GRAND JURY ACTS IN SLAVE INQUIRY

Six Witnesses, Two of Whom Are Women, Are Heard

NEW YORK INVESTIGATION

Yushe Botwin Adds to His Confession - Says Dealers Used Code Words in Carrying on Trade - All a Matter of Money however, he displays remarkable knowledge of human nature in picking out his victims, especially among school girls, always being careful to select those whom he knew were just wavering on the border line of vice.

The other day, while in a restaurant he asserted his ability to procure a large percentage of poorly paid, hard-working girls, who desire to maintain a high regard for personal appearance. He said from his experience, covering twenty years, that it was only a question of proportionate compensation.

White slave masters, of whom Botwin was a type, although taking in from $100 to $500 a week on an average, never rented telephones. Mr. Swann says. They always used pay telephones in cigar stores and saloons. In negotiating with disorderly house keepers over the telephone the word "girl" or "woman" was never used. It was always "a box of cigars" instead.

Slavers Feared Police.

"We were afraid of the police, after all, although we paid for protection. Send me a box of cigars, or I will send you a box of cigars," were perfectly safe and meant business to business people," said Botwin.

"Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, who is in charge of the investigation, was asked by a hotel keeper on City Island to find his daughter, who was lured from her home in last May by agents of white slave operators who were giving a picnic on the island. Mr. Smith has subpoenaed a half dozen promoters of East Side dance halls and motion picture theatres, and is confident that he is already on the trail of the men who placed the girl in a disorderly resort.

A hard working woman, living in Ninth avenue, near Fortieth street, told Mr. Smith that her seventeen-year-old daughter had been lured to the Tenderloin in last May. Night after night the mother, after a day of toil, walked the streets of the third inspection district in search of her daughter. By getting acquainted with the women the mother finally located the girl in a resort in the Bowery. She succeeded in getting her to go home, but the girl was soon afterward sent to Bellevue Hospital and is incurable.

The girl said she was enticed in a motion picture theatre on the West Side by a young man whose name is known to the district attorney. His arrest may follow.

Botwin a Remarkable Type.

"This man," said the district attorney in describing Botwin, "is a most remarkable specimen of criminality. He is apparently perfectly unimpaired. You can make no appeal whatever to him on the basis of morality. In spite of this,

The Man In The Street

Are you going to Tipperary Mary's picnic at Torriburn today? Here is an opportunity to contribute to a worthy cause and incidentally get something for your money.

That tug-of-war between the custodians of the law and the members of the "rapid transit" should be "some" sporting event.

If confidence would be a factor in the result the policemen would have the event cinched. Watch for the departure and note the expressions of the contestants and compare them with the bland smiles of the vanquished as they return crestfallen.

Who can penetrate the veil of mystery which enshrouds the active foundations? Yesterday Commissioner Wigmore on the proposed site of the new grain elevator? "To be or not to be" is a question which betters are asking.

Did civic officials know that the site lacked one great requisite, namely, a foundation? If so, why didn't they put the I. C. R. officials wise and save an expenditure for boring holes in filled land? However, they say that experience is the best teacher.

A heavy rain storm in St. John is usually hailed with delight by citizens in general for then at least the streets are cleaned. Yesterday Commissioner Wigmore flooded the streets and the comparison of the pavement where the water flowed and where it did not was odious. Some men employed to collect refuse seem to have a wrong impression of their duties and scatter it instead.

This is the reason so many citizens have to seek a friend or some amateur oculist to pick out, etc., out of their eyes.

It is one thing to elope with a pretty maiden, but another to come face to face with an outraged better-half.

The cheerful smile of the housewife is due to the fact that she has sent the accumulation of papers around the house. It does her good and it helps a good cause.

Now, Mr. Weather Man, be kindly to Tipperary Mary and her friends this afternoon.

The fog man is being worked overtime. Why not give Old Sol a chance?

