

YOUNG ORDERLY SAVES LIFE OF COMMANDER, BUT GIVES HIS OWN

Touching Story of Trench Devotion Received.

ORDERED TO STAY BACK

Burly German Shot Down as He Tried to Kill Lieut. Walters.

A touching story of how a young orderly saved the life of the late Lieut. J. J. Walters and later himself received a military medal in the arms of the lieutenant who related in this city on Thursday by Mrs. Green of St. Thomas, wife of Col. Green, who took the 21st overseas. Mrs. Green returned only recently from England.

When the company of which Lieut. Walters had command was about to undertake an important raid, the orderly, a 17-year-old English boy named Marr, prepared to go along. Lieut. Walters told him to remain behind, as he was too young for the task, and also impressed upon him the fact that he had a mother at home who he should think of. Young Marr insisted that he was going to follow his commanding officer wherever he went.

Ordered to Stay Behind.

Lieut. Walters repeated his instructions, said they were orders, and considered the incident closed. The company reached the German trenches and engaged at close quarters with the enemy. Suddenly a burly German appeared directly in front of the lieutenant with his gun raised and pointed squarely at the officer. Just behind the latter there was a crack and a flash, and the German rolled over dead before he had time to shoot. Lieut. Walters looked around and found at his elbow the youth who had disobeyed orders to stay behind. He had killed the German.

Shortly afterwards the orderly was wounded. Lieut. Walters picked him up and started to carry him back of the lines for attendance. As he proceeded a bullet pierced the little fellow in the abdomen. The officer proceeded with him and placed him in the hands of the hospital corps. "Now, can I do anything more for you?" he asked, as he prepared to hasten back to the fighting line. "No, lieutenant, I am done for," was the response. And he was.

NO MORE APPOINTMENTS FOR ACTIVE MILITIA

No more officers will be appointed to the units of the active militia, according to instructions received from the militia department. The order, issued by Lieut.-Col. Brown, assistant adjutant-general today, states that no more officers will be appointed to the units of the active militia, but that all other units of the militia are included. Lieut.-Col. Brown explained that the order applied to regular or provisional appointments, and that the militia units will be required to get along with the officers already on their staffs. Recently the reorganization and retraining of the militia was decided upon, and so far no large number of men have been enrolled on the strength. Those who are already in the militia will continue, but the fact that no more officers will be appointed for the present makes it plain that the reorganization of the militia will not be insisted upon and will not be pushed.

NEVER SAW FINER COMPANY OF A.S.C., SAYS COL. COLES

Inspector Has High Praise For Lieut. Evans.

Drill Perfect, Horses and Equipment Are Well Cared For.

The best company in Canada, and doubtless as good as any in Europe, was the commendation given by the members of the Army Service Corps Details at the Supply Depot by Lieut.-Col. Coles, who yesterday afternoon inspected them at Queen's Park Camp.

Lieut.-Col. Coles, after putting the men through the various movements required by Army Service Corps men, complimented Lieut. G. Evans, officer in command of the Details, his officers and men on the good show they had made. He expressed the opinion that the drill was perfect, that the horses were well-cared for, and that the wagons and other equipment were in first-class condition. The Supply Depot was also commended for the clear and well-kept appearance of the camp.

"I never saw a company of Army Service Corps men in better shape," said Lieut.-Col. Coles. "I am sure that there is no better company in Canada, and doubtless there is a better one even in Europe."

Lieut. Evans and his officers, Lieuts. Cassidy, McQuinn and Saunders, may feel justly proud of the work they and their men have accomplished, and the fact that they have received such commendation from Lieut.-Col. Coles, an officer of long experience, is a great credit to the efficiency and earnestness of both officers and men.
