Alfred Lawrence O'Brien of Roxbury, Mass. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. S. Bishop in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The bride entered the parlor with her father to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march played by Miss Jennie Colwell, and looked charming in a costume of brown gorgette and satin, wore a large picture hat and carried a bouquet of roses and carnations. The wedding took place under an arch of evergreen and daisies. The bride's party and guests, then repaired to the dining room with its prettily decorated tables, where a sumptuous wedding supper was served. The bride and groom were seated at the head of the table, which was decorated with white flowers. The bride wore a gown of white tulle with a train and a large picture hat. The groom wore a suit of navy blue with a white shirt and a large picture hat. The wedding was a very pretty one and was attended by a large number of guests.

Many costly presents, including cut glass, silverware and linen were received, testifying to the esteem in which the bride was held by her many friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a silver coin purse, to Miss Wright a gold bar pin. The bride's traveling suit was of navy blue tulle, with hat to match.

Wood Beds Are Becoming More Popular Every Day

There seems to be something especially inviting about a Wooden Bed—and just now they are becoming very popular. Our stock is right in step with the increasing demand, and we know you will be pleased with this showing.

The line is extensive—including in it all the popular woods and finishes. A particular attractive feature is the steel rails with which the beds are equipped, thus ensuring of solidness and freedom from that looseness sometimes characteristic of the old-style wood bed. These steel rails keep spring and mattress in position, and give all advantages of iron or steel beds, together with the further attractiveness of wood.
