WHAT LACK OF SYSTEM AND THOR-OUGH KNOWLEDGE OF BUSI-NESS COSTS.

Recently while passing a building being erected, says H. B. Wetzell, in the Woodworker, I noticed that the lumber used for the outside sheathing was of several different kinds and grades, from cull to clear, hard and soft wood. I asked the contractor why he used such a mixture when it was customary to use a uniform grade of lumber for sheathinggenerally a low grade-for a building of moderate cost, such as this. He replied that he had bought a considerable quantity of such lumber, at a low price from a country mill man, and hauled some of it directly from the cars to the new building without overhauling or regarding it.

Most of the building was already covered, but probably 1,000 feet of the sheathing lumber lay by the building ready to be put on. I overhauled some of this lumber to see how it would grade as to quality, thinking that I might get hold of some "soft snap," as this contractor had done, if I could pick it up at the same price. Of boards that I examined, they would have come within the grades of inspection worth the following prices:

One	board	containing	16	ft. at	$25.00	per M	$.40

This was about an average of the whole lot, and the 130 feet at the prices named, would have been worth $14.20 per thousand if it had been properly graded and marked. The lowest grade in this lot answered the purpose for which it was t required, worth $9 per thousand, and the contractor or mill man had lost $5.20 per thousand. As 7,000 feet of lumber was used on this building, the contractor failed to save $36 which he might have done by proper manipulation. As the mill man had sold the contractor 60,000 feet of this lumber, he must have been stupidly ignorant or careless, to allow $300 profit to slip out of his hands which he might have saved, and the contractor was equally as stupid or ignorant when he failed to take advantage of such an unusual opportunity to make some money.

In the contractor's lumber yard and about the mill there was no order or system. Boards, plank and scantling were scattered around promiscuously, thrown across piles, or not piled properly, until they were warped all out of shape, so they could not be used for the purposes intended. In one of the passage ways a wagon had run over two clear white pine plank, the one measuring 48 feet of lumber and the other 56 feet, worth $45 per thousand. They were so split, bruised and splintered, that they were almost worthless. There was a loss of nearly $4 on these two planks through carelessness. I

Between two narrow piles of lumber, someone had shoved out of the way, these clear poplar boards 28 inches wide, 12 feet long. The rain and exposure to the sun had warped them until they were so dished that they could scarcely be used. Here was another loss of about $2. A loss of $6 in the two items alone! Others might be mentioned, but these will be sufficient to show that such leakage will in time use up that man.
