P. E. I. RHODES SCHOLARS IN WAR

Two go to the Front — One Has Command in the King Edward Horse

Charlottetown, Sept. 2.—Prince Edward Island will have at least two Rhodes scholars at the front in the war. One is J. A. Collett of Bedouque, who left here last week with his fellow comrades of the 8th Infantry Regiment for Valcartier. The other is Arthur G. Cameron, barrister, of Vancouver, B. C., a former Rhodes scholar, and a native of Montserrat, P. E. I. Mr. Cameron has sailed for England to join his regiment, King Edward's Horse, the King's Overseas Regiment, formerly known as the King's Colonials. Mr. Cameron is second in command of C Squadron, composed of Rhodes scholars and colonial undergraduates attending Oxford and Cambridge. He was attached to the King's Royal Hussars in 1909, and holds certificates from the school of musketry, Hythe, Kent, as musketry instructor and Maxim gun instructor in the British army. Before the outbreak of hostilities Mr. Cameron held his regiment offering to serve on the continent in case of war. Last week he received the following cable: "Rejoin your command in King Edward's Horse," an intimation that the regiment is to go to the front. Mr. Cameron is a splendid specimen of a soldier, and in his student days was one of the best all round athletes in the maritime provinces, standing over six feet, and very strongly built.

AN IRISH REGIMENT BEING FORMED IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Sept. 1.—Recruiting for the new Irish regiment being formed in Montreal will be closed on Saturday. Promoters of the movement state that applications are pouring in so fast that they could get 1,000 volunteers instead of the 400 they started out to get. It is expected that formal application will be made next week to the Minister of Militia to form the regiment and to equip it with uniforms and everything necessary to make the corps an efficient unit of the Canadian militia.

OVERSEAS CONTINGENT CHAPLAINS APPOINTED

Ottawa, Sept. 2.—The militia department tonight announced the appointment of chaplains to accompany the Canadian expeditionary force to Europe. They are Canon Almond, of Trinity church, Montreal; Anglican; Rev. Canon Sylvester, of Montreal, Roman Catholic; Rev. A. M. Gordon, son of Principal Gordon, of Queen's University, and Rev. R. H. Steacy, rector of the Anglican church at Westboro, a suburb of Ottawa. Rev. Mr. Gordon went with the Canadian troops as chaplain in 1888. In addition there will be six Salvation Army chaplains.

Some men who claim to be looking for work should have their eyes examined.

VERY LIGHT AND Dainty.

of 36-inch material will be required. Without the ruffles 5 1/2 yards will be sufficient.

Start first to make the waist by closing under-arm and shoulder seams. Hem the back and join collar as notched. Gather lower edge, add to stay, arrange ruffles (three bands) on upper edges. Adjust on waist, stitching gathers along double "o" perforations, with small "o" perforation at the shoulder seam. Sew close seams of sleeves and sleeve ruffles. Gather upper edges of ruffles, arrange on sleeve, stitching upper edge of upper ruffle to upper edge of sleeve and stitch gathers in lower ruffle along crossline of single small "o" perforations, seams even. Sew sleeve in armhole as notched, easing in any fullness.

Slash skirt down center-back of back going large "o" perforation and slash down center front. Place ruffles on small "o" perforation. Join gores as notched; pleat extensions, creasing on perforations, bring folded edge to small "o" perforations and press. Close back seams of ruffles, leaving edges of upper ruffle free above large "o" perforation.

"O" perforation for opening; adjust on skirt, centers even; stitch upper edges together, bringing small "o" perforation to side seam. Close back seams of ruffles, gathering entire upper edge. Adjust on skirt, centers even; stitch gathered edge of longest center crossline, centers even. Close back seam of accordion pleated flounce, adjust on skirt, stitching upper edge along outer crossline of small "o" perforations. Sew skirt to lower edge of waist over stay, centers even. The edges of the flounces of the skirt may be finished in a neat effect or with buttonholed scallops.

Miner's frock for formal wear suitable for development in batiste, mul or chiffon and featuring the new ruffled skirt.

It is easy for one to conjure up marvelous possibilities for the design shown here. The dress is made without lining, but is worn over a slip of silk in any desired shade. The neck may be high or low and the skirt is a two-piece affair with raised waist-line. A deep girde of brilliant satin ribbon adds to the effectiveness of the model. If made with four skirt ruffles 8 yards

A UNITED IRELAND GIVES THE ANSWER TO KAISER'S DESIGNS

Remarkable Demonstrations of Loyalty Follow the Outbreak of the War—All Are For the King

(Montreal Mail)

Dublin, Aug. 14.—During the week events in England and Ireland have marched with amazing rapidity. A week ago no sane person would have dared to prophesy what is now the fact. No doubt it required a European war to bring the situation about, but it is a situation of which all Irishmen are generally proud. The sequence of events may be briefly stated, even though in their general outline they are already known throughout the world. England found herself faced with a war with Germany. There is now hardly any doubt that German diplomacy chose the tone of its menace because it felt that Britain was rent in twain by the Home Rule crisis, and that Ireland was an armed camp, the majority of whose inhabitants would gladly welcome a foreign power, any power which would deal a death blow to England. Germany felt that the moment was opportune, but she reckoned without a true knowledge of the depth of loyalty which is innate in these countries.

Mr. Redmond's message to the government to take their troops from Ireland and the National and Ulster volunteers would protect the country, was the master-stroke which upset Teutonic calculations. Its effect in Ireland was electric. The Nationalist rank and file, rose as one man and responded to the call. More surprising still, still staid and unemotional Unionists worked themselves into ecstasies of approval. They spoke of Mr. Redmond and his action as they have never spoken before, and in order to prove their genuine feelings many leading men announced their intention of joining the National Volunteers, and they were as good as their word.

