Stock-taking day is close at hand — big savings for you. The necessity for stock reducing before stock-taking is absolute. We have determined upon liberal price reductions to cut down our holdings. Profits are lopped off and a good part of the cost. There is only one time during the year when the necessity for low pricing is so urgent, and this is the time. We will gladly extend the time for payment of purchases.

Echoes PARLIAMENT HILL

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—(Special to The Sunlay World.)-The Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on Tuesday night placed himself in the position of agreeing to a motion of the leader of the opposition when his followers in the full flush of party warfare demanded that the proposi tion be vetoed by the majority. Thereby hangs a tale. The whole country still holds in memory (for the incident happened less than two weeks ago), that the government supporters voted down a motion of H. B. Ames, member for the St. Antoine division of Montreal. for the production of the original papers relating to the granting of certain timber limits out west. The copies had been produced; but Mr. Ames told the house that in respect to nine documents out of a total of over 400 it was necessary, in order to have a thoro understanding of the matter, to see the originals. In payticular there was the handwriting which he desired to inspect. This was his reason for asking the government to lay the papers on the table of the house, and perhaps that it may be clear that Mr. Ames did state his ons, let us quote from Hansard

Mr. Ames: * * * Now, there are nine pages of that return which can be illumined if I may see the originals. As to all the other pages the copies are all I want. But there are nine pages there with respect to which the copy does not tell me all I want to know, or which I have the right to know, if I understand my rights in this house of commons.

Mr. Oliver: Does my hon. friend say that these nine pages differ from the original?

Mr. R. L. Borden: How could he tell unless he sees the original?

Mr. Ames: I say that these nine pages will in all probability clear up certain doubts which I have regarding peculiar features in con-nection with some of these trans-actions: I say that the handwrit-ing of some of these hime pages may have a very important bear-ing on the case. * * * Adopt any method you like, move any amendment you like, but establish the principle that when we on this side of the house have what we consider good and sufficient rea-son we may have the right to see an original document, or else be prepared to take the odium thruout the country that you do not wish an original document to come light.

r Wilfrid's answer was the ringing of the division bell, and the vote was 86 to 51 for suppression. This week he adopted the principle that the house had the right to see and examine all documents. Mr. Borden's motion declared that:

Subject to such considerations of public policy as can be validly urged in any case, it is the unubted right of the people's representatives, in parliament assembled, to be informed of everysembled, to be informed of everything necessary to explain the policy and proceedings of the government, and for that purpose to have an opportunity of seeing and examining all documents connected with the transaction of public business; and the denial of such right by the government justifies the refusal by this house of further republies to the crown. supplies to the crown.

"I have not a word of exception

"I have not a word of exception to that motion," said the premier. "It meets my views. It states a truism; but in the application of this truth, I simply go back to the position taken by the authorities and by my hon. friend himself, namely, that in the exercise of this right an oppressive demand might be made which the government might have the right to re-fuse. That being the case, it is necessary that the reasons for the demand should be given. If my hon, friend from St. Antoine division (Mr. Ames) or any other member should ask for the original papers and give good reasons for his request, certainly his description. mand will be immediately complied with. But when he says that without any reasons whatever he claims the right to have the archives of the government brought down and laid on the table, I do not agree with him. For the reasons I have given I have no objection in agreeing to the mo-It will, in the face of the declara-tion of Sir Wilfrid, be for the people to decide whether he was justified in refusing the demand of Mr. Ames.

Two other events of supreme inportance transpired during the week.
There took place an academic discussion on the value of the senate, and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux gave to the house the result of his mission to Japan to discuss with the mikado's government the best methods to be adopted to check the flow of Japanese immigration into British Columbia. With regard to the senate, three propositions were discussed, and a variety of views were expressed. It is significant that only one of the speakers regards the upper chamber as an utterly useless body. H. H. Miller of South Grey is yet a young man, of abundant optimism—consequently he regards himself as well outside the class of public men who look forward to some day being put quietly away into the chambre de repos. There are other young men in the commons besides Miller, but they seem to have a sufficiently long

The statesmen then in opposition had been crying in the wilderness for 18 years, and they had begun to fear that they were doomed to perpetual disappointment. Consequently they regarded the senate as a proper thing to attack. They wanted to do away with it. But not so the present opposition. Many of them are "fit and proper persons" to be pro-

"And so, if the Canadian people the Liberal ranks. A former Libe should some day take it into their heads to abolish the senate they may do it, regardless of the constitution, which decrees that parliament shall

The net result of Wednesday's byelections is that the government wins a seat. How to figure out, a moral victory for the opposition in the face of this fact seems to be a difficult proposition. The general public do not understand the processes by which moral victories are won—they look at the table of strength and they ascertain if the government is richer or received by reason of the test in the victory for the opposition in the poorer by reason of the test in the constituencies, and so the general pub ile knows that the government mathem. jority has been increased by two by the transfer of South Huron from the Conservative column into the Liberal.

moted to the upper chamber, and while sthey will listen to any reasonable proposition of reform, they want the red chamber preserved as a bultwark of the British constitution.

Speaking of the constitutional aspect of the constitutional aspect of the stange the old order of things it so change the old order of things it we have the senate, and we must put up with it," some of these people say, forgetting always that if it can be shown that the senate is useless the sovereign people may abolish it, if not by one method, then by some other.

Those who regard the constitution as a sacred thing not to be changed are not few—there are many of them in this parliament. Discussing this aspect of the situation an M. P. reliated the other day a little story in lasted the other day all little story in lasted the other day all title story in lasted the other day all title story in the same to do the impossible. An individual who found himself in jail on a more or less trivial charge sent for an attorney to discuss what steps should be taken to secure his release.

Splendid Artists in Repertoire at Theadvent of the Vandenberg grand Opera Co. at the Princess Theatre a week from Monday is possibly one of the most important musical events of the season. The organization is a most extensive one as regards numbers, and quite pretentious as to its leading artists.

As a matter of fact, the Vandenberg Co. is the only grand opera organization now touring the principal cities at modest prices, that is to say, at one dollar and a half as the top price. When it is considered that such celebrities as Irma Monti Baldini, a oprano of much excellence, who has been styled the "Bernhardt of the op-eratic stage;" Mme. Du Barinski whose rare quality of voice has been much commented on; Laura Moore. Clare Benson and a half score of oth-The debate of Jan. 20 was at feast illuminating, and those who took hart are to be commended for their centributions. That of G. H. McIntyre of South Perth was a most thoughtful address, giving evidence of careful preparation. He omitted nothine in the effort to do full justice to the senate claims of usefulness, and also he fully stated the arguments urged on behalf of abolition and reform. H. H. Miller of South Grey presented a strong argument for abolition, but he was the only speaker to advocate such a drastic measure.

The opinion is general that the senate has nothing to fear from this momentary expression of popular dissatisfaction. Now that the people's refused to lay the documents on the filles of the documents on the satisfaction. Now that the people's taken out of the house and relegated to the dump, where ke many questions that are dealt with spasmodiceally, but are not worked into
