

stations; the 40th were transferred from the Bombay to the Bengal Presidency, and ordered to Meerutt. The 41st, with the 3rd Light Cavalry, and Leslie's Troop of Horse Artillery, who had performed most exemplary scenes throughout the whole campaign, were ordered to proceed down to Scinde; the 41st for Europe, and the remainder to Quarters. In a few days after this, Ferozepore began to get thinned of Troops. The Governor General proceeded to Loodiana, where a General Court Martial was sitting for the trial of the prisoners who had been re-captured from Akbar Khan's oppression. A grand durbar was held, prior to the departure of the Governor General, when the principal Chiefs of the Sikh Country were presented. Dost Mahomed was ordered to be conducted in safety to the frontiers of his Territory. General Nott was appointed as Resident at the Court of the King of Oude, and parted in tears from his Brigade, who were equally affected at seeing him ride off. He addressed them in a very few words, his heart being too full to speak much. I left Ferozepore with Captain Adamson, and sailed down the Sutlej for Sukkur, where I arrived on the 16th February, 1843; after sailing twenty-one days down the river, which joins the Indus, and where I met, just arriving the same day, the Brigade named as having left Ferozepore for Scinde. The Sutlej being part, and, in fact, a continuation
