

NOT HIS WIFE'S—
NOT HIS DAUGHTER'S—NOT HIS—A MAN'S HOME!

Frederick Osborn had won his way to wealth and power in the commercial world by sheer strength of character. His way in the affairs of business had always been the successful way. It was hard for him to understand that the successful conduct of a home called for entirely different methods.

He had fought to make his home—and just as valiantly he fought to protect it.

Screen celebrities of the first magnitude engage in the telling of the story—

THE OIL OF LIFE.

"Habit is either the best of servants or the worst of masters."—Emmons.

If someone should come to you and ask you if you would sell your habit of orderliness (this, of course, is addressed to those fortunate or unfortunate enough to possess it) for a thousand dollars, would you do it (if you couldn't get another)?

Perhaps you would. But I fancy that if you did there would come times when you would regret it.

Someone has called good habits the oil of life, and I think no better expression could be devised.

Every good habit that one forms, however small, makes life a little more smooth running in the future.

He Must Pick Up After Himself.

We all know how much work it is to pick up after a disorderly child. Some day it is going to be just as much work for that child to pick up after himself. But if he can be taught never to take off a garment without hanging it up, never to take off a pair of shoes without putting them in their place, in his early youth, that will become so much a second nature to him that he will feel no effort in it. Wellington once said that habit was ten times nature. Pretty strong, I think. But at least habit is second nature, and one can acquire the habit of doing certain desirable things that one will do them entirely without effort.

I was trying to straighten out my checkbook from a frightful muddle into which my trick of writing checks without setting them down when I am in a hurry, and later setting them down from a tricky memory, had gotten me, when a friend came in.

Before She Writes the Check.

"Don't you ever get your checkbook into a mess?" I asked.

"I did at the very first," she said, "then someone advised me to form the habit of always making out the stub before I wrote the check. I never think of doing it any other way now, so I seldom get into a mess."

That same person makes it a rule never to put a letter into an envelope without first addressing the envelope. She says that also keeps her from muddles.

A habit worth about 185 hours a

Canadian Poet for Labrador Gold Fields.

OTTAWA, May 29.—Lloyd Roberts, author, essayist, short story writer, and poet is leaving for Labrador shortly. Accompanying a party that has been attracted by the lure of gold, Lloyd Roberts is seeking material of another color, in more senses than one. He hopes to secure material that will serve to point a moral and adorn a tale in the furtherance of his ambition as one of the Dominion's rising young literateurs. The goal of Mr. Roberts and those whom he is accompanying, a party numbering six all told is Stag Bay, Labrador, over 300 miles west of Belle Isle Straits, and a 1,000 mile sea trip from Halifax. At his home on the south shore of the Ottawa River, near McKellar townsite and with the high water of the river actually lapsing the doorstep, Mr. Roberts indicated the causes that had induced him to take the journey to a land about which, but for the work of Dr. Richard Grenfell, the world-famed medical missionary to deep-sea fishers, practically nothing might be known. The accidental finding by two men of traces of gold has resulted in a small expedition of prospectors being fitted out, and Mr. Roberts has been afforded an opportunity to accompany them, but for his own purposes entirely. The party expects to sail shortly. Apparently nothing will be heard from the party after leaving St. John's, Newfoundland, until it is established by means of drilling in the Big Brook area, whether or not gold is sufficiently plentiful to be attractive to many eager prospectors who are known to be awaiting results, when this news will be wirelessly from Battle Harbor, Labrador, the nearest operating station.

A GARDEN.

A little garden is the sign
That man believes in God above,
And for the lovely things and fine
Has room within his heart for love.

I never see a pansy bed
Or rose in blossom in a yard,
A tulip with a yellow head,
But that house kindly I regard.

There dwells a man, I tell myself,
Who trains a summer vine to climb
Despite the age's strife for self.
For beauty here he still has time.

Let crickets sneeze that men are base
And scolders sneeze that gold is vain,
A little garden is the place
Where man's affections we behold.

A little garden bright with bloom,
With all the beauty that it brings,
Is proof that someone's heart has room
To cherish nature's lovely things.

year (you can convert that into money) is the habit of getting up when you wake up instead of lying a half hour or so. If I had that habit I certainly wouldn't sell it for a thousand dollars.

Perhaps you cannot give your children the money or the chances you would like to give them, but if you can help them to acquire that habit, what an endowment you will give them.

Even as You and I.

Do you remember the cry of Paul in Romans: "For what I would, that do I not, but what I hate that do I." I think that is the most poignantly universal human thing in all the Bible. That's life—doing the things we don't really want to and leaving undone what we wish we had done. And that's the wonderful thing about a good habit. It helps us to do the things we ought to do as a matter of course.

Blessed is the child who lays in a good stock of the oil of life in the early years when that oil is easiest come by.