A Thrilling Sight

One thrilling incident deserves to be put on record. It is only one of many. At Athlone the local Unionists held a meeting and having considered the situation it was decided that all who were capable of service should join the local volunteer regiment. On the following afternoon, when the volunteers were drilling in their grounds, the Unionists in a body headed by two Protestant persons, marched in. They were received with thunders of applause and took their places in the ranks. It was such a spectacle as Ireland had never witnessed before. Numerous other officers of service came from individuals. Mr. Bryan Cooper, the Unionist candidate-elect for the County, Dublin, a Sligo gentleman, an ex-army officer, announced his intention of joining. A local landlord in Roscommon whose estate has for years been a storm centre of wrangling and disaffection and cattle-driving wrote to the local press begging to be admitted to the volunteers and a cordial invitation was sent him. Away down south the Unionists have followed the general trend of feeling and the National Volunteers are a perfectly loyal body and fully representative of all creeds and classes in the three southern provinces.

Loyal Dublin

The situation in Dublin has completely astonished everybody. Following rapidly on the shooting of three people by soldiers of the King's Own Scottish Borderers the army was believed to be very unpopular. And so it was. But the sudden development of the situation changed everything. The shooting was forgotten, and in the passing and regaining of mobility battalions were placed turned out en masse to acclaim them. Individual soldiers in the street were feted and fêted. For the first time in perhaps a hundred years, "Rule Britannia" was heard in the streets of the Irish capital. Reservists called to the colors were escorted to the railway stations by bodies of the Ulster and Nationalist volunteers headed by a local band playing popular airs and cheers were given as the trains left.

War Effect in Ireland

There is no general pessimistic feeling regarding the effects which the war may have in Ireland. There are, of course, the panic stories as to starvation prices for food. So far, however, no real danger is apprehended. Prices which ran high in the declared war, are steadily moving back to normal, and all sorts of influences are being brought to bear to prevent cornering of food. Signs are not wanting of the situation, however. The Stock Exchange has not yet reopened, and the newspapers in view of a possible shortage of paper have, by a mutual agreement, reduced their size to attenuated proportions.

He Sure Had

The pompous judge glared sternly over his spectacles at the tattered prisoner who had been dragged before the bar of justice on a charge of vagrancy. "Have you ever earned a dollar in your life?" he asked in fine scorn. "Yes, your Honor," was the response. "I voted for you at the last election."

The Princess' Men With Garnet Flag Are Canada's Best

(Ottawa Free Press.)

The dying August sun glints on the silken garnet flag. It is blood red. The wind lifts it and tosses it, and one catches the blue and gold put there by the gracious fingers of a very gracious lady. But the first impression remains. Within sight of the flag are lines and lines of drab khaki-clad men. There is no color there, save the grass below and the sky above. This is not war? There is a bugle call once. Quick as a woman the bugle

MANIFESTO OF THE NEW FRENCH CABINET

The new French cabinet has issued the following manifesto:

"Frenchmen: The new government has taken possession of its post of honor and of the combat. The country knows it may count upon its energy, and that it gives itself with all its soul to the country's defence."

"The government knows it may count upon the country. Its sons are shedding their blood for the Fatherland and liberty alongside the heroic English and Belgian armies. They support the storm of shot and shell and everyone stands firm. To them glory. Glory to the living and glory to the dead. Thanks to so much heroic final victory is assured."

"Certainly a great battle is raging, but it is not decisive. Whatever may be the result, the struggle will continue. France is not as easy a prey as the insolence of the enemy imagines."

Present Duty is Tragical

"Frenchmen, the present duty is tragical; but simply repulse the enemy, pursue him and save our soil from his stain. Save liberty from his grasp. Hold fast as long as need be until the end. Let us lift up our minds and souls above the peril, and remain the masters of our destiny."

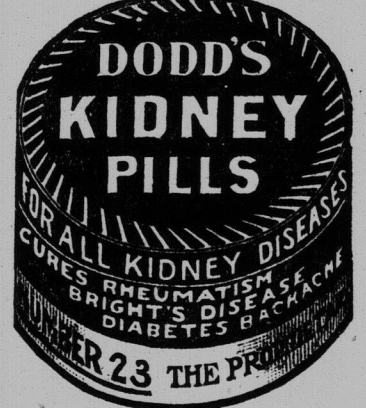

"Meanwhile our Russian allies march with decided steps towards the German capital that is pervaded with anxiety, and inflict many reverses on its troops which retire."

"We ask of the country all the sacrifices and all the resources that it can furnish in men and energy. Be firm then, and resolute. Let the national life, aided by appropriate financial and administrative measures, continue unimpeded."

"Let us have confidence in ourselves. Let us forget all that is not of the nation. Face to the frontier. We have the method and the will. We shall have the victory."

THE TEACHING STAFF

Changes have been made in the staffs of some of the local schools. Miss May Ward, formerly in Grade X has been placed as in a new Grade XI, being succeeded by Miss Parks, a spare teacher, at School. Miss Gillies, formerly at Edward school, is taking the place of Miss Graham, who is on a year's inter-street school. Miss Ball, an appointed teacher in Central, succeeding Miss Bosse. Miss Edna Corbett, reserve teacher there, is now in charge of Victoria school, and Miss takes her place as teacher. Miss Adams is supplying in Ada Allan in King during term leave, and is assisting there. Miss Adams is supplying in St. John's school, and Miss is again principal of St. John's school. Miss is again principal of St. John's school. Miss is again principal of St. John's school.
