THEY ALWAYS KNOW A BETTER WAY.
S p e a king of bores, do you know any worse one than the person who wants to show you a better way to do it? It may be anything—making a bed, or putting on a postage stamp, or weeding a garden, or arranging your household routine, or (most likely of all) bringing up your children.

a new sense of its beauty and serenity and her great good fortune in being able to spend the summer there.

What I Do.

Now we have a new neighbor who does not approve of this custom.

"I don't see how you can bear to miss a day in this lovely country," says she. "I find the summer all too short; just think we have ten months in the city—and only two in the country. How can you bear to give up a day there? I dug up an awfully good woman to do my washing down here. I think if I asked her she'd take yours. Don't you want me to?"

"Well," explains my neighbor apologetically (goodness knows why she should have to explain herself or take an apologetic attitude, but that is the effect the people who know a better way have on the rest of us), "I like to give the work to that woman at home because so many of the people she works for go away in the summer and she finds it hard to get along and she is awfully good."

She Suggests Another Way.

"Well, that's very thoughtful of you," says the woman who knows a better way, generously, "but I'll tell you what you could do. Get one of these fibre cases and send your washing to her parcel post and let her do it at home. When I took a trip last spring with my husband and we didn't stop long enough to hunt up a washerwoman we did it that way and it worked splendidly."

"I suppose I might do that," says my neighbor weakly, "but she hasn't got a very good place to wash at home, and I really like to get up town and do a few errands. I like to go and I like to come back."

The woman who knows a better way laughs with indulgent superiority. "Aren't you funny," she says. "Why I couldn't bear to waste a day of this lovely country. Of course it you like to rush up to town—"

A Gift To Be Overcome.

At which hand washing my neighbor is profoundly relieved. "I was almost afraid," she tells me afterwards, "that I should find myself doing as she says. She makes you feel so silly somehow if you don't. I wonder how she does it?"

She will never know, my neighbor, because she isn't that type.

You have to be born that way to know. Or maybe you don't know even then! You just have the gift, unless you overcome it.

Just Folks.

THE SPIRIT

Hold fast and fatter not,
Live out your time,
Nor rust nor rime,
Nor failure's bitter toll
Can scar the soul.

What matters is not loss,
Which men deplore,
The sting of bruises sore
Nor hunger unappeased,
But is God pleased?

Serve not your pride,
That way lies shame,
Bear if you must men's blame
But, high above the crowd,
Let God be proud.

Not what you've won shall count
In life's strange race,
The humblest pose or place
May see its hero crowned,
Whom fame has never found.

Glory and hurt are kin,
Forgotten with the years,
Vanish both smiles and tears;
Be you not turned aside—
God knows what you have tried.

To-Night's Attraction
at the Star Movie.

Reference to the ad. on another page of to-day's paper will show that at the popular Star to-night, there is going to be shown a unique and novel entertainment, and the management has for its patrons a most entertaining surprise, and one they will surely enjoy.

The picture par of the program is a most varied and pleasing one, the main feature being a Hugh Ford production, with an all Star cast. The "Leather Pushers" which made such a big hit last Friday, will again be in action, and all will, no doubt, be anxious to see Reginald Denny in the second round, which will be even more exciting than last week.

Mr. Tesori has two very pretty numbers, entitled "Heart to Heart" and "Buddy my Buddy," and needless to say in the hands of such a finished artist, they will be faultlessly rendered. Monday is the opening of that sensational picture "To Have and to Hold." In the very title there is romance—there is a thrill in every scene. Here is the love story you have dreamed of and now made into a mighty picture of love and adventure.

Here is romance—here is drama—here is melodrama—here is everything that makes the heart beat faster in a quality that the screen has never shown before. In "To Have and to Hold" you will see a picture that you will talk about for months. Don't miss it Monday.

Little William had been taken by his father to the seaside for a holiday. "By gum, father," observed William, "isn't there a lot of folks on the sands this week?"

"Aye," said his father, "but there'll be a lot more on the rocks next week!"

The First Lifeboat.

One of the most extraordinary cases of what may be called an accidental invention is that of the lifeboat. A man named Wouldhave was out walking one day when he was asked by an old woman to help her lift a can of water which she had filled by means of a broken wooden bowl.

The bowl was floating on the surface of the water, and as he talked to the woman, Wouldhave turned it over with his finger. It immediately righted itself. Amused by the antics he repeated the performance; then it struck him that he had made a wonderful discovery. The result of his chance meeting was the self-righting lifeboat, which was designed by him on the lines of the broken bowl.

What he had discovered was that anything made of floating material and shaped like one-half of a basin could float only with its convex surface downwards. A boat made on these lines cannot remain upside down for more than an instant when it is turned over by a heavy sea.

Colored beads are used on the flowers, with a background of dark sprangles, on a tunic from Georgetown.

As to the sleeves of the dress, some are very wide, loose in affairs, and others are neatly red into a fur banding.

Strips of red satin ribbon, embroidered, are used on the cuffs and of a frock of cinch-styled silk and wool crepe.
