LONDON MAN CLAIMS PERPETUAL MOTION FOUND William Cole, of Cathcart Street,

Thinks He Has Made a Wonderful Discovery. At a little house, No. 102 Cathcart treet, lives William Cole, a shoemaker, who claims to have solved the problem of perpetual motion, or gravi-power, William Cole is an old man, and he as been working at this problem since was a boy at Cheltenham, Gloucesershire, but it was not till 1884, he said, that he thought of his present

The plan consists of a long shaft, arranged so that it will remain steady and not sag while distributing its weight directly. Around an axis at the centre of this shaft radiate nine shafts with wheels, which rest on an eighth of a circle. These wheels, which are arranged to rest on the circle just beyond their central axis, are supposed to revolve under the law of gravitation, nd as there are nine wheels on an eighth of a circle the motion will be perpetual, as when one wheel ceases act another takes up the work.

Blocked By Finance. Mr. Cole says that he has not the ioney to make a satisfactory model o demonstrate his discovery. Years ago he had one made, but it was not built solidly enough, and so didn't suc-He has sent his plans to the Nobel Foundation in Sweden, but as he says,

They did not care to take advantage "Some people think I'm crazy," he ontinued, "but I'll never go to the asylum over it any way. MISSION SOCIETIES IN FLOURISHING CONDITION

All Reports Presented to Women's E. McAlline, Appin, Melbourne; Mrs. D. Home Missionary Society Were Very Satisfactory.

Delegates from all the different societies of the London Presbytery were Breakwater at Eric Rest, Port Stanpresent at the third annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, which opened yesterday afternoon in the First Presbyterian Church. The reports of the different auxiliaries and mission bands showed these institutions to be in a most flourishing Greetings were received from the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and the Bible Society. Rev. George Arthur, M. D., who is in charge of the hospital at Vegreville, gave the address of the afternoon. He told of the work being done among the foreign people that are pouring into in front of their premises, and as a the great west, and spoke of the way result the establishment of hospitals has stopped. aided in the missionary work, by gaining the confidence and love of the people in ministering to their temporal

Good Work. The donations of books and clothing sent out by the society had also aided the work materially in the same way. Many cases were cited where to the families who had just come to the Twelve to two, for 35 cents, at Hotel country were practically destitute, and all the money they could earn had to go towards buying the necessary machinery for running their little farms, and a goodly number of the people were not properly clothed, and the timely gifts of clothing did much to remove the prejudices that often existed against the missionary, and opened the way for definite missionary

The Medical Missionary.

The medical missionary, as well as his medical work, had a great deal of educational work and charity to attend to. The building of these hospitals throughout the country had opened a great opportunity for reaching the people, as it was easier to gain their confidence, by ministering to their needs in this way." The Officers.

The officers of the Woman's Home Missionary Society are as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. Andrew Thomson, London; president, Mrs. James Rollins, London; first vice-president, Mrs. W. J.
