During the first attempt he got close enough to communicate with those on board. The captain of the steamer asked that assistance be sent him and the Merritt Wrecking Company of Norfolk has been notified. The weather has been so thick and rainy that the life savers have been unable to see or communicate with the Camperdown since. Everything indicates the total loss of the vessel, unless the weather changes and assistance reaches her soon.

REV. DR. TALMAGE'S PLEA FOR MUTUAL FRIENDSHIP AND HELP.

Worldlings Are Wiser Awake For Opportunities Than Are Christians—Men of the World Grab Occasions, But Christians Let the Most Valuable of Them Slip by Unimproved.

Washington, March 5.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage calls for a warm friendship between those who preach the gospel and those who make newspapers, the spoken word and the printed word to go side by side, not, Luke xvi, 8, "The children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light."

A marked stupidity and solemn incompetence and sanctified laziness are here rebuked by Christ. He says worldlings are wiser awake for opportunities than are Christians—Men of the World Grab Occasions, But Christians Let the Most Valuable of Them Slip by Unimproved.

There is only one person you need to manage, and that is yourself. Keep your dispositions sweet by communion with Christ, who answered not again, got society of genial people and walk out in the sunshine with your hat off, and you will come out all right. And don't join the crowd of people in our day who spend much of their time in damning newspapers.

Again if you would secure the secular press as a mightier reinforcement of religion and the pulpit, extend widest and highest Christian courtesies to the representatives of journalism. Give them easy chairs and plenty of room when they come to report occasions. For the most part they are gentlemen of education and refinement, graduates of colleges, with families to support by their literary craft, many of them with the push of a business that is precarious and fluctuating, each one of them the avenue of information to thousands of readers, and the impression of the services to be rendered by the press is made by multitudes. They are connecting links between a secular world and a religious world, and this, great population that tramp up and down the streets day by day and year by year with their newspapers, are the most valuable of the world are in their generation wiser than the children of light.

A marked stupidity and solemn incompetence and sanctified laziness are here rebuked by Christ. He says worldlings are wiser awake for opportunities than are Christians—Men of the World Grab Occasions, But Christians Let the Most Valuable of Them Slip by Unimproved.

ing his hope of resurrection, an epitaph that I hundreds of times read while living in Philadelphia. The body of Benjamin Franklin, printer (like the cover of an old book, its contents torn out and stripped of its lettering and gliding, lies here food for worms. Yet the work itself shall not be lost, for it will (as he believed) appear once more in a new and more beautiful edition, corrected and amended by the Author."

That Providence intends the profession of reporters to have a mighty share in the world's redemption is suggested by the fact that Paul and Christ took a reporter along with them, and had reported their addresses and their acts. Luke was a reporter, and he wrote not only the book of Luke, but the Acts of the Apostles, and without that reporter's work we would have known nothing of the Pentecost and nothing of Stephen's martyrdom, and nothing of Paul and Silas, and nothing of the shipwreck at Malta. Strikes, wars, and you kill a large part of the New Testament. It makes me think that in the future of the kingdom of God the reporters are to bear a mighty part.

And the men of that profession are going to come in a body throughout the country. They are not only men, and a moral and highly educated class of men it would be hard to find, and, though they are not yet, they are becoming so. They are not only men, and a moral and highly educated class of men it would be hard to find, and, though they are not yet, they are becoming so.

DEAD FROM GRIEF.

Mrs. Clune Despondent Over Her Husband's Loss of Mind.

New York, March 4.—Fifty-year-old Mrs. Mary Clune was found dead in her home at No. 182 Madison street, yesterday, and some of her neighbors think she died of starvation. It was not through lack of necessities of life that the old woman died, however, for two savings bank books showed $350 standing to her credit.

According to Mrs. Mary Egan, who lives on the floor below, Mrs. Clune had died of grief for her husband. She became despondent when he was sent to the Manhattan State Hospital for the insane three months ago. "They were always an affectionate couple," said Mrs. Egan, "and when her husband lost his mind and had to be sent away she didn't seem to take any further interest in life. She refused to take proper nourishment and it looks as though she must have died of starvation."

Mrs. Clune was a shirtmaker and an industrious worker. She sewed shirts in the rear rooms on the second floor of the tenement in Madison street, where she lived. She was a saving woman and was considered a well-to-do tenant by her neighbors in the house.

So accustomed had the other tenants grown to see Mrs. Clune up and at it at an early hour in the morning that when they failed to hear a sound in her room yesterday they knocked on her door. There was no response, and as the old woman had been growing weaker day through abstaining from food they became alarmed and forced open the door. Old Mrs. Clune was found lying on her bed, fully dressed. Her two bank books lay beside her. The police of the Madison street station had her body taken to the morgue, where a coroner's physician will perform an autopsy today.

FATHER NOW PITIED.

Heart Softens to Daughter Whom He Had Convicted of Theft.

Woodbury, N. J., March 4.—Evans Stever, the father of Miss Lillian Stever, visited his pretty daughter in the county prison, where she awaits removal to the state prison to serve a year at hard labor for robbing him of more than $400. Miss Stever was convicted on Friday before Judge Jessup on the indictment of robbing her father of more than $400. She was 22 years of age and was a member of the South American coast the man on the lookout neglected his work, and in a moment of carelessness he was dashed to ruin on the rocks. But a cricket on board the vessel, that had made no sound all the voyage, was the first to detect the danger. All of us with some influence, we are told, will help in the right direction, let us put our hands to the work, imploring God to hasten the consummation of the work of the hands of faith and prayer, ordain the printing press for righteousness and liberty and salvation.

Miss Stever was convicted on Friday before Judge Jessup on the indictment of robbing her father of more than $400. But a cricket on board the vessel, that had made no sound all the voyage, was the first to detect the danger. All of us with some influence, we are told, will help in the right direction, let us put our hands to the work, imploring God to hasten the consummation of the work of the hands of faith and prayer, ordain the printing press for righteousness and liberty and salvation.
