Loach was an employe of the Bell Telephone Company, and at the time was stringing wires with other linemen at the cor-ner of Yonge street and Woodlawn avenue. His fellow-workmen do not know whether he touched a live wire and thus received a shock or whether he missed his footing and slipped. After the accident he was taken to the General Hospital in an unconscious condition, and he died three-quarters of an hour after admission. He was 40 years old. His body was removed the morgue, where an inquest wil he held.

the Province of Ontario in this nickel question were so linked up with those of the imperial government that we should not proceed without consulting them. Accordingly, after the govern ment reached the decision to appoint a commission we got into communi-cation with the imperial authorities and asked that they recommend a competent metallurgist who might be chairman of the board. The time consumed in official correspondence has been responsible for the seeming delay, but as soon as the decision of the imperial authorities was announced no time was lost in naming the remaining members of the board."

To Visit Norway. Until Mr. Holloway reaches Ontario from England the work of organizing the commission will be carried on by his associates. No time will be lost. It is likely that the commission, or a part of, it, will go to Norway to investigate the refining process used in that country, and that at least one member will take the long trip to New Caledonia to report on methods use there.
