hesperian, which reached Halifax Saturday evening, and are on their way home suffering from injuries received in the naval battle on the Falkland Islands, when the German fleet was destroyed. Clarke has a badly shattered knee, while his comrade is suffering from nervousness, due to the frightful roaring of the guns while in action.—Sydney Herald.

[The young man Clarke, referred to above, is a son of Mr. Henry Thomas Clarke of Delby's Cove, he arrived here by train Saturday morning last. Mr. Clarke has another son serving on board one of his Majesty's ships.]—Ed. of Enterprise.

STRAFFORD beheaded 1641, aged 48. As a member of Parliament he supported the opponents of Charles I. but afterwards became a Royalist. As Lord Deputy of Ireland he carried out a strong policy known as the "thorough." When impeached by the Commons of high treason he was deserted by the King and executed on Tower Hill.

WILLIAM PITT, Earl of Chatham, died 1778, aged 70. He had a long and distinguished career as a statesman, and was the most eloquent Parliamentarian of his time.

DANTE GABRIEL ROSSETTI born 1828. He showed great talent as a painter from boyhood, and became one of the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood, formed in 1848. He also distinguished himself as a poet.

It is but poor eloquence which only shows that the orator can talk.
—Reynolds.

Football and Baseball.

Just as much interest as ever is being taken in this year's football games. All the clubs who took part last year will again be represented. Practice has begun and the opening game will come off about the middle of next month. There is a depletion in the ranks of all the teams owing to enlistments. That means the bringing into the arena of new material.

Enthusiasm in baseball is going on apace and members of the teams are on the go each evening getting into shape.

A general meeting of the League will be held Saturday night next when the season's fixtures will be drawn up.

DAUGHTERS OF MEN AND THE BILLIONAIRE.

The last opportunities will be given to prospective patrons of the "Casino" Theatre to-night to see these two most interesting subjects. These photo-plays have met with most excellent patronage, and they are both of great interest and highly entertaining. The performances commence strictly on advertised time.

To remove grease from woolen materials, rub in powdered French chalf. After some hours shake it out.

To clean ribon, sponge with alcohol and rub over the spot with clean white soap, holding the ribon straight.

Nation as Football Team

Sir John French Centre, Lord Kitchener in Goal.

Major-General Sir S. B. von Donop, Master-General of Ordnance, addressing the men of the Small Arms Factory, Birmingham, told them that Lord Kitchener, the Army Council, and the whole Army very much appreciated their excellent work.

The British nation could be compared to a football team led by that admirable centre forward Sir John French, the other forwards being the British Army. His audience and he joined the back and the half-back line. It was their business to feed the forward line with guns, rifles, ammunition, and other equipment. The goal-keeper was Lord Kitchener, to whom they had every confidence.

SIX PICTURES AT CRESCENT.

The big picture programme of six pictures advertised by the Crescent Picture Palace to-day is one of the best arranged programmes that's possible, every picture is the production of a first-class company which insures the very best acting and photography; the comedy pictures are particularly strong including such comedy stars as John Bunny, Marshall Nielman, Ruth Roland and others. Mr. Delmonico sings "Back to the Carolina you Love," quite a new novelty song made famous in New York by Al. Jolson; he will also give vocal cornet imitations: "Mother McCree." You should hear Mr. Delmonico in these two numbers and see the fine picture show. The Crescent opens at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 o'clock in the evening. Don't miss the Crescent to-day, it's a splendid show.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.

There was as usual a crowded house at the ever popular little theatre; the two little sisters Squires were loudly applauded when they sang their patriotic song: "Little Tommy Atkins." To-night there will be an entire change of pictures. Mr. Rossley has a fine selection of films, all the pick of the English markets and they are shown to the best advantage on the fine sheet at the select, comfortable house at the West End. Coming: a new singer.

FRIDAY'S BIG CONTEST AT ROSSLEY'S.

On Friday the contest will be far ahead of any, there are lots of names and some fine novelties. An elderly lady intends dancing. She says that if the gentleman who won the first prize last week could win five dollars so seasy, she can. There are some real good turns among them, and it promises to be the best yet. When six first class prizes have been won, the six winners will again compete, and the winner will receive a big money prize or a full week's engagement at a good salary. There is in preparation a beautiful little pantomime entitled: "There was an old woman who lived in a shoe." The Rossleys, Mr. Brown and Miss Locke, the pantomime children in beautiful costumes all new, new scenery and electrical effects; one of the most beautiful productions ever seen here, arranged by Miss Locke. See the new crinoline girls, dainty, petite and pretty.

"HIS FIRST CASE." AN EXCITING FILM.

The Nickel Theatre is always recognized as the best, as it shows only the finest pictures on the market. The mid-week programme which will be given this evening will appeal to all. The feature film is a thrilling detective story in two parts entitled: "His First Case." This is a beautiful drama, the plot being one of the most interesting ever shown here. The orchestra will give another attractive programme this evening. The Nickel's orchestra is now the best procurable. Mr. Howard Stanley will be heard in an attractive song. Be sure and attend to-day's show.
