CBC EMPLOYMENT PRACTICES

Question No. 2,628—Mr. McKenzie:

1. Is CBC advertising or otherwise soliciting in other countries for applicants to positions with the Corporation and, if so (a) in which countries (b) for what positions (c) what are the other details?
2. For how long and for what positions has such practice been employed in the past?
3. What is the reason for such practice?

Hon. James Hugh Faulkner (Secretary of State): I am informed by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation as follows: 1. Yes (a) Britain, France, U.S.A. (b) Britain: television production and program management staff, engineers, clerical staff. France: technician, clerical staff, U.S.A.; clerical and research staff. (c) See below.

2. Advertising for staff in other countries to work in Canada is not a common practice of the CBC. Staff have been sought in this way only within the last two years.

3. The clerical staff are hired by the CBC's foreign offices in London, Paris, New York and Washington because in these locations the law requires that local people be hired if they are capable of doing the work. This category includes stenographers, accountants, switchboard operators, researchers and messengers. The television and program management staff were sought for possible employment in western Canada. This was in order to attract exceptionally well qualified and experienced television staff to western regional centres. In addition, international searches for a head of television drama and a head of television variety programs for the English services division were carried out. On a referral basis persons of international status were sought in Canada, Britain and the United States. In the case of drama the search took place in the spring and summer of 1973, in the case of variety the search began in the spring and summer of 1974 and was resumed in 1975, once the position of director of television entertainment programming, which had become vacant in the meantime, was filled. Both positions were filled with Canadians. Also hired by referral within the last year in order to obtain exceptionally well qualified and experienced staff were three television drama directors from Britain, one of whom was a Canadian resident in Britain, two current affairs producers from Britain and one current affairs researcher from the United States. Engineers were sought in Britain after an extensive advertising campaign in Canada produced only three qualified candidates for approximately twelve positions. Similarly, a technician was advertised for in France after a search had been made in Canada for a broadcasting technician qualified to train other personnel.

LAUNDRY PRODUCTS

Question No. 2,784—Mr. Hnatyshyn:

Do certain laundry products designed to cut static electricity in dryers have the tendency to clog lint screens in dryer exhaust vents and cause dangerous overheating and, if so, is it the intention of the government to ban the use of such products?

Hon. André Ouellet (Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs): These antistatic laundry products leave a residual film in use. The film will deposit on tent screens of dryers and cause more rapid clogging than would be encountered when they are not used. This effect is increased when excessive amounts of the antistatic product is used. Product labels provide very specific use instructions and a caution to clean lint from traps after each dryer load. In view of the label information provided to consumers, the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs is not considering a ban at this time.
