

kept in good order for those who care to participate in these pastimes, while boating, bathing and fishing may be indulged in by the patients. In the house the men can have the use of the billiard table, and the smoking-room is provided with all things necessary to make it a pleasant lounging place.

Every patient comes under the direct care of the physician-in-charge, Dr. John Urquhart. The "habit" that has weakened the will power yields to well-directed scientific treatment. In addition, the improvement in the general health of the patient is very noted.

The institution is founded on the recognized fact that alcoholism is a disease, and a curable one. The essentials for cure, such as rest, complete change, and special treatment, are hardly possible, except in an institution devoted to the one purpose.
