The resident in question rented a house adjoining his own to a very respectable family, and shortly after their installation his herd of chickens began to grow beautifully less. He could not account for the fact, nor did he, until the other day his chickens flow out one by one from his tenant's cellar window and came home to roost. Said tenant received immediate notice to quit, and after he had left, a regularly-equipped chicken coop and egg paraphernalia was found beneath the house.

As reported in this morning's ADVERTISER, Willie, the 5-year-old son of Mr. Richard London, strayed away from home yesterday afternoon, and his parents never saw him alive again.

The last person who saw him alive was Mr. Perry Norris, who met the lad in the street near Clark's bridge about 3 o'clock. Mr. Norris asked him where he was going. Fishing, 'he said.

"A" Troop, First Hussars.

Dr. Weld has returned from Quebee, where he took a short course of instruction at the Royal School of Cavalry and passed a creditable qualifying examination. Sergt. Dinnen, who has also returned from the same school, where he spent over nine months, was very highly complimented by the commandant on leaving Quebec. Sergt. Dinnen is an enthusiastic cavalryman, and will doubtless prove a valuable non-commissioned officer in the troop. Sergt. Smeaton, one of the veterans of the same cavalry school, purposes coming to when Dan McCarthy takes the leading role. A splendid crowd greeted Mr. McCarthy in his production, "The Rambler frem Clare," last night. He was supported by a strong and capable company, with vivacious and charming Miss Kittie Coleman as Rose Dwyer. The play abounds in rollicking Hibernian witteisms, and Irish pathes, and the eye that would be twinkling with merry laughter in one minute would be sad and tear-stained the next. The company appear again to-night, and lovers of Irish drama wil! doubtless avail themselves of what may possibly be the last show of its kind this season, and is sure to be a thoroughly satisfatory entertainment.

turned from Cleveland with passengers and freight. This was her first trip for the season and it was a most delightful one. Mr. T. F. Hawkins, of Youngstown, Ohio, met Capt. Ellison in Cleveland to arrange for a large party of 100 Youngstown people to come to Port Stanley in July, and camp where they did last year cast of the village at what was known as "Squaw's Rest," for at least two months, and Mr. Hawkins also arranged to run an excursion from Youngstown to Port Stanley, when 200 will come over just for a few days. So it is evident that things are not going to be quiet at the southern resort this season though things have been somewhat unsettled in railway matters of late.

A Delicate Question Settled.

A Delicate Question Settled.

Apropos to the meeting of the annual military camps this year, the question as to whether a volunteer is compelled to salute an officer in meeting one on the street clad as a civilian is being discussed. The adjutant-general has given it as his opinion that the action to be taken under was entirely optional opinion that the action to be taken under such circumstances was entirely optional with the former. While it was proper for a private who knew an officer to salute the latter at such times, this was not obligatory. The institution of a regulation which would necessitate the recognition by a private of an officer—far below him probably in social position—whom he might meet on the street a dozen times a day, would be absurd and useless.

Here is a good goose story, which is all, the better because we have its reliability well vouched for. John Cook, of Gienwilliams, has a goose 43 years of age that the williams, has a goose 43 years of age that spring. She was, so we are reliably told, born in the spring of 1851 and is still hate and hearty. Others of her kind, including her multitudinous offspring, have come and gone, but she has gone on for nearly half century. Last year the old lady laid nearly a dozen of eggs. Her eyesight and hearing are both good, and she has never been troubled with rheumatics or such ills as many other bjeds are subject to. Were in that Sir Oliver's Government has declined to yote.
