

The Industrial Resources of Nova Scotia, comprehending the Physical Geography, Topography, Geology, Agriculture, Commerce, Contemplated Railways, &c., of the Province. Halifax, 1849, pp. 341.

[Report of a Case Tried at Albert Circuit, 1852, before His Honor Judge Wilmut and a special jury. Abraham Gesner vs. William Cairns. St. John, William L. Avery, 1853, pp. 168.]

A Practical Treatise on Coal, Petroleum and other Distilled Oils. New York & London, 1861, pp. 134; 2nd ed., revised and enlarged by G. W. Gesner, New York & London, 1865.

The Gold Fields of Nova Scotia. Halifax, 1862, pp. 12.

Gibson, Rev. J. C.

Sermon preached in St. Paul's Church, Woodstock, N. B. Woodstock, 1857, pp. 11.

Gilbert, A. G.

From Montreal to the Maritime Provinces and Back. Montreal, 1867. 4[Reprinted from the Montreal "Evening Telegram."]

Gilbert, Rev. E., St. Andrews.

Sermon on 2 Cor. XIII. 13, delivered in 1813.

Glazier, Alfred A.

The Irving Club among the White Hills. St. John, 1877.

Glass, Rev. Chas. Gordon, was born in Scotland in 1820 and died at Montreal on Nov. 28, 1882. He graduated with honors at Aberdeen, and came to New Brunswick and founded the Presbytery of York and the village of Glassville. He afterward did pastoral work at Springhill, N. S., and was employed in Woodstock College in Ontario.

Our Educational Question. St. John, G. W. Day, 1868.

Goldsmith, Oliver, grand-nephew of the great English poet of the same name. His grandfather was Henry Goldsmith, elder brother of Oliver, and who, it is believed, furnished the latter with a model for his master pieces of pen pictures—the school master and the poor curate.

His son Henry left his home and settled in New England. He accompanied the Loyalist band to New Brunswick and settled at St. Andrews, where he received the appointment of Collector of Customs. Later he removed to Annapolis and filled a position as Deputy Assistant Commissary General there. He was afterward transferred to St. John, and died June 6th, 1811, aged 56.

At Annapolis his son Oliver was born in 1787. He entered the commissariat department as clerk and eventually obtained the position which his father had held. He took a warm interest in Free Masonry, and for several years was Worthy Master of Albion Lodge, St. John, where he resided for a long period. He removed in 1844 to Hong Kong, whence he sent to Albion a set of solid silver lodge jewels. He died in July, 1861, at Liverpool, England, and Albion held a "Lodge of Sorrow," a ceremony seldom held in St. John.

He was much given to literature and had collected material, it is said, for a biographical work on distinguished men of his native province. His chief effort, however, was a poem—The Rising Village—modeled after "The Deserted Village" of his famous grand-uncle. The poem was first published in London in 1825. In 1834 a second edition was published in St. John along with other poems. The latter is a small silk bound volume neat in appearance. The book is dedicated to the inhabitants of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia and the title poem to his brother, Henry Goldsmith, of Annapolis.

In his preface he says: "The celebrated author of 'The Deserted Village' has