Mother and Daughter Tour Europe

"A two-months open-air picnic," is the term used by Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery, of Philadelphia, in describing the motorcycle tour of the continent which she and her daughter, Miss Julie Avery, are planning for this summer.

Miss Avery will graduate from the College of Agriculture of Wisconsin in 1918. Mrs. Avery is also a special student at the same school, and when they have finished their studies there they expect to take up farming near Philadelphia. While on the continent the Averbys will study agricultural conditions, will visit the home of the Alderney and Guernsey cattle on the Channel Islands, and the Holsteins and Dutch Beited in Brittany and Holland. In many of these places garage accommodations will probably be very limited, and the motorcycle will be of advantage as it can be housed in a very small space. It was partly on this account that Mrs. Avery chose the motorcycle to carry them on their tour; also because the cost of upkeep of the two-wheeler is less than that of even a small automobile.

The motorcycle on which Mrs. Avery and Miss Avery will ride is equipped with a sidecar, also a luggage carrier on which they will carry farming necessities and a well-fitted lunch box. And they expect to spend most of the time out of doors when the weather permits.

Mrs. Avery and her daughter are very enthusiastic about their trip, and are as enthusiastic about the opportunities offered by farming. And they believe that the two-wheeler will be of great value when they have completed their course at the university and take up farming as a business.
