

Section 10 of The Copyright Act of 1911 is as follows:

(1) Any person who, without the consent of the author, copies or causes to be copied any work in which copyright subsists, or any substantial part thereof, shall be deemed to have infringed the copyright in that work.

(2) It shall be deemed to be a copy of a work in which copyright subsists, or any substantial part thereof, any record or recording of that work, or any substantial part thereof, made by any means, and in any form.

(3) It shall be deemed to be a copy of a work in which copyright subsists, or any substantial part thereof, any copy of a copy of that work, or any substantial part thereof, made by any means, and in any form.

(4) It shall be deemed to be a copy of a work in which copyright subsists, or any substantial part thereof, any copy of a copy of a copy of that work, or any substantial part thereof, made by any means, and in any form.

(5) It shall be deemed to be a copy of a work in which copyright subsists, or any substantial part thereof, any copy of a copy of a copy of a copy of that work, or any substantial part thereof, made by any means, and in any form.

(6) It shall be deemed to be a copy of a work in which copyright subsists, or any substantial part thereof, any copy of a copy of a copy of a copy of a copy of that work, or any substantial part thereof, made by any means, and in any form.

(7) It shall be deemed to be a copy of a work in which copyright subsists, or any substantial part thereof, any copy of a copy of a copy of a copy of a copy of a copy of that work, or any substantial part thereof, made by any means, and in any form.

(8) It shall be deemed to be a copy of a work in which copyright subsists, or any substantial part thereof, any copy of a copy of a copy of a copy of a copy of a copy of a copy of that work, or any substantial part thereof, made by any means, and in any form.

Section 10

Section 10

Section 10

Section 10

Section 10

Section 10

Section 10

Section 10

Section 10