When the Lehigh express drew into the Grand Trunk depot just as the city hall bell was ringing 12 noon today, it had on board Ald. John Marshall, the sturdy representative of No. 6 ward, who has been termed the "key" of the deadlock from the fact that his vote is required to counteract the designs of the Conservative members of the council on the "spending" ber of miles wheeled by these club members is about 35,000,000 every year. committee of the City Council.

Ald. Marshall has been absent in have?" Mr. Marshall was asked. "The roughest I have ever experienced," he replied. "We encountered some terrible storms."

"Did they delay you much?" "Well, the Etruria should have arrived in New York on Saturday, but did not reach the dock until yesterday morning." "I suppose you will be at the council meeting tonight?" "Well, I rather think so," replied Mr. Marshall in tones that left no doubt of his intentions. And the deadlock's hours are numbered.

John Reece Arre ed for Vagrancy Suspected of Being Implicated in Something More Serious-Police Will Say Nothing.

John Reece was one of the two occupants of the Police Court cage this morning. He was rather well dressed, and of respectable appearance to be charged with vagrancy, but such was the offense registered against court. "Vagrancy," replied Reece, as though greatly surprised. "I do not under-stand you. You will have to explain the meaning of the word, as I never heard it before."

The magistrate gave a thorough explanation as to the classes of persons who were liable to be charged as vagrants, and when he had concluded, laughed.

In reply to numerous questions, Reece said he came from Hamilton, but had no home. His wife was dead; he had no children. Chief Williams asked for a remand, stating that he had telegraphed for a witness who lived in the country. Reece was arrested on suspicion of being implicated in an offense elsewhere, and was held, awaiting identification.

A remand was made for a day. Chief Williams was seen after court adjourned, but refused to give any information concerning the prisoner.

The other occupant of the cage was a young man named McInnes, who is charged with stealing several sums of money from Butcher Hamlyn, of Grey Herwas remanded for a week.

MILLER'S SENTENCE.

The Belment Hotelkeeper Gets a Year in the Central-Unlawfully Wounded Daniel Smith - Miller's Narrow Escape From Being Tried for Murder.

Judge Wm. Elliot on Saturday afternoon found John H. Miller, of Belmont, guilty of the second count preferred against him by the crown authorities -that of unlawfully wounding Daniel Smith.

Miller is the hotelkeeper who shot at Smith with a revolver and wounded him on the head. The first count in the indictment charged the prisoner with shooting with intent to wound. Sentence upon Miller was passed by Judge Elliot this morning. On being arraigned, Miller asked for leniency, and said that when he fired the shots he had no idea of hurting Smith. The latter had proven himself a general nuisance around the hotel. Judge Elliot said that if found guilty upon the first count, Miller would have been liable to imprisonment for life. On the count upon which he was convicted he was liable to three years in the penitentiary. On the evidence offered, however, it was impossible to come to the conclusion that the shots were fired with an intention to wound. "But you armed yourself with a pistol," said the court, "and fired at Smith. The ball grazed his head, and according to the medical evidence, if it had gone an inch lower Smith would have lost his life and you would have been in all probability on trial for yours. The practice of carrying firearms must be put down with a strong hand, and any judge who would let such an offense pass is unfit to fill the position. The very lowest sentence can pass is that you be confined the Central Prison for twelve months. I make the sentence that light because Smith had provoked you, and also because you have never been before the courts before." Miller took his sentence without any evidence of surprise.

RUSSIA VS. JAPAN. The news of a revolution in Corea, attended by the murder of the Prime Minister and several other officials, has excited the Foreign Office, where the movement is regarded as a coup d'etat in the interest of Russia. The revolution in Seoul last October, in which the Queen was murdered, removed the greatest enemy of Japanese influence in Corea. The Japanese envoy, Viscount Miura, virtually nominated the Ministers, who kept the King almost a prisoner, the counter revo-lution, the destruction of Ministers, the anti-Japanese movement, and the fact that the King has sought refuge at the Russian Legation, has caused intense excitement in Japan. This, coupled with Russia's efforts to secure a naval station in Corea, is likely to lead earlier than was expected to a conflict between Russia and Japan.

He told me that the first man that he had killed turned out to be his father's chum, and a dear friend of his own. But the accident that most impressed him-in fact he will never forget it-happened at night. They struck and killed a woman at a country crossing. They stopped and tenderly lifted the bleeding body onto the tender, and laid it back well up on the coals, intending to carry it to the next station. He was feeling very blue-it makes even railway men feel bad to kill people-and as the train resumed its headway he gloomily pulled open the door of the firebox and turned mechanically to shovel coal. Horrors! The light from the glowing fire shone backwards like a searchlight, and there, directly in front of him were the crushed features and matted hair of the dead woman! No wonder he dropped his shovel!

Every time the furnace door opened after that, until the next station was reached, a fireman shovelled coal with his eyes closed and what was akin to a prayer on his lips.