Here's a Question

A huge hound was reposing placidly in the square the other day. He was supposed to be sleeping, and was said never to have caused harm to any one. Soldier boys in khaki passed to and fro, but the dog never raised his head to pay them any respect. Men dressed in various colored uniforms by the place of his rest. Children with their noisy chatter ran swiftly past his very nose, but he still lay motionless, young and old, passed by, but he took no heed. Here three policemen happened along. The dog instantly rushed at them in his uniform and it was some time before he was beaten off. It happened that a Western Livery messenger next came along, dressed also in his suit of blue. The dog made a savage bound and was about to tear the livery to pieces, but was subdued by those about. Will some one explain why this dog objects to blue?

BASEBALL TEAM OF THE 140TH LEADERS

A tug-of-war was held among the various battalions and the boys of the 140th Battalion won the championship. They received a silver cup presented by the Y. M. C. A.

SON OF MR. AND MRS. J. S. GIBBONS WRITES OF HIS ARRIVAL IN ENGLAND

Gunner J. A. Gibbons, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Gibbons of this city, who recently arrived in England, having crossed with a battery from Toronto. In a letter to his father and mother describes the trip interestingly. After speaking of the voyage, he says:

We arrived in Liverpool on Monday night at nine o'clock. Another vessel with 4,500 troops left Halifax the same time two weeks ago this coming Sunday with 2,500. The sea was as calm as the Kennebecasis all the way over and we were in Liverpool on Tuesday.

All the way from Liverpool to Shorncliffe Camp we came in funny little trains, eight in each compartment and four compartments in a car. They travel very fast up hill and down as the trains run up hills and down hills all through a good many tunnels on the way here.

We stopped at Rugby for a while. England is a wonderfully pretty country, everything is green and almost every person has flower gardens. The houses are lovely and all are brick, but look much newer than those in Canada. They have some wonderful farms here, not a weed from Shorncliffe to Liverpool that can be seen from the train. Folkestone is a fine summer resort and is fifteen minutes walk from our camp.

The day we left Toronto we were told to get our kits at 10 a. m. and when we got them they told us we were to enter the barracks at 8:30 p. m.

We started a course in marksmanship on Wednesday and will finish it on August 15th when we start on the big guns—47 inch ones. They fire from five to six thousand yards and the shell is a sixty pound one.

We can hear the artillery bombardment in France (one of the heaviest yet) very clearly from here. We are about sixty miles from the firing line.

They sent a draft of artillery from here to France this morning.

All Canadians around here for miles, about 45,000 here at this camp. Easts are few as far as people in different parts of England that I can go to. This is all the leave we get while in England. We can go any place we like in the British Isles.

Your loving son,
ARNOLD.

THREE NINES

Nine marriages and the birth of nine boys and nine girls were reported to Registrar John B. Jones this week. This is an interesting combination of figures. There have been cases where the number of boys and girls born in a week were equal, but it is rare that the number of marriages and births of boys and girls were the same.

PRISONERS WENT WITHOUT ESCORT

While escorting two soldier prisoners from St. John to St. Andrews a corporal and a private of the 4th Pioneer Battalion missed their train at McAdam Junction on Thursday evening. Says the Frederick Gleaner, and the prisoners continued to St. Andrews minus their escort.

A corporal and a private, who were walking about the station, were informed by Constable John B. Hawthorne that their train was to leave soon. The advice was not heeded and the result was that both lost the train while the prisoners continued their journey.

Later in the evening Constable Hawthorne was asked by the corporal if a place could be provided to lock a man in for the night and, when asked by the officer if it was a prisoner he had, the corporal replied that it was not, but said that one of the escort needed to be looked after. It was then learned that the prisoners had continued to St. Andrews minus the escort.

Important Notice From Our Silk Department!

We Have Just Had Delivered to Our Silk Department Several Hundreds Yards of RICH BLACK SATIN MESSALINE

Pure All Silk, for Waists, Coats or Dresses

This lot contracted for by us on December 19, 1915, and only now delivered. We did not expect the manufacturers at this date to deliver these goods. In fact, they had written us that owing to the increase of 35 to 40 per centum in cost of manufacturing silk, they would probably not be able to ship them.

However, here they are, and our customers can now buy rich Black All Silk Satin Messaline, 36 inches wide, at $1.25 a yard, which is 35 cents a yard under manufacturers' cost for the exact silk at present time.
