The first of the confidence operators of New York played his game 250 years ago. He deserves to rank with the best of his successors, for he flew high. He even worked the Kirg of Erglard of his period, took him in and did him up for the sole right and title to Long Island, and worked it out with a bogus book of devotions for the Ibpetorges and other Indian tribes botween Brocklyn and Montauk. When Charles the 11 came back to the throng after the Restoration with the recolle of his father's fate ever present in his mind he found it prudent to assume an interest in matters of devotion which he was far from scaling personally, and that may ac-count for the case with which the bogus

That in itself is encugh to stimulate curiosity when it happens to sny rate book, and particularly when it is one of the early American books. In 1658 the Rev. Abrabam Pierson, who had teen the minister at Southampton in Long Island and after was stationed at Branford, Conn., published a book through the press of the United Ccl. onies at Cambridge which bore the title 'Some Helps for the Indians.' The first extmination showed that the Lenox copy is the genuine first edition and the British Museum holds the spurions title on a genuine print. This was set be-yond doubt by finding that, while the Lenox title is printed on the first signature of the book, the British Museum title bas bren separately, printed and deftly inserted in place of the one which gave the oredit to Stanton. Other records make it quite clear that Capt. John Scot really did bunco Charles II. and that he did it with this very copy of the Incian book preserved in the British Museum

John Scott recorded of himself that, as s boy, he delighted in slashing the saddle girths of Cromwell's cavalry and watching the soldiers come to griet. He played this trick once too often, however, and was kidnapped, 'trephined' they called it in those days. Ry such means he was brought to America and sold as a redemptioner for his passage money and set to work tending cows in Salem. When he had served out his time he seemed to have little liking for his fellow citizens, for he is next heard of as living with the Indians on Long Island, trading a little, meddling some, probably a squaw man, but making the record which every white man similarly situated always makes if he can get the savage to sell him land. At a later period John Scott claimed an Indian title to the whole of Long Island, and this is when he got it. In 1654 the Dutch rounded him up as a suspicious character and gave bim an examination at New Amsterdam. He

A service of the scot cloud on the title ? Scot sailed for London in 1660, probably in October. Not later than May of the following year it was reported in America that the King had patented Long Island to Scot. That brought John Winthrop over to court to protest to the King, and in 1662 the patent was said to be finally denied. The next vear Capt. Scot is again after the King for Long Island. He pleads his father's service to the King's tather, how he spent 514 500 for the Merry Monarch and laud down his lite; how he, the son, had been banished to New Eogland for a malignant royalist; how that he had purchased from the Indians 'near one-third part' of Long Island and now petitioned the king to make him Governor of Long Island. Then he carried out a successful attack on Brooklyn and took it from the Dutch, and on the occasion of this surrender present ed awriting wherein his Majesty of England granted him the who's of Long Island. Then he carried out a successful attack on Brooklyn and took it from the Dutch, and on the occasion of this surrender present ed awriting wherein his Majesty of England. To be sure, the contemporary accounts state that the writing lacked signature, but even at that carly date Brooklyn had its enemies who would not hesitate to him that an unexceuted document was good enough for the people of the Heights Bedict section. Not long siter the sack of Brooklyn the Bedict section. The close store, and the Park Siope and the Bedict section.
